Louis Elisa confronts Mark St John, who was formerly homeless, at the most recent meeting on the Shattuck Hospital.

The second meeting on the Commonwealth's Division of Capital Asset Management proposal to build 100 units of housing for the homeless on two acres of the Shattuck Hospital grounds was held on May 16.

The first meeting, held at Jamaica Plain's English High School on April 26, was warmly received, though with concerns.

The second, held at the Franklin Park golf clubhouse, was denounced as discriminatory and disrespectful to the point that State Representative

Liz Malia, in a rare and uncharacteristic display, walked out in disgust.

This presentation, held largely at the request of District 7 City Councilor Kim Janey, who had spoken at English High, was a repeat of April 26. Janey was not present but sent her observer Noah Coolidge.

DCAM Deputy Director of Real Estate Beth Rubenstein explained that the two acres of the Shattuck were being proposed as the site of supportive housing for the chronically homeless. The 12-story personnel building on the lot was

Angry South Boston residents confront MBTA on proposed bus stop plans

Officials explain proposed plans to an angry crowd for the MBTA bus service project in South Boston. Residents said they did not believe a bus lane could work in the neighborhood.

Nearly 200 people packed into the school cafeteria at the Joseph P. Tynan Elementary School on May 16, most of them determined to bring the MBTA's proposed project of revamping their neighborhood's bus lines to a screeching halt.

The plans include making the area's bus lines accessible, which is one of Mayor Martin J. Walsh's priorities, while changing stops, placing kiosks and possibly changing route service.

Funding of $25 million was appropriated by the state legislature in 2014 when the House of Representatives passed the transportation bond bill in 2014, explained Leo Stella, legislative director to Sen. Nick Collins, who was then a state representa-

40 Rugg Rd. approved by ACA, BPDA

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The Boston Planning and Development Agency (BPDA) approved the 256 rental unit development proposed for 40 Rugg Rd. by Michaels Development last Thursday at its monthly board meeting.

The Allston Brighton Civic Association (ACA) also voted to recommend the proposal to the BPDA and the Boston Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) after a presentation from Michaels and Jumbo Development, which presented on 30 Penniman Rd., a project planned in conjunction with 40 Rugg Rd.

Initially, 40 Rugg Rd. was controversial because it was not home ownership, but Michaels teamed up with Jumbo in a partnership to develop 46 condominium units at a site inside the footprint of 40 Rugg Rd.

Development Attorney Dan Cence and Dimella Shaffer Architect Tal Shifriss went over the proposal with the ACA. Shifriss said they had worked to improve the artist spaces in the project, as the old buildings there housed artist apartments before water damage from a fire made the space practically uninhabitable.

"They will be a part of the 34 affordable units," she said.

She also said they have added from the last time they spoke with the ACA a terraced roof deck with a small lounge and sitting area with a fire pit and chairs. She said there is also a new lobby designed and that they will be commissioning murals for the inside facing walls of the project.

State Police, Massport no show at jurisdiction hearing

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

Last Friday, the Boston City Council held a hearing with the Boston Police Department (BPD), regarding the current jurisdiction in the city, most notably the South Boston Seaport.

Representatives from the Massachusetts State Police and the Massachusetts Port Authority (Massport), both of which currently have jurisdiction, did not attend the hearing.

"I find it disrespectful that the people who were called upon did not contact us in any way, shape or form personally, but they called out staff and said they couldn't make it and said they'd send staffers," said District 5 City Councilor and hearing co-sponsor Tim McCarthy.

Currently, areas owned by the Massachusetts Port Authority (Massport) are in the jurisdiction of the State Police and Massport Police. This has led to jurisdictional fights between State Police and BPD. The legislation will also affect any roads owned by the state government. Currently, Boston Police can pull over, cite, issue summons or arrest someone in state jurisdiction, they just have to have a State Police officer present during the following court proceedings, or the case can be thrown out. It has also led to spats between the departments over which

NEWRA hears Rose Kennedy Greenway updates

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

Jesse Brackenbury of the Rose Kennedy Greenway Conservancy went before NEWRA to give an update on the Business Improvement District (BID) and the Carolyn Lynch Garden currently under construction.

Brackenbury said his organization is a nonprofit and is tasked with maintaining the public garden on the Greenway. Since the state decided to stop funding the Greenway at its current rate, the city, state and Conservancy decided to put together a BID that took a vote of the adjoining commercial and residential businesses along the Greenway to raise funds for the park's upkeep.

"The Massachusetts Department of Transportation (MassDOT) has historically provided 40 percent of the annual budget, which is less than the cost of the care of the park," he said. "We have then brought 60 percent of the budget to bear, and that pays for additional care of the park, plus all the art, the 400 free programs, the administrative costs and the fundraising costs. That is a model that last summer, after a series of negotiations that 40 percent that the state was paying is now divided up between the state, property owners along the Greenway and the city. Still, the majority of the budget will come through our nonprofit's fundraising and so on."

Brackenbury said that BIDs are common in other cities and Boston currently has one in

The greenery at the Rose Kennedy Greenway in the North End will be seeing some updates coming this summer.

Downtown Crossing. He said the Greenway BID will give $1.5 million a year to the Greenway, and that currently, other areas are being explored for a BID down the line.

Brackenbury said the BID will legally have a separation from the Conservancy through the Greenway BID Corporation, which will be the "pass through" entity of the funds collected by the BID to the Conservancy.

"It is the City Assessor's Office that will collect the funds, and they will pass the funds immediately to that group, the Greenway BID Corp., and that group will turn around and write a check to the Greenway Conservancy," he said. "It is a distinct organization that will have a disinct board, but they are more or less passing money through."

One resident said he was wary of such an organization that could take advantage through administrative costs and essentially take those monies away from the Greenway.

"The notion is that it is a pass through, we already have a finance department and those things need not be replicated," he said. "The assessment will be I said there will be $1.5 million coming through, but the assessment will be $1.6 million to account for administrative costs, which is a lot of administrative costs, they're not coming to us, but it also is not going to hire whole staffs full of people and that assessment is not at all easily changed."

Brackenbury also discussed new renovations to the boxwood gardens along the Greenway happening now.

"We're renovating the garden you might notice," he said. "We did a community process and came here and held community hearings back in 2014 that led to the reconstruction of the boxwood garden beds on the north side of Hanover Street, what is known by Parcel 8 if you speak the inside baseball language. We did a community process for both parcels of that lot, the garden that's along the west side, what we call the boxwood gardens."

Brackenbury said the original construction of the box-woods presented two major problems for the plants there.

"The problem with those originally is that they were double-planted with boxwood, so at twice the cost the boxwood was choking itself out. Then the second problem was that there was a contaminate in the soil, a weed that was also choking the plants out. So we turned the community gardens north of Hanover Street and recently with a major gift from the Lynch Foundation, Peter Lynch of Fidelity fame – his wife was an avid gardener and passed away very suddenly last June – with a major gift from them, they have funded the construction and endowed the ongoing care of these gardens... It will look substantially similar to what's there now."

Brackenbury said that besides fixing the issues with the gardens, they will be also incorporating some of the plants that Carolyn Lynch loved and also will add in the small plazas near the fountain tables, chairs, planters and umbrellas.

"Those will provide nice little picnic areas and a little bit more shade," he said. "All of this will be completed before July 4, probably in the month of June. I noticed on the walk up here that the cross sidewalk at North Street is currently closed off, and that's not us, there is a separate effort going on that the state is doing irrigation work to segregate state systems from city systems and they dug up that sidewalk."

NEEDLES AND DAMAGE DONE

Drugs are bad. However, it doesn't take a social scientist to know that some drugs are worse than others.

Marijuana? Well, given the national mood, it has fallen so far down the nation's list of worries that it looks to cede its risk weighting to e-cigarette flavored capsules. Rising on the "concern-o-meter" with great speed and hand-wringing are opioids.

By now, unless you live in a cave you must know of the horrors; young (and not-so-young) people dying in droves because their opioid thirst leads them to experiment, sometimes unknowingly so, with even riskier drugs than heroin, such as fentanyl.

When we were kids it was widely understood that heroin was the ONE drug to never even contemplate doing. It appears all that seems to be out the window now.

In recent Bulletin coverage, we told of how Rep. Angelo Scaccia told a local audience of his support for the up-coming Care Act 2, which aims to reform care around opioid addicts throughout the state.

As part of this bill, doctors will be held more accountable when they prescribe opioids, as many in the state feel they have over-prescribed patients and helped to exacerbate the opioid issue, we reported.

"Doctors are on notice," Scaccia said. "Doctors were giving out much too much."

The new bill will include electronic filing for every prescription for opioid pain medication. Other legislation in the works will require patients to pick up pain medications in two-separate trips to the pharmacist.

Here is where things get controversial. The new bill would allow hospitals to hold a person suffering from an overdose for up to 72 hours, even against their will while they go through withdrawal.

The American Civil Liberties Union is among those slamming the idea of being "arrested" without a corresponding criminal charge.

It is good to support most of these legislative goals, but it is hard to give into the idea of involuntary rehab. The reality is that most subjected to being held will revert back to their old ways.

Even when addicts are willing, rehabilitation is a tough road, full of failures. Factor in anger and feelings of "victimhood," right or wrong, and most will slip back to their addictions. The likely outcome: wasting taxpayer money.

Of course, this is not all about money. There is a good argument that even one life saved makes it all worth it. At some point, however, we need to realize that we cannot just keep throwing money at the problem.

A major, but neglected part of recent opioid battles is that there are a great many addicts who are not innocent victims of a pain pill prescription gone wrong.

Young men and women in Boston, notably South Boston, have died in droves by going directly to heroin by snorting or needle. It used to be, and probably still is, that heroin was a fraction of the cost of illicit pills on the streets. It was even at one point cheaper than a six-pack of beer.

Addiction is no laughing matter. It is a struggle. Unfortunately we are deluded to think it is just weak suburbanites falling prey to these specific addictions. Personal responsibility does play a big part.

Some choose the drug life. While help should be there for those who want it, we should stop wasting money on those who do not. These dollars are better spent funding research and treatment for sick, innocent children and cancer patients. Otherwise, current programs are just another "crisis of the month" in the hands of government officials seeking blunt solutions for complex problems.

Jamaica Plain resident duly honored

Although it happened on the other side of the River Charles—far removed from where he now resides—John Griffin's recognition by his high school warrants due plaudits on this side of the storied waterway.

A graduate of Matignon High School before attending Boston College and Harvard Law, this Jamaica Plain resident was recently presented the Distinguished Alumnus Award by the North Cambridge High School at the Boston Marriott Cambridge.

Griffin has distinguished himself in service to his community, his alma maters, and the Catholic Church: he is past president of the Boston College Alumni Association and the Boston Latin Home and School Association as well as past board chair of both Catholic Charities of Boston and the Jamaica Plain Neighborhood House. He has distinguished himself with a career in law, with his specialty in real estate, development, and education, frequently providing pro bono advice.

With his wife Mary Margaret, he has raised three children with four delightful grandchildren in his JP abode as he closes

My Kind of Town/
Joe Galeota

in on two decades as a member for Matignon High School's Board of Trustees.

In his acceptance speech the Somerville native affably noted that he went to high school and law school on the same street. He noted the contributions of others, particularly to Cardinal Sean O'Malley, who also received an award for community service. Diverting attention from himself, John praised the robe-and-sandal garbed Cardinal for providing stability to our archdiocese.

Providing humor to the evening, the humble leader of Boston's Catholics warmly thanked Matignon with a delightful acceptance speech. If any attendees in the large audience were not aware of the prelate's down-to-earth-ness, they are now.

In the most poignant moment of the evening, a 1962 graduate was recognized posthumously: Donald Curtain died in a nasty firefight in Vietnam in the spring of '69. When a junior high class, encouraged by his future sister-in-law teacher, wrote letters to the corporal in distant Vietnam, he responded to the class detailing how he passed their missives around to the rest of his platoon: after 24 days in the mountains, they took delight in the messages, which evoked nostalgia about their own 7th grade doings. In his return letter to the adolescents, composed eight days before his death on a listening post guarding the perimeter to his camp, Curtain and his captain promised, if the students were NOT given a party at the end of the year because of their letter-writing campaign, to personally order a squadron of jet fighters to fly over the teacher's home continuously the night before her wedding to Curtain's brother.

Indeed, a wonderful night for a very deserving 02130 resident.

ROXBURY PREP PRINCIPAL SEEKS PUBLIC SUPPORT

To the Editor:

I am a Roslindale resident and am an involved member of the community who has been a Boston resident and educator for almost 15 years. I support the new Roxbury Prep High School in Roslindale at 361 Belgrade Ave.; I voiced my support to Mayor Walsh at his coffee hour on May 8th. I know the staff and students will be a positive addition to our community because I work with them every day.

This project means a great deal to me. I am the Principal of the school, a resident of Roslindale, and the parent of a 4-year old. I have worked and been part of the Roxbury Prep family since 2003. I am honored and blessed to do work for the young people of Boston. I know, deeply, the power of a high quality education as the daughter of immigrants whose pathway to America was grounded in a strong education. I have seen, firsthand, the power of a Roxbury Prep education and the hope, commitment, and dedication of our students and families. For so many of us, this high school reflects our promise to close the opportunity and racial achievement gap for our scholars. As a resident of Roslindale, I know our young people would offer examples of leadership, service, and community that would serve our city far into the future in a positive and influential way.

I share my reflections because I know for myself, my students, my family, and for the many like me who know the power of school – a permanent facility – is part of the fulfillment of a promise that was made when our students first came to Roxbury Prep – that they will enter, succeed in and graduate from college regardless of their zip code, race, or class. This promise kept in Roslindale will have even greater meaning since many more students will be able to partake in this mission as it will be the only public high school in Roslindale.

I ask my fellow neighbors to support the new Roxbury Prep High School so that we can keep our promise in a most powerful way. Our students deserve a new school and a community that supports them to this end.

425 LAGRANGE A NEIGHBORHOOD SAFETY AND AESTHETIC PROBLEM

To the Editor:

Ever drive by the abandoned Armstrong Pharmaceutical building located at 425 LaGrange St and wonder when it will be demolished? It's been over two years since the owner of the property, Michael Argiros, and his development team promised to have the dilapidated building torn down. It's been over a year and a half since the Boston Planning and Development Agency (BPDA) approved this project even after hearing overwhelming neighborhood opposition led by the West Roxbury Neighborhood Council and At-Large City Councilors Michael Flaherty and Annissa Essaibi-George.

Whether it's organizing events like the Perham Soap Box Derby or the Shamrock Shootout; our community is actively involved in making the Parkway the best neighborhood in Boston. Having a vacant rundown building at the corner of LaGrange and Centre is not something we're proud to have in our community. A decrepit, abandoned building shouldn't be the first structure you see when running in next week's Corrib Road Race.

The neighbors surrounding 425 LaGrange St. have been awfully patient and deserve better from this developer. I'm hoping our elected city officials and the Mayor's Office can take immediate action to get this building demolished before this summer.

425 Lagrange Street isn't just an eyesore; it's a public safety hazard which needs to be addressed immediately.

Memorial Day events in Boston

Boston will be celebrating and remembering the contributions of fallen U.S. Service members next weekend throughout the city.

The yearly Boston Common Flag Garden will feature 37,000 U.S. flags this year – one for each of the service members from Massachusetts who have died in the service since the Revolutionary War – at the foot of the Soldiers and Sailors Monument. The garden will be on display until Monday, May 30.

The Massachusetts Fallen Heroes program is hosting its 14th annual Run to Remember on Sunday, May 27 starting at the Seaport World Trade Center. The run is set to honor all service members and first responders lost since the Sept. 11 attacks in 2001. The run itself starts at 7 a.m., but there will also be a sports and fitness expo from and kids and adult events on Friday and Saturday leading up to the event. Go to bostonsrunstoremember.com for more information.

The Gardens at Gethsemane in West Roxbury will also be hosting its 50th annual Memorial Day Service at 9:30 a.m. on Memorial Day, May 28. Speakers for the event include Boston Mayor Marty Walsh, State Sen. Michael Rush, Lt. Col. Branon S. Teague, Gold Star Parent and co-founder of vices afterwards at the Roberts Post as well, and then a procession to the Fairview Cemetery and a dedication of the following Hero Squares: Legion Square, Shampa Monument, the Polish American Citizen Club, Leo Raymond Square, Major Albert Kelley field and others.

There will then be a demonstration from the Firing Squad and a performance of Taps. A visit to the John Connolly grave site will in honor of the Post's deceased Color Guard members will follow. Returning to the Post after this dedication, a collation will be served to members and guests.

The Christopher Columbus Park in the North End will also host the Honor and Tribute: Memorial Day Concert at 6:30 p.m. Also in the North End, the Prince Hall Freemasons will host its Memorial Service at Copp's Hill Burying Ground at 10:30 a.m. Prince Hall (c.1735-1807) was the founder of "Black Freemasonry" in the United States, known today as Prince Hall Freemasonry, and formed the African Grand Lodge where he was Grand Master. He was one of the first abolitionists.

In the Back Bay Fens neighborhood, the Veterans Memorial Park will be hosting its 72nd Annual Memorial Day Service at 11 a.m. The park itself has monuments dedicated to service personnel who fought in World War II, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War, and also honors Sergeant Charles Andrew MacGillivray, a Boston resident who received a Medal of Honor for his role in the Battle of Normandy.

Arredondo Family Foundation Carlos Arredondo and the West Roxbury VFW Post 2902. There will also be musical performances by the Oladipo Sisters, Demetrios Tsaniklides and the Commonwealth Brass Quintet.

In Brighton, there will be a service at the Evergreen Cemetery at 11 a.m. to remember all veterans especially the men and women from Allston and Brighton who made the supreme sacrifice in the service of our country. Prayers will also be offered for those currently serving overseas, for their safety and safe return. Celebrant Monsignor James P. Moroney, rector of Saint John's Seminary, will conduct the service, which will be held regardless of weather.

The Allston Brighton Veterans Association will also be hosting the Ernest Prussman, Medal of Honor Statue Unveiling at 1 Murdock St. in Brighton. There will also be an after party at Porter Belly's.

The Fogg Roberts American Legion Post in Hyde Park will also host its annual Memorial Day Services at the Post at 8 a.m. After services, the procession will go to Most Previous Blood Church for Mass to be dedicated in memory of all those lost in battle. There will be ser-

9th annual Run for Recess attracts hundreds

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The 9th annual Run for Recess, presented by Playworks, came to Franklin Park this Saturday with hundreds of runners hitting the track.

The event registered more than 500 runners, many of whom were Boston school children coming to take part in the race, designed to raise money for Playworks, but also to instill a love of running for those participating. According to Playworks, for many participants this was their first 5K ever.

“We lucked out, there was no rain and we had a lot of kids and families and I think that’s the most important thing, getting kids out here to be together to run and be active but also be social and just have fun,” said Playworks Executive Director Jonathan Gay. “I think we did really well, before the race even began we were halfway there so throughout the day, registrations fees and final sponsorships I think we’ll be there.”

Gay said they offer the race to any youth groups in the city, and this year they were able to attract several running clubs from across the city’s neighborhoods.

“We offer to any youth-serving nonprofit group the opportunity to come run in this race,” he said. “So we have kids from the Billion Mile Race, which is a New Balance initiative, we have kids from Soutrain Boston run through the Trinity Church in Copley, we have the Roxbury Running Club, a couple of high school running clubs, really it’s meant to be a community event for kids and families to run together in support of play and recess in the schools of Boston.”

Resident and park ranger at Franklin Park Ace Manet said he was working the early shift that morning at the park.

“They told me there was a race going on so I decided to come and try it out,” he said. “I think it’s great, it’s a little cold but, I think there’s nothing more important than teaching kids a little about themselves and their abilities, how they can overcome obstacles and they really like when we cheer for them so it’s really fun to see.”

Resident Charles Armstrong-Hicks is a member of the Roxbury Running Club out of the Boston Boys and Girls Club.

“So I’m a social worker at the Roxbury Boys and Girls Club, and this is the second year doing the running club, and we start in March,” he said. “It’s about two to three months and we race twice a week and we run every two days, always pushing them to go further and further. We run on the street as well. We’re very lucky to be sponsored by Brooks, which provides the kids with jackets, shoes, shorts, shirts, pants, and all that was sponsored by New Balance.”

Residents Nikkia Bell and Quonekuia Day came out to support their kids running in the event as well as the Roxbury Running Club.

“It’s awesome, I want to run, but I’m not going to,” Bell said laughing.

“We got to build another community here, I didn’t even know they had it,” said Day.

Playworks provides recess monitors in schools throughout the city and state and recess monitor Fidelis Teixeira said he works at the Joyce Kilmer School in West Roxbury, the Perkins School in South Boston, the Boston Green Academy in Brighton and the Boston Renaissance School in Hyde Park.

“It’s a growing event and Playworks is still a growing company and I think for this event alone this will get bigger and better every year as the program continues,” he said. “I think the run was pretty good, I decided to run today, I wasn’t planning on running originally but I decided to and I actually did pretty well.”

tive, in a phone call from the Bulletin.

“It was part of the South Boston Waterfront Sustainable Action Plan, which was released in January 2015,” he said. “Not all of it would go to the MBTA. Some of the improvements have already been made, including improvements to the #7 and #9 buses. But the number one goal is accessibility and improvements for people with disabilities.”

People gathered in clusters in front of billboards before and during the meeting to view proposed changes. MBTA officials stood nearby to explain concepts, and people could place stickies and write comments on pieces of paper throughout the room. Some fired back comments before the meeting even began.

“I feel like they have already decided,” said long-time resident Phyllis Corbitt, an advocate for senior citizens. “The #10 leaves this area and goes to Copley and Boston Medical Center. It doesn’t run good enough, and we can’t afford to take Ubers.”

“They talk about putting in the separate bus lanes,” she continued, noting that plans were presented in a prior community meeting.

“It’s just the same thing they said before. They never asked us. I feel like it’s discrimination against us.”

When City Councilor Ed Flynn learned that public comment was going to be limited to 15 minutes at the end of the presentation, he asked Jessica Casey from the MBTA’s Operations Department, who acted as the moderator, to allow more time. Most of the meeting focused on the public’s concerns.

“I think this meeting is a good start,” said Flynn before the meeting. “A lot of work has to be done before enacting any changes.”

Casey explained in her introduction and throughout the meeting, that her role was to get neighborhood feedback – not to present a final proposal.

“Part of my role here is to hear what people are saying,” she said. “We want to make it clear that decisions have not already been made.”

Casey explained that the community input will be combined with input from elected officials. Then, a report will be distributed to the mayor and the MBTA director for further study before final decisions are made on how to proceed.

Kristen McCosh, Commissioner of the City’s Disabilities Commission, addressed the need for compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act, which was enacted in 1990, and the overall goal of public safety.

“We need to make the sidewalks accessible, not just for wheelchairs, but for seniors and mothers with strollers,” she said. “We keep prioritizing Marty Walsh’s number one goal of safety as our goal.”

The most contentious issue, and one that caused a divide between long-time residents and newcomers – was the issue of a dedicated bus lane. Although it has been successful in Everett and Roslindale, which MBTA officials stressed, residents countered that their streets are denser and already impacted by traffic.

“I take pictures of the traffic every day,” said resident and City Point Neighborhood Association President Joanne McDermott, who asked for a traffic review. “There are three, four, five buses coming in a row between N, M and L Streets. I don’t think a dedicated bus lane is the answer. There are 2,100 trucks a day, and some of them park in the bus stop. Who enforces that?”

She added that many more people would have come from the City Point Neighborhood Association, but only the L Street area was posted with flyers.

“I am a 65-year resident of this area,” said a gentleman named Paul, who would not give his last name.

“I would have been here on time, but I missed the bus,” he added to the laughter and applause of the crowd. “I’m not trying to cause a divide here, but it seems like the impetus of this private bus lane is to make a private quasi-bus line for the newer residents and not the long-time tax payers.”

“We’re tax payers, too,” shouted a younger man across the cafeteria in favor of the bus lane.

“I would love to live here for 65 years,” added Jason, a two-year resident of the neighborhood. “We shouldn’t be prioritizing cars over buses.”

This comment drew boos and shouting from half of the crowd.

“It feels like we are having this discussion every year, and our concerns are not being heard” said David Beal, who noted the project has been in various stages for a few years without much input from residents. “What’s the process for going forward?”

“The pictures are falling off of our walls,” said Mary Lou Ivaska. “Our elected official failed us. No one listened. They just put up those posters.”

Residents spoke out against and for the dedicated bus lane throughout the night. Many were concerned that safety would be an issue in the busy streets of South Boston.

“I think we are just getting bulldozed,” added her daughter, Kristin Dearden, who lives in the same triple-decker on E. Broadway. “The baseboard is already coming away from the wall. There are already 500 buses a day coming down the street. Now they want more. And they are speeding, especially at night.”

According to a flier, public comment was supposed to finish in late May, with bids for the project to go out in June. But by the end of the meeting, it was clear to all parties that more time was needed to address public concerns.

One city official, who did not give his name, said that the City is willing to work with residents and address concerns.

“Don’t lose sight of the whole program,” he told the crowd. “There are an excessive number of bus stops. Some people don’t want shelters, but others could have used them during the downpour. You don’t want to throw the baby out with the bathwater.”

South Boston resident Father James Di Perri tried to calm the crowd while explaining the impact on this historic neighborhood.

“Don’t affect the character of South Boston,” he told the MBTA officials. “We have the beach. We have street hockey. Speed and efficiency affect the neighborhood. Just to speed it up for a bus is a mistake. And no one wants a shelter in front of their house.”

“Everyone knows the T works with scant time and resources,” said State Representative candidate Matt Rusteika. “To have so many residents come out shows there is real concern and pride in the neighborhood. We would like to see a more conscientious approach.”

“They are taking all the fun out of everything in South Boston,” added resident Earl L.

Recently elected State Sen. Nick Collins had the final words of the night, with arguably the most impact.

“I am glad that people had a chance to comment,” said Collins. “But ideas that work well in other places won’t work here. We have three large international businesses here, including Fed Ex, UPS and Amazon. Plus, we are the major transit corridor to the waterfront and downtown. We need to improve City Point in a way that makes sense and avoid the bottleneck.”

He described the need for better traffic signaling at L Street and Broadway and 1st Street and Summer Street.

“There hasn’t been a traffic study here for decades,” said Collins. “The legislature has appropriated $25 million for transportation improvements, and we want to get the best bang for our buck.”

Prayer to the Blessed Virgin

(Never known to fail!)

Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you.

Grateful thanks. —F.B.

St. Jude’s Novena

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world, now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 9th day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail. Publication must be promised. Thank you St. Jude. My Prayers were answered.

In gratitude for helping me. —M.M.

razed earlier this year.

“There is no building proposal yet,” Rubenstein said. “This needs to be approved by the State Asset Management Board. It will receive all your comment letters and messages before it meets on July 17. If they approve it we will put out a request for proposals.”

“The developer selection process will begin no sooner than the fall,” she said, “with a six month reply period. By spring we will have a developer on board. They will go through their own community process including the BPDA Article 80 Large Project Review and zoning approvals.”

Linn Tocci, Executive Director for Transitional Housing explained at the April 26 meeting that supportive services are key to the development proposal.

“This housing will meet the long term needs of the chronically homeless,” she said. “They need a congregate setting with supportive services to give them an environment they have confidence in. Case management, tenant management, a mix of a whole. The developer must show a provider partnership. It’s very key.”

The main hospital building will be emptied and beds removed to the Newton Pavilion at Boston Medical Center in 2021.

A planning consultant will be selected soon to determine the best uses of the remaining eleven acres including the Main Hospital, that is in disrepair and outdated. By statute the land can only be used for public health purposes.

The distinction between the apparently foregone conclusion to build supportive housing on two acres and a twelve-month planning process for the rest of the campus confused most of the forty people in the audience.

Pete Stidman, a Roxbury resident, agreed that housing is critical.

“There is a very grave housing need,” he said. “This is an opportunity for the state to consider all options. Consider the history of the site. Plan housing with the park. But you’re not starting right. You’re starting out by building houses and we’re being told what’s happening. In a planning process you ask first.”

There were no options for Louis Elisa of the Garrison Trotter Neighborhood Association who read a prepared statement.

“This is troubling and disconcerting to the quality of life to families here,” Elisa read. “It’s a lack of understanding of this community. It could not be more disrespectful.”

“You are pushing housing for undesirable people into Franklin Park. This was decided without direct consultation with the community. Taking public parkland for housing is disrespectful. We pay taxes. Tell Governor Baker and Mayor Walsh that our health and safety are not for sale.”

Matthew Goode lives on Crawford Street. He compared the proposed supportive housing to the moving of the Deer Island House of Correction to Southampton Street.

“I’ve lived in Roxbury since 1930,” he said. “Our land is being taken away from Roxbury,” Goode said. “I’m not being reactionary. I’m stating facts.”

Gentrification is taking place in Roxbury. Apartments on Crawford Street are selling for a million dollars. The School Dept. has been put in Dudley Square.”

“This is not about housing by any means,” he said. “It’s about people who live here that don’t have any power. This housing will have a negative effect. We have enough difficulties here already without this.”

Valerie Lowe lives on Morton Street in Forest Hills.

“My primary concern is process,” she said. “This room should be packed if there was proper notice. I know because the Franklin Park Coalition notified me.”

“This is being rushed,” she said. “It looks like a done deal. It should not be happening. Can the public come to this asset board meeting? To me there has been no public process.”

Sandy Bailey is a board member of the Franklin Park Coalition.

“This process needs to stop and restart,” she said. “This is former parkland. There is no consideration of this fact by DCAAM. This land should be returned to Franklin Park. There is no more clear public health purpose than trees and nature in this park. I hope this will be on the table.”

“This is a huge change from public health to housing,” Bailey went on. “A radical change. Private housing in a public park. So much of this park has been taken up by special interests; the School Dept.,

the golf course.”

Paul Romaro was CEO of the Shattuck Hospital from 2001 to 2014.

“This hospital serves incredibly important services,” he said. “Is there a role for a piece of this parcel to be used for the dire need of homeless housing? The park needs to be maximized. It’s a delicate balance.”

Sarah Horsely lives in Jamaica Plain and has volunteered at the Shattuck Shelter.

“There is an incredible need for housing for the homeless,” she said. “It’s urgent. We can integrate housing into the park.”

Mary Leahy is co chair of BacHome, the Boston Advisory Council to Ending Homelessness formed in 2017 and located at St Paul’s Cathedral on Tremont Street.

“Homelessness is very big public health issue,” she said.

Mark St John is a formerly homeless man and a member of BacHome.

“Housing has meant so much to me,” he said. “It has given me a home. It has turned my life around. I don’t think you’re going to have junkies hanging around over there. You’re going to have people like me who are trying to turn their lives around.”

Elisa stood up and confronted St John

“This housing is disrespectful,” he said. “There are other tracts of land that are suitable for housing. The city has destroyed 7,000 units of housing in the last two years.”

Matthew Goode faced St John

“No one can tell me that these people who live here will get services to turn their lives around,” he said. “You’re being used to force housing down on us.”

“I’m not being used,” St John said.

Goode then turned the argument to demographic changes.

“On Warwick Street where I used to live it’s all Caucasians,” he said. “The same on Hammond Street. When I went to buy a house in 1956 on Elm Hill Avenue I couldn’t because I wasn’t Caucasian.”

Representative Malia, the only elected official at the meeting, had had enough.

“Supportive services are very important to me,” she said. “This is not helpful. This is counterproductive. This is not what we’re here to talk about.”

She turned and walked out.

Steve Zeller of DCAM took the floor, thanked everyone for coming and closed the meeting.

HP150 to Celebrate Family Fun Day, Saturday June 9th at Kelley Field

Many residents of Allston and Brighton voted for the Rugg Road proposal for more than 265 units.

Representative Kristine Vagen said they have also committed $20,000 to start a Friends group for the adjacent Penniman Park.

“These funds are seed money to get everyone started on the program,” she said. “The design will be informed by the community and we will work towards something that works.”

Vagen said they will also be working to clean up the site for 40 Rug, which she said has been contaminated.

“The number one thing is to get rid of the vacant buildings on the site, which are contaminated,” she said. “There are also about 15,000 tons of contaminated soils there, and we are going to be doing continued groundwater cleanup.”

Vagen said they have already been cleaning the groundwater there but that it is definitely something they will keep an eye on.

“It’s gotten better, but we’re going to continue to monitor and clean it up,” she said.

Vagen said the staff at the building will include several security personnel as well as several building managers that will be onsite throughout each day. She added that the staff will also provide volunteer hours to local community events like Love Your Block.

“We do a lot of volunteering and we would have a corporate influx,” she said. “We would start it with one great event and we would clean the site up, but the whole point of doing the Friends Group is to have it continue.”

Vagen said they will also be providing several other community benefits, including 225 construction jobs and 14 onsite permanent positions. There will also be a commercial space available to local businesses at the corner, for which she said they will work with the Allston Village Main Streets to find a suitable business.

The ACA voted to approve the project 12-7 with several abstentions. Development Attorney Joe Hanley then presented the proposed project for 30 Penniman St., the paperwork for which has just been submitted to the BPDA that week. Hanley said currently they are working towards 46 condominium units at the site, and said though he said the future is always uncertain, he sees no reason why it would not stay as a homeownership project, something the neighborhood of Allston desperately needs.

One resident raised concerns for Penniman Park, as he said the new building may create shadows on the park in the afternoon where there are currently non. Hanley said they would be conducting a shadow study to determine that. Hanley pointed to the condo project at 20 Penniman as an example of their work.

“If you look at the new condo building that exists today, if you ever want to take a tour of the ACA and bring people down to see what it looks like we think it’s a great product,” he said, adding that 17 percent of the units at 20 Penniman are set at affordable. “There a real need for affordable quality units... These are state-of-the-art in a great community and paired with the development that’s been put together at 40 Rugg in that ecosystem; we think those would be great affordable units.”

Hanley said six of the units in 30 Penniman will be affordable, and added that the project will bring in about 100 new construction jobs over an 18 month period.

HP150 is pleased to announce a FREE Family Fun Day on Saturday, June 9 from 12 Noon to 4 p.m. at Kelley Field (25 Turtle Pond Parkway, Hyde Park). The HP150 Family Fun Day brings together a variety Hyde Park’s family-friendly organizations and features everything from a touch-a-truck center to talented teen musicians; from water sports to wildlife presentations. Hyde Park’s Louie Bello (winner of the 2015 Boston Music Award), will headline and emcee the main stage’s impressive lineup of entertainment while Karen K. and the Jitterbugs, voted Best Kids Band in Greater Boston by the Boston Globe, headlines the interactive children’s stage. Live animals visits from Trailside Museum and Zoo New England will be adjacent to water activities like free kayaking and canoeing, courtesy of Paddle Boston.

And the day wouldn’t be complete without the team from the Menino YMCA organizing various obstacle courses for all ages while costumed characters, magicians, face painters and balloon animal artists delight the crowd throughout the afternoon.

HP150 Family Fun Day officially kicks off at 12 Noon, but fitness gurus are invited to arrive early to limber up for all the day’s adventures. Beginning at 11:30 AM, people of all ages and fitness levels will gather on the main stage area for a Fitness Palooza: an array of demonstrations presented by several Hyde Park fitness experts including K Energy with Kelly Stevens Maher, Gentleman’s Gym, Fit Pit, One Step Beyond Cardio Kick Boxing, Personalized Fitness and the YMCA.

After exercising and enjoying all of the festivities, attendees can enjoy free ice cream from the Boston Police Ice Cream Truck or purchase lunch from a food truck while watching performance troupes from O’Dwyer School of Irish Step Dancing, Dance Academy, Riverside Theatre Works, YoFes and more! “Hyde Park is one of Boston’s most diverse communities in regards to its residents, activities and natural resources,” comments HP150 co-chair Scott Smith. “We hope all of the families in the Hyde Park community join us to celebrate our history, diversity and vitality.”

HP150 Family Fun Day is just one in a series of events being presented throughout the year by HP150, a volunteer community collaborative bringing together more than 150 Hyde Park residents and businesses. HP150 is being made possible in part by a $100,000 grant from the Blue Hills Bank Charitable Foundation. For a complete listing of HP150 Family Fun Day events and participants, please visit the HP150 web site at www.HP150.org.

Ask The Doctor

Junior Damato began servicing vehicles in 1969. He owns a 10-bay auto repair service center in Hyde Park and an 8-bay center in Middleboro. Junior is an ASE-certified Master Technician, ASE-certified L-1 and ASE-certified Natural Gas.

A pair of very different commuter cars

The first is the electric powered BMW i3, a four-door hatchback with a gas engine mileage extender. The electric power is amazing and travel mileage is 75–90 miles before the gas engine comes on to power up the electric battery. The gas engine is a small 2 cylinder that is very quiet and extends the travel range an additional 80 miles or so before the 2.3 gallon tank needs a fill up. Charging the battery with the 110-volt plug takes 24 hours when the battery is dead; charging time is less than half that when using the 240-volt plug.

The interior seats four and room up front is plentiful; seats are firm and supportive. Touchscreen display, radio, navigation, heat and a/c controls are all at the driver's fingertips. The driving is very different than a gas-powered car – it takes a day or so to get used to, especially the deceleration when lifting your foot off the gas pedal. The power is instant from a standing start to yes, way above the legal speed limit, without any hesitation or transmission gear shifting because there are none. This is a great car for driving less than 50 miles a day, unless you can recharge the car every night. The i3 comes in four versions: two with the battery extender, which, in my opinion, is a must. Base price starts at $44,450 to our test version at $51,500 (destination fee: $995). Electric vehicles are not for everyone, but if my travels were mostly local, an electric type hybrid would be on my shopping list.

Next: the Toyota Yaris. It has been a while since I had the opportunity to spend a week in a Yaris and, a few years ago, it was not one of my favorite cars. The Yaris has grown up and now I consider it a good subcompact car and a great Toyota product. Our test car is the Yaris – not the Yaris iA built by Mazda. The Yaris comes with either a manual or 4-speed automatic, our test car was the automatic version. It drives fairly smoothly and power is so-so, but not over the top. The car seats four and there is plenty of front seat room. All controls are in reach and easy to operate. The base Yaris L 5-speed starts out at $15,635 to the SE 4-speed automatic at $19,060 (destination fee: $885). Fuel economy fell short of my expectations of 32–33 MPG; I think gas mileage would be more if equipped with a 5-speed automatic. The car is easy to drive and park, with easy vision from all windows.

There are many options when it comes to vehicle selection – take your time, road test, and mark all the pros and cons on every vehicle you have an interest in.

Boston's own Junior Damato, "The Auto Doctor" has agreed to field auto repair questions from Bulletin and Record readers. Please forward your questions to news@bulletinnewspapers.com and we will do our best to get your questions answered.

3rd annual Walk to End Isolation hits JP Pond

Hundreds of walkers and volunteers hit the pond on Sunday morning for elder awareness.

Hundreds flocked to Jamaica Pond on Sunday for the third annual Walk to End Isolation, held by Friendship Works.

The walk was set up as a fundraiser for the nonprofit, which works to provide ancillary programming to senior centers and assisted living homes in order to bring seniors together and to get them out in the community.

Event coordinator Julie Kaufman said working with the group has been an amazing experience.

“I joined Friendship Works just about five years ago, I work on special events and development and I have been working in the nonprofit world about 15 to 20 years,” she said.

Kaufman said she worked with several other nonprofits throughout the years and teaches dancing at senior centers as well.

“It’s a population I know well and care about so it seemed like a perfect fit,” she said.

“We decided we needed to do an event and the board director suggested a walk, and so for the first year we had about 100 people, and last year it was a little bit lower,” she said. “We started out leaving our office in Downtown to our neighborhood office in Allston Brighton and we also had a shorter walk from our JP office. The combination of we were growing too much to be there and the coordination of three sites was so crazy, so we decided that since we have such a large presence in JP, we talked to Rogerson Hall and they said that we could use their lawn.”

Dr. Alice Bonner of the Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder Affairs limped to the microphone during the event, as her leg was in a cast.

“As you can see I will not be walking today,” she said with laughter from the assembled crowd. “I’m very sad, but I’m going to give it a shot as we start off because this event is so important in Elder Affairs and I’m so grateful I can be here hobbling along with you.”

Bonner added that it is particularly appropriate that the event was held in May.

“May is Older Americans Month, so it’s particularly relevant that we are doing this walk today when we do everything we can do to honor, recognize and acknowledge all of the talents, skills and wisdom that older adults contribute to community,” she said. “I was at an event on Friday in western Massachusetts and the two people who had led all of the work for the groundbreaking for a brand new senior housing complex out there were senior citizens. One of them was in their 80s and one was in their 70s, and they were fantastic examples, role models for us on what it means to age with grace and dignity and continue to contribute to our community.”

Residents William Mullins and Brendan Terrio said they were friends with one of the employees at Friendship Works and they said they came out for him and to help support the event.

“He wanted us to come along for good luck,” he said. “We’ve done it once before and it’s a great time.”

The nonprofit provides programming like visits, volunteer assistance programs, medical escort, Petpals, Musicworks, Relaxing through the Arts and the Elder Low Vision Initiative to name a few. While the event is over, residents can still participate by going to crowdrise.com/donate/event/walk4elders cases are pursued by which department.

The hearing was in regards to a bill to allow concurrent jurisdiction, whereby the BPD would have all the same powers of the State Police and Massport Police but without needing a hand to hold in court.

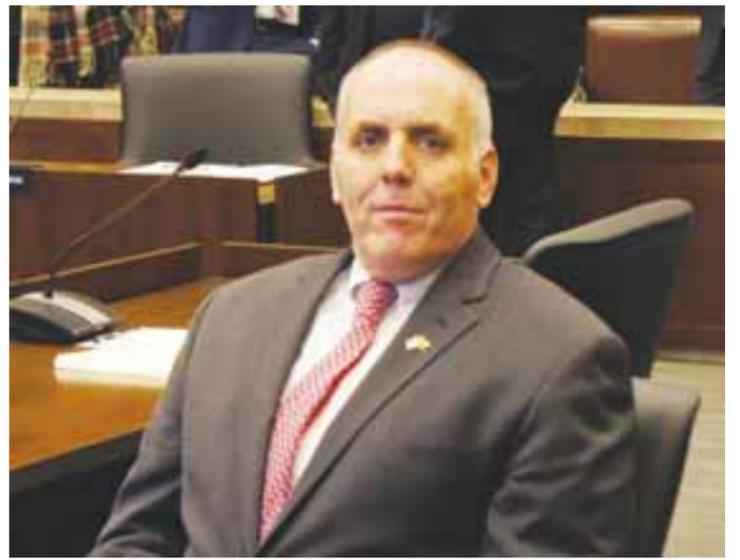

BPD Commissioner William Evans said his department has hit headache after headache trying to fix this issue.

“Obviously, this isn’t a new issue,” he said. “I know over the last 10 years, we’ve been fighting this issue up in the state legislature and I’ve been adamant about getting the right police agency down there to police a Boston city neighborhood. I think that everyone knows that the Boston Fire and Boston EMS patrol that neighborhood and people pay good money to live down there and pay city taxes and clearly they should get what I consider and President (Barack) Obama considered one of the top community policing agencies in the country, and it’s frustrating.”

Evans said that the area used to be patrolled by the BPD back in his days as an officer, but said that in 1997, an amendment was passed that took patrol duties away from them.

“This wasn’t always Massport at all, something was thrown in and we lost jurisdiction years ago,” he said.

Evans and McCarthy both said they felt frustrated that no one from the State Police has been able to answer one specific question regarding the new legislation in the statehouse to give the BPD juisdiction in the area.

“Give me one good reason why and nobody can,” Evans said. “What’s always troubling to me is that even up at the State House, no one even comes and opposes when I get up there and obviously that’s troubling. I have a letter from (Massport CEO) Tom Glynn here written, he didn’t show up to show his face but he wrote that, and I’ll just state a few things here, that he strongly opposes concurrent jurisdiction and he gives reasons about liability, which weren’t true because the city indemnifies us, and he talks about having 45 Massport cops exclusively assigned to patrol the Seaport.”

Evans continued, saying that he felt the large number of units in that specific area was not the best use of state resources.

“Now we can probably do with five to tell you the truth,” he said. “And he (Glynn, in his letter) talks about 67 State Troopers assigned to that barracks, so that’s 110 people he claims in this letter written 16 months ago that are patrolling the Seaport. We’re talking about probably five or six blocks down there that easily we can do with, you know we have three bikes down there and we have vehicles riding down there but it seems like those resources, with 365 cities and towns, could be put to a better use.”

One resident, Thomas Pratt, said he is a Boston Police Officer, and said he finds the current situation absurd.

“If I’m driving home from work one night and I’m driving by a park or a playground in your neighborhood, and something happens on Massport property and I can’t activate myself?” he said. “I have no powers whatsoever? The most I can do is call 911, and I think that is absurd.”

Because no members of the state police or Massport could be at the hearing, McCarthy said they would hold another later this year.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE UNDER GLM 183A:6

By virtue of a Judgment and Order of the Boston Municipal Court, West Roxbury Division (Docket No. 1706CV000190) in favor of the Trustees of The Village at Cleary Square Trust against Cesar Posada establishing a lien pursuant to GLM 183A:6 on the real estate known as Unit 19A of The Village at Cleary Square Condominium for the purpose of satisfying such lien, the real estate will be sold at Public Auction at eleven (11:00) o’clock A.M. on the Twenty-First (21st) day of June, A.D. 2018 at 19A Business Terrace, Hyde Park, Boston, Suffolk County, Massachusetts 02136. The premises to be sold are more particularly described as follows:

Description: The condominium unit known and numbered as Unit 19A, with a mailing address of 19A Business Terrace, Hyde Park, Boston, Massachusetts 02136, (the ‘Unit’), in the condominium known as The Village at Cleary Square (the ‘Condominium’) located at 54-64A Business Street and 2-33 Business Terrace, Hyde Park, Boston, Massachusetts 02136, created pursuant to Master Deed dated as of April 1, 2005 and recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 36794, Page 211, as amended by First Amendment to Master Deed dated June 29, 2005 and recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 37434, Page 126, by Second Amendment to Master Deed dated February 14, 2006 and recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 39341, Page 225, and by Third Amendment to Master Deed dated November 17, 2006 and recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 40839, Page 116 (the ‘Master Deed’).

The premises are conveyed subject to all easements, restrictions, building and zoning laws, agreements, rights of way, and encumbrances of record to the extent in force and applicable, including without limitation a certain Notice of Activity and Use Limitation dated March 29, 2005 and recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 36794, Page 170. The premises are also conveyed subject to and with the benefit of the terms and conditions of (a) the Master Deed, (b) the Condominium Documents (as defined below), and (c) Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 183A.

The Unit is shown on the Master Floor Plans of the Condominium recorded with the Master Deed and on the Unit Plan of the Unit (the ‘Plan’), which is attached [] as Exhibit A [to the Quitclaim Deed recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 55948, Page 215], and which contains a verified statement of a registered architect in the form required by Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 183A, Sections 8 and 9.

The premises are conveyed together with (a) an undivided 2.824 percentage interest in both the common areas and facilities of the Condominium and the organization of unit owners through which the Condominium is managed and regulated, and (b) such other rights and easements appurtenant to the Unit as may be set forth in any document governing the operation of the Condominium, including, without limitation, the Master Deed, the Declaration of Trust dated as of April 1, 2005, and recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds on April 4, 2005, in Book 36794, Page 314, and any administrative rules and, regulations adopted pursuant thereto (all of which are hereinafter referred to as the ‘Condominium Documents’).

The Unit is further conveyed with the exclusive right and easement to use Parking Space No. 24 as described in the Master Deed and as shown on the Site Plan of the Condominium recorded with the Master Deed.

Terms of sale: A deposit of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) by certified or bank check will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale. The balance is to be paid by certified or bank check at the office of Schofield Law Group, LLC, 20 Park Plaza, Suite 1115, Boston, Massachusetts 02116 within thirty (30) days from the date of sale. Deed will be provided to purchaser for recording upon receipt in full of the purchase price. In the event of an error in this publication, the description of the premises contained in the Quitclaim Deed recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 55948, Page 215 shall control. Other terms to be announced at the sale.

The Trustees of the Village at Cleary Square Trust, Lienholder, by their attorneys: Schofield Law Group, LLC, 20 Park Plaza, Suite 1115, Boston, Massachusetts 02116, (617) 557-4545. 2018
