

Oaktoberfest 5K nets hundreds despite weather

Hundreds came out to run and enjoy a bit of neighborhood flavor at the annual Oaktoberfest 5K in Brighton.

The sixth annual Oaktoberfest 5K went off without a hitch on Sunday, Oct. 19, with hundreds of racers and well-wishers coming out for the event.

The race was set up originally to help the Oak Square YMCA fund after school programs for the neighborhood. The Oak Square Y offers homework support, but also signature programs like Fun Choices that allow residents to gather around course-related projects for more enrichment or Healthy Movement which gets kids moving with structured physical activity. Since it started, the event has added a Taste of several local restaurants and also provided live music from local musicians.

Runners said they agreed on two things, one, that cold weather is good for running and two, the course was a bit hillier than they expected. Cambridge residents Adam Amsterdam and Andrew McIntyre said they were able to get around the an-

McCarthy hopeful for new Sprague Street proposal

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

District 5 City Councilor Tim McCarthy said this week that he believes once the comment period for the proposed development at 36-70 Sprague St. has ended, the developer will come back with a smaller project for the Readville neighborhood.

The project as presented on Oct. 1 will have 492 units of housing, reduced from the original 521. Jordan D. Warshaw, a developer with the Noannet Group, said at that time they included 128 condominiums because of requests from the community.

"I think that the process ran its course, we had a robust process and I'll give the developer credit where credit is due. We asked for condos, he gave us condos. We asked for 55 over and deed-restricted, and he kind of hesitated on that," he said. "But I think the sticking point was just pure density."

Residents in Hyde Park have been saying the same all October at neighborhood and civic association meetings. The proposal as it currently stands proposes four buildings comprising the 492 units, with the largest building being selected for the 128 condo units. The proposal was also shrunk by 75,000 square feet. McCarthy said the Oct. 1 meeting made up his mind that the project wasn't right for Readville, and he then drafted a public letter saying so.

"You know you're talking about changing a neighborhood. Originally he had 500-plus units and he then trimmed it down a bit and trimmed it again," he said. "I think the anger expressed at the last meeting made me realize that the developer hasn't really convince Readville and Dedham residents that almost 500 units was a good thing."

He added that he has been speaking with the development team and believes they will come back to the community with some-

The Stonybrook Neighborhood Association meeting on Oct. 15 and voiced concern with community benefits and another housing development.

The SNA governs itself through committees for each development. Josh Hanya and Kristina Tobey of Kenton Road are co-chairs of the new committee for 9 Kenton Rd., the development of the Keegan Auto Repair Garage; this was first presented to the SNA by the developer's attorney Jim Green at the August meeting.

The five story, 37-unit condominium building is proposed by Scott Johnson, who is also building on Brookside Avenue; Green was making a preliminary presentation.

Twenty percent of the units will be affordable using the density bonus and will be marketed as live-work artist spaces.

Greeted with customary criticism, especially by Kenton Road residents, a committee was formed.

"We hope to meet with the developer on Nov 4," Hanya said. "The area is zoned for light industrial."

The four-story self-storage building on McBride Street developed by SSG development is also nearing completion.

What's not completed is their signature on the Memorandum of Understanding between SSG and SNA on four community benefits. Years in the making, a committee

Council looking to rezone for marijuana shops and recovery centers

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The Boston City Council is looking to make sure that new marijuana dispensaries, bars, liquor stores and recovery centers are not placed next to each other moving forward.

District 1 City Councilor Lydia Edwards said the measure would have to first define what constitutes a recovery center and then figure out what is an acceptable distance for each facility to be from each other.

"We are not blind to the facts that Boston passed overwhelmingly the legalization of marijuana and making sure that recreational marijuana is accessible in our neighborhoods," she said. "So as the conversations continue, what I'm seeing is a theme in at least my neighborhood, which is where the location of these places are going to go. This came to a head at a very heated discussion recently in East Boston where we have one of the largest facilities, North Suffolk Mental Health, which deals with substance abuse and mental health issues. Next door, literally the next door, a lease was taken out by a recreational marijuana facility."

Edwards said she spoke with the owner of the dispensary and asked them if they talked to the direct abutters and North Suffolk Mental Health and the answer

DIA DE MUERTOS CELEBRATION COMING TO COPLEY SQUARE

The City of Boston is teaming up with Boston's Consulate General of Mexico to present a two-day Dia de Muertos (Day of the Dead) celebration on November 1 and 2 in Copley Square from 12 p.m. to 9 p.m. A formal event and speaking program is scheduled for November 2 at 5 p.m.

Dia de Muertos is celebrated in traditional Mexican homes where dearly departed family members are remembered by altars lovingly decorated with photographs, papel picado paper decorations, offerings of fruit, favorite food and drink, and candles.

Guests are invited to send photos of their loved ones to be displayed on the altar in Copley Square and join in the Copley Square events on November 1 and 2 to celebrate Dia de Muertos and those whose memories we keep alive.

Photos can be submitted online at boston.gov/dia-de-muertos. Donations of picture frames can be made at Boston Centers for Youth & Families locations at Paris Street in East Boston, Grove Hall in Dorchester, Curtis Hall in Jamaica Plain, and Tobin Community Center in Mission Hill.

The celebration also includes masses of fragrant orange cempasúchil marigolds, also called the flor de muertos ("flower of the dead") in Mexico and used in the Day of the Dead every November 2. The marigolds, with their bright orange color and scent, are thought to guide the spirits home. The City of Boston's Dia de Muertos altar in Copley Square will contain 500 pots of marigolds, grown from seed and tended to since August by Boston Parks and Recreation Department horticulturalists.

Pumpkin Float at the Common big success this year

The fifth Annual Pumpkin Float at Frog Pond went off without a hitch over the weekend. The event featured floating pumpkins, luminaries and family activities. Live local musicians provided entertainment as children painted and carved pumpkins either provided at the event or brought by their parents. The free event was put on by the City of Boston and the Boston Department of Parks and Recreation. Local businesses, teams, organizations and colleges also brought their own pumpkins to the annual event, during which hundreds came to see the display, including Boston Mayor Marty Walsh, pictured above. A monster mash of science activities included the Massachusetts Horticulture Society, giant bubbles with the "Bubble Guy" Jim Dichter, and Halloween giveaways. All pumpkins were donated to The Trustees of Reservations after the event for composting and not returned to attendees.

City of Boston
Mayor Martin J. Walsh

Council accepts more than $100 mil for greenspace

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The Boston City Council met last week and called for a hearing to figure out how to increase transparency around Tax Increment Financing (TIF) and other incentives the city makes with corporations to spur more economic growth.

At-Large City Councilor Michelle Wu called for the hearing, and said that the city has been burned on these agreements before.

“We see every budget cycle that the resources are tighter and tighter with more and more need around the community,” she said.

Wu said the he main categories of tax breaks that the City of Boston is offering include TIFs, special tax assessments and Chapter 121A and 121B agreements, which are administered through the Boston Planning and Development Agency (BPDA) for larger developments to make Payments in Lieu of Taxes (PILOT) programs. She said she would like to look into the feasibility of creating a database that would allow residents to look up all the tax breaks a corporation is receiving. She said it would help to enforce the terms of any tax break agreement a corporation has with the city.

“We right now don’t get reporting to the council or even publicly, you are not able to find through the assessor’s office the results of what happened in most of these cases,” she said. “Did these developers or companies make good on their promises that they got in exchange for breaks that then were reductions in our ability to fund city services? We’re not sure in a lot of cases. Our integrity and our ability to be the most effective advocate for residents is to maximize our resources to serve them.”

Wu said an increase in transparency while negotiating these agreements would allow the city an added lever to gain more for the city and not give up too much in the way of taxes when a new corporation or company wants to build in Boston.

“It’s not just reinforcing trust in government,” she said. “It’s also the ability for us to use this lever that we have to its fullest in asking for certain types of information that then spur the private sector, who are benefiting from partnering with the city and developing in the city to do better. It’s asking for information, not just telling residents the number of jobs created, but the wages they offer, diversity and inclusion numbers as well. Many of these databases go into detail on all these facets for what makes a good job and decent wages.”

At-Large City Councilor Michael Flaherty said these tax breaks had in fact hurt the city in the past. He said that during the previous administration, tax breaks were being offered to companies and the city was not getting any of the benefit promised.

“The previous administration was either forgetting to collect or was forgiving, and we can never have a situation like that,” he said. “Any time we’re going to get involved in a TIF, a DIF, a 121A or 121B those parameters are clearly defined and it is open and transparent and, at the very least, we’re collecting monies owed.”

Flaherty said giving more tax breaks without getting any result is a financially intolerant situation, especially in the City of Boston.

“We already have more tax-exempt property in Boston than taxable property, that pendulum has now swung and it’s an untenable formula moving forward,” he said.

The Council also voted to accept and expend $105.4 million from the surplus property disposition fund to complete construction of the city’s open spaces in the Emerald Necklace and the Boston Common. The funds will also aide the Old Colony housing community in South Boston and the Orient Heights Development in East Boston.

District 9 City Councilor and Ways and Means Committee Chair Mark Ciommo said the funds are divided up for greenspace into the Boston Common, Franklin Park, the Greenway, and the completion of the Emerald Necklace. He said there is $55.4 million appropriated for capital projects and will be combined with $1.6 million in the fiscal year 2019 capital budget, and will include $23 million specially for Franklin Park, $23 million for the Boston Common and $11 million for the Emerald Necklace. There is also $35 million for the BHA, $25 million for Old Colony and $10 million for Orient Heights.

Ciommo said $15 million will be set aside for new trust funds divided into three separate funds, $5 million for the enhanced maintenance of the Boston Common, Franklin Park and the Greenway. Ciommo said the funds have come out of the sale of the Winthrop Square Garage, which was purchased by Millennium Partners last month. Millennium paid $165 million for the whole site and the $104 million is the “down payment” to the city.

“This order represents a rare opportunity to fund important capital projects in our city, and it provides greenspaces and outdated housing developments as well as invests money into the maintenance and care of our parks in perpetuity,” Ciommo said.

WHAT WINTER?

Forget what a famous poet once said about April: September is the cruelest month. It is the month of transitions. It is a month of dying and grey skies. It is the time of year when the warm winds of summer finally give in to the cold air that will fill our lungs for months to come.

Once again, we in Boston do not care about any of that. The Red Sox are bracing 40-degree winds to bring us the “summer classic.”

If a local sports fan was to wisely bet money on what local franchise would win their respective championship, the smart bucks would nearly always go in favor of the New England Patriots. They have done it many times before; so many, that we are indeed spoiled. The Sox, on the other hand, have shaken off whatever “curse” book writers could try to conjure, to win multiple titles of their own. The historic success of the Bruins and Celtics, combined with their future prospects, add to how fortunate we are here.

With one win already under our belts, the World Series is off to a great start. We know full well, however, that just as leaves flutter from trees and icy air rolls in, that disaster is always a strike away. Nothing is won until all is won. It is an attitude born of equal parts work ethic and hard lessons of the past.

So, Red Sox fans, we toast you for your hope, your realism, and stress strategies. We toast your loyalty, faithfulness, and ability to always make “the right call” the next morning. We toast your resiliency, ability to scoff at what the temperature says inside that little bandbox of a ballpark.

We applaud that spark of life that helps us all cope with a rough change of seasons.

Let us all hope for a good season, and a series that sees our streets joyous, and safe. If we are very fortunate, all of this is ultimately a trial run for more rings, Duck Boats, and banners. At the very least, let’s walk away from the 2018 season with fond memories and a chant promising to come back for more next year.

Have fun, everyone.

Charlie, we hardly knew ye

Until Ken Burns and Lynn Novick’s classic television series about Vietnam, narrated in stentorian tones by the legendary Peter Coyote, aired on television for a half dozen nights about a year ago, few Bostonians realized that a Boston Public School administrator endured so much in the battlefields of that country. While some may have been aware of his background, most were oblivious of Roger Harris’ grueling life in the military.

And so it was with a neighbor. His house was not that close to ours but nevertheless he was a friendly neighbor in Precinct 6. And what a backstory to Charlie O’Neil’s 72-year life!

To many he was “just” a police officer. It’s always nice to have a cop in the general neighborhood, just as it is nice to have a mechanic, plumber, electrician, carpenter, nurse, and firefighter (doctors always seem to live in the suburbs) living nearby: you never know when you might need some

My Kind of Town/

quick advice or thoughtful action.

Before he could see his new grandchild, Charlie died on October 10th of this year after a bout—or should I say two bouts—with cancer. The secondary fight with cancer was a result of Agent Orange, so you might infer where this piece is heading.

Charlie served with the Army 1st Infantry in Vietnam. While serving our country (and fighting for the country of Vietnam against communist terrorists), he was the recipient of a Bronze Star Medal with a “V” for valor, two Bronze Service Stars, a Purple Heart, Presidential Unit Citation and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry—the receipt of all of which were unknown to many of us.

After leaving the service, he became a state trooper. Following six years as a “statie,” he joined the Boston Police Department, rising to the rank of sergeant. Before retiring, he spent most of his career working in Special Operations and driving a motorcycle.

With all these awards for valor garnered in Southeast Asian, there is no doubt that if a thief were breaking into my house, our family would have wanted Charlie O’Neil or some clone of his to be the responding officer.

May you rest in the peace you so well deserve, Charlie.

Applications being accepted for Boston School Committee

Martin J. Walsh today announced that applications are being accepted by the Citizens Nominating Panel, for two open positions on the Boston School Committee, opening in January 2019. The deadline to submit applications is November 13, 2018.

The Boston School Committee is the governing body of the Boston Public Schools. The School Committee is responsible for:

- * Defining the vision, mission and goals of the Boston Public Schools;

- * Establishing and monitoring the annual operating budget;

- * Hiring, managing and evaluating the Superintendent; and

- * Setting and reviewing district policies and practices

The seven members of the School Committee are Boston residents appointed by the Mayor to serve four-year staggered terms. The Mayor appoints members from a list of candidates recommended by a 13-member Citizens Nominating Panel composed of parents, teachers, principals and representatives of the business and higher education communities. The Committee also includes a non-voting student member of the Boston

Student Advisory Council.

The School Committee meets approximately twice per month during the school year to adopt, review and modify policies and practices that support teaching, learning and improved student achievement. With the exception of executive sessions, Committee meetings are open to the public, feature public comment periods and are broadcasted on Boston City TV.

Applications for the Boston School Committee can be found online <https://www.bostonpublicschools.org/domain/162>.

ENOUGH ALREADY WITH DNA DISCUSSIONS

To the Editor:

As we close in on what could be the most important midterm election in decades, I so wish that the whole controversy over whether or not US Senator Elizabeth Warren is or isn’t a Native American was over.

The announcement that she had a DNA test done proved that somewhere far in her family’s distant past she indeed did have some Indian blood as her family’s oral history had kept alive in generations of her family’s life.

She now has proven she has Native American in her DNA, but as many Native American tribes state DNA does not alone make you a Native American. Most Americans of European origin also have some low level Native American DNA.

I believe the decision to use her DNA findings as a TV campaign commercial only made matters politically worse for her. However, DNA should have never been a campaign issue from the get-go. Her handling of it now only keeps the

CITY OF BOSTON KICKS OFF EARLY VOTING

The City of Boston today began its two-week early voting period for the November 6, 2018 State Election. "Vote Early Boston" runs through Friday, November 2, 2018, and City Hall is Boston's main early voting site, with voting from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Voters are encouraged to enter City Hall through the North Side entrance to access the early voting location on the second floor.

Neighborhood "pop up" polling locations will be available throughout the City on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 12 p.m. to 8 p.m. during the early voting period. On Saturday, October 27 and Sunday, October 28, there will be nine early voting locations open -- one in each City Council District -- from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Voters may also vote early by mail or return their ballots in person at any early voting location. Voters interested in voting by mail must send their early voting request by 12 p.m. on Friday, November 2. Unlike Absentee Voting, no excuse is needed to vote early. Any registered Boston voter can vote early at any early voting location.

All early voting sites are equipped with electronic poll books for voter check in. Voters are advised that state-issued identifications are optional for quicker "check in," but are not required. Early voting locations are well staffed with poll workers and interpreters, and fully accessible to voters with disabilities.

At the end of each day, all voted ballots will be secured and sent to each voter's precinct to be counted on Election Day with all other ballots.

Early voting was made possible by the Acts of 2014. During the 2016 inaugural early voting period, over 47,000 voters, representing over 17 percent of the total ballots cast, participated in early voting.

Voters are encouraged to share their early voting experience on social media using the hashtag #VoteEarlyBoston. For more information, please visit boston.gov/departments/elections/vote-early-boston.

Walk for the Poor expanding in 9th year

Hundreds of residents came out on Sunday for the ninth annual Walk for the Poor At the Holy Name School in West Roxbury.

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The ninth annual St. Vincent de Paul Society Walk for the Poor attracted hundreds of local residents wishing to help those in the community on Sunday, Oct. 21.

The walk was created to benefit residents in the parish of the Holy Name Church in West Roxbury, but organizer Paul Clark said that this year they've expanded into other areas. He said St. John Chrysostom in West Roxbury, Sacred Heart in Roslindale, Our Lady of Lords in Jamaica Plain and Most Precious Blood in Hyde Park also participated.

"This year we're expecting a big increase in participation, as we've been fortunate enough to have four other parishes join us," he said. "They're all publicizing it in their own parishes, bringing their own walkers and they're raising their own money. The money they raise is going to go to their own communities. Those parishes might stay with us in the years to come, or this might just be a training ground for them to have their own events in the future."

Clark said they raise thousands of dollars at every event to help residents pay for food and necessities in the community.

"The funds vary by years, but generally it's been between $7,000 to $12,000 a year," he said. "It's been growing every year and the weather has always cooperated. There's a lot of good we do, people see it every week. We help if people need money for paying bills, basic needs, fuel assistance, food or anything like that."

Clark said the community has grown to support the walk every year and he's happy they are able to help so much.

"It feels great. When we do stuff to help people, you know we're just doing it for ourselves," he said. "We're doing it for Christ and we're doing it as representatives of the church community, and it feels good that we have so much support. It's not just us, it's the whole parish community. People see us doing well and they want to help. It's a great thing."

Resident Patricia Itri said she finds it difficult with her hectic schedule to find time to help raise money for the causes she believes in, but said this was one of the events she makes time for.

"I mean I work full-time at the West Roxbury VA, and it's very difficult for me unless I donate a card for the holidays or buy a ham or something, or give somebody money, but working Monday through Friday it's very hard to find some way to help out on the weekdays," she said. "I want to give back somehow, it's the least I could do. I have to do something as a way to say thank you."

Father Marty McNulty of the Holy Name Parish said he has been going to the planning meetings for the event and is happy to finally see it come to fruition.

"I go to the meetings every week and I think this is great," he said. "Hopefully we get more and more people to show up, as Paul was saying it raises thousands of dollars for those in need, so it's a great event."

Residents, Suzane McDermot and Chloe Lendaro said this was their first time coming to the event, as St. John's had just joined.

"We had a member of the St. Vincent de Paul come to one of our gatherings and we found out really where the money goes to in the community," said Lendaro. "It goes to the children and the parents and we thought it was great for the children and great for us so why not?"

Younger residents from St. John's, Jack MacIver, Aiden Finnigan, Connor Donovan, Fion Ryan, Mike Lendaro and Sam O'Brien all said they were amazed at the support the community throws behind the event.

"We decided to come out and help out however we can, and I think it's a solid cause," said Finnigan. "I mean it's helping a lot of people."

"There's a lot of people in need," said Ryan.

Resident Elizabeth Burke pointed out that the event doesn't discriminate solely on neighborhood lines, and will help nearly anyone who asks.

"I mean the boundaries are shaky; we're not going to tell someone we're not going to help them because they live in Holy Name or Sacred Heart, we all do what we can," she said.

Resident Mary Ann Cronin added she's happy the organization can donate as much as it can to the cause.

The wonderful thing about St. Vincent de Paul is there is no overhead, no administrators, so everything that's raised goes to families in the community,"

Boston reaches major milestone in ensuring park access for all residents

Mayor Martin J. Walsh and The Trust for Public Land announced recently the City of Boston reached a major milestone in ensuring that all Boston residents have a park within a 10-minute walk of home. The announcement stems from Boston's championing of the 10-Minute Walk to a Park Campaign, a joint effort by the Trust for Public Land, National Recreation and Park Association, and Urban Land Institute, working to bring easy and equitable access to green spaces to everyone in the United States.

"In Boston, we are proud of our world-class park system and the investments that have been made," said Mayor Walsh. "Reaching this milestone is a big step for our city to ensure that every resident, no matter the neighborhood, has a high-quality park or open space within a 10-minute walk of home. There is still much work to be done, and we are working every day to make our park system the best in the world."

"Everyone deserves a quality park within a 10-minute walk of home," said Diane Regas, President and CEO of the Trust for Public Land. "Today marks an enormous achievement based on years of dedicated and thoughtful planning by the City of Boston. Our research tells us that close-to-home access to parks are vital for public health, clean environments, and thriving, equitable communities."

The Trust for Public Land has worked with Boston and cities across the country, park advocates and the public to determine exactly where parks are needed most. The Trust for Public Land's ParkServe database is the first free, open access national data platform mapping park access in more than 14,000 cities and towns - home to more than 260 million Americans. Boston is the second major city in the United States, following San Francisco, to hit the milestone of ensuring all residents have a park within a 10-minute walk of home.

"Our goal is to have high quality, safe, accessible parks for all Bostonians," said Christopher Cook, Chief of Environment, Energy and Open Space. "We are proud of this accomplishment and grateful to Mayor Walsh for his steadfast support and belief in the importance of parks and open spaces for the health and vitality of all who live in Boston."

This week, Mayor Walsh rolled out a comprehensive and transformative vision that will invest in Boston's waterfront to protect the City's residents, homes, jobs, and infrastructure against the impacts of rising sea level and climate change. Resilient Boston Harbor lays out strategies along Boston's 47-mile shoreline that include elevated landscapes, enhanced waterfront parks, flood resilient buildings, and revitalized and increased connections and access to the waterfront.

Mayor Walsh allocated over $230 million, the largest-ever capital funding for Boston parks, through Imagine Boston 2030. This series of investments include the construction of Noyes Playground in East Boston, Reservation Road Park in Hyde Park, Garvey Playground in Dorchester, and McConnell Playground in Dorchester. Investments also include renovations at Franklin Park, Harambee Park, and Smith Playground. The new Martin Richard Park in South Boston will be opened next spring.

In addition, the capital budget invests in long-term planning for Boston's most iconic park — the Boston Common. The capital plan sets aside $500,000 to develop a master plan to bring the nation's oldest public park to the level of excellence commensurate with its historical importance and use by the City's residents and visitors. The budget also invests $800,000 into Franklin Park, to develop a master plan that will enhance historic Franklin Park as a key-stone park in the geographical heart of the City. The master plans will guide investments totaling $46 million over the next few years.

ABOUT IMAGINE BOSTON 2030

Imagine Boston 2030 is Boston's first citywide plan in 50 years aimed at guiding growth to support Boston's dynamic economy and expand opportunity for all residents. The plan prioritizes inclusionary growth and puts forth a comprehensive vision to boost quality of life, equity and resilience in every neighborhood across the City. Shaped by the input of 15,000 residents who contributed their thoughts to the plan, Imagine Boston 2030 identifies five action areas to guide Boston's growth, enhancement and preservation, and is paired with a set of metrics that will evaluate progress and successes. YMCA BASKETBALL JUNIOR CELTIC'S YOUTH DEVELOPMENT LEAGUE

YMCA of Greater Boston Junior Celtic's Youth Development Basketball League is Recruiting Future All-Stars Registration is Open through Oct. 31 Calling all youth basketball players! The YMCA of Greater Boston, in partnership with the Boston Celtic's Shamrock Foundation, is kicking-off of a new youth basketball development league for 1st through 4th graders. All YMCA members are invited to play in the eight-week program, which starts Nov. 3, at select YMCA branch locations. Registration is open now through Oct. 31.

The goal of the league is to teach youth players the values of the Boston Celtics with an emphasis on health. The clinic schedule includes a mix of large group activities and exercises, small break out drills, friendly competitions and improvement-based games.

How it works: Premiere youth basketball coaches will divide participants into instructional and recreational teams based on age. A current Celtics player and other VIPs will be in attendance to engage with players and participate in activities. Sportsmanship, positive attitude, work ethic and primarily FUN is encouraged throughout the season. Each participant will receive a special edition Jr. Celtics shooting shirt and team photo.

For more information, to register, or to see if and when a clinic will be offered at a YMCA of Greater Boston branch near you, visit: <http://ymcaboston.org/programs>.

BCYF CAMP JOY WINTER PROGRAM NOW ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS

Boston Centers for Youth & Families (BCYF), the City of Boston's largest youth and human service agency, is now accepting applications for the Camp Joy Winter Program to Boston residents with disabilities between ages 8 and 22. For twelve years, the program has provided structured, weekly opportunities on Saturdays for participants and their families to make new friends, have fun, learn and grow.

BCYF has provided thousands of children and youth with special needs with enriching opportunities through Camp Joy which has been operating a summer program since 1946. The Winter Program is an extension of Camp Joy, focusing on the same principles of inclusion, learning, and fun. Both Camp Joy and Winter Camp Joy are led by trained, highly skilled program staff who create a safe and nurturing environment for participants. While this program is specifically available for residents with disabilities, it is also open to all youth between the ages of 8 and 14.

The program will run two Saturdays a month (except for holiday weekends) from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at BCYF Curtis Hall Community Center in Jamaica Plain. The program is scheduled to run from October 20 through March 30. The cost per child for the entire length of the program is $150. Program participants must be between the ages of 8 and 22, be able to interact in a 4:1 participant to staff ratio and be a Boston resident (proof of residency will be requested). Transportation is not provided and a completed application is required. For more information and the application please go to Boston.Gov/BCYF-Camp-Joy or call 617-635-4920 x2402.

GIRLS ON THE RUN GREATER BOSTON TO HOST SNEAKER SOIREE

Lace up for Girls on the Run Greater Boston's inaugural Sneaker Soiree on Thursday, November 8, at the Omni Parker House in Boston! Proceeds from the evening of dancing and cheer will support Girls on the Run, a life-changing, non-profit program that inspires girls in grades three through eight to be joyful, healthy, and confident with a fun, experience-based curriculum that creatively integrates running. More than 1,000 Boston-area girls will participate in our programs in 2018.

The Sneaker Soiree kicks off at 6 p.m. at the historic Omni Parker House in downtown Boston. Early-bird tickets are $100 and on sale through October 20; after that, tickets will be $125. The night will feature hors d'oeuvres, drinks, music, and a silent auction—items up for bid include Red Sox and Bruins tickets and signed memorabilia, overnight stays in Boston and Portland, Alexis Bittar jewelry, museum passes, wine tastings, and many gym and shopping experiences.

For a fun twist, guests are encouraged to wear sneakers with their cocktail attire to embody the Girls on the Run values of joy and strength. To learn more about the Sneaker Soiree and to purchase tickets for this year's event, please visit 501auctions.com/gotr.

2019 Toyota Sienna

From the outside, the Sienna has not changed much over the years. From the inside, the Sienna is all new. Start with the dash and controls as well as the large touchscreen center dash display. Our test Sienna was the middle-of-the-road XLE model. The Sienna base is the L and the models go up from there. Seating holds either seven or eight, with front-wheel or all-wheel drive. Power from the trustworthy 3.5 liter V/6 engine is rated at 296 horsepower via an 8-speed automatic. The Sienna is easy to drive and has good vision looking out from either rear sides. Run-flat tires are standard on all-wheel-drive models; 17-inch non-run-flat tires are on the FWD. The solid running and very quiet V/6 has ample power from idle to the red line. The ride and handling is more carlike than minivan like. Heated front leather seats, cup holders everywhere, 6-speaker audio with NAV, steering hub controls, 120-volt power plug, power moon roof, blind spot monitoring, three-zone heat and a/c, power sliding side doors, and more are available. The quality of Toyota is all around the Sienna.

The entry level seven passenger FWD L model starts out at $31,115 (destination fee: $1,045). The LTD Premium seven passenger AWD starts out at $48,890. Our XLE had a couple of options including the $1,310 XLE navigation package with driver easy speak, Entune™ premium audio with 7-inch touchscreen, bluetooth and wireless technology. Special paint: $395. EPA: 18 city, 24 highway, combined 20 plus MPG.

The entry and exit level is low, as is the rear cargo lift cover. Fold the seats down and there is plenty of room for whatever you need to carry. Seats are firm and comfortable. After an hour of driving, I felt relaxed exiting the Sienna. The bottom line is the Sienna is a great minivan in every area and retains high resale value and demand.

Boston's own Junior Damato, "The Auto Doctor" has agreed to field auto repair questions from Bulletin and Record readers. Please forward your questions to news@bulletinnewspapers.com and we will do our best to get your questions answered.

nual Head of the Charles Regatta to get to the run.

“We liked it, it’s a nice course and it’s challenging,” said Amsterdam. “The food is great and the band is good. The first time we came, we had friends who ran a lot in Brighton and they knew about it and told us about it. I mean I know it’s not that far, but going over the river at the day of the Head of the Charles, you have to be committed to get through it.”

McIntyre agreed, and said the course pushed him.

“It’s out of the way for us and it’s fun, there’s a lot of inclines and this guy pushes me to do it,” he said.

Resident Ryan Walsh said he was happy to see the community coming together around the Oak Square YMCA.

“I live in Brighton and I just always come out for the community,” he said. “It just shows something about Brighton. Everybody’s out here, and it’s one of our bigger events throughout the year and everybody comes out to support it. It’s just a great community here.”

Resident Corinne Philips and Ben Buchwald said this was their first Oaktoberfest as well, and they both said they were happy to support the event, even if it was a little cold.

Residents Jen Gilligan and Kristen DiTroia said this wasn’t just their first time at this particular race, this was their first time at any race.

“We saw posters for it and we had been trying to take up running and this was our motivation to keep practicing,” Gilligan said. “It’s a steady hill and then a big one right in the middle. We improved very much during our time here.”

Residents Nii-Ofei Dodoo, Amoses Holton, Kyle Burgess and Nicole Adler said

“We live around the area and signed up for the local YMCA and we wanted to do something to help the kids here, anything for the kids here,” Dodoo said.

Winter Clothing Drive at Beth Shalom-Blue Hills

As part of its “Third Thursday Community Service Mitzvah Program,” Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills will again join with Interfaith Social Services of Quincy to conduct a Winter Clothing Drive leading up to Thursday, November 15th. The synagogue’s Mitzvah Program, operating under the Jewish tenet that “doing good deeds is an obligation,” provides service to the community by both congregants and community members. It includes and welcomes others, such as schools, houses of worship and community organizations.

New and gently used clothes can be brought to Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street) in Milton on Sunday, Nov. 11th, from 9:00 am – 12:30, and Monday Nov. 12th through Thursday, Nov. 15th, between 8:30 am and 4:00 pm. All types of clothing are needed for children, teenagers and adults: winter coats/jackets, tops, bottoms, shoes, boots, hats, gloves, etc., and all donations are greatly appreciated.

Please bring donations in plastic bags and, if possible, sort the clothing before packing. Clothing will be delivered to Interfaith Social Services in Quincy on Friday, Nov. 16. Interfaith Social Services is a multiservice center helping South Shore families and individuals in need since 1947.

For more information about the Winter Clothing Drive or the synagogue’s “Third Thursday Community Service Mitzvah Program,” please call 617-698-3394, email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org, or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

The Beker Foundation Awards $50,000 Grant to Boston Schools

The Beker Foundation is awarding five Boston public schools an allocation from the $50,000 'If I Would I Could' grant for displaying strong leadership in teaching and learning. The five $10,000 awards will support teachers to invest in their classrooms to enhance learning experiences of students. The funds could be used to implement educational programs and supplemental materials, such as books, technology, and furniture. The schools chosen to receive the award are Oliver W. Holmes Elementary School in Dorchester, William M. Trotter K-8 School in Dorchester, McKinley Elementary School in the South End, Margarita Muniz Academy in Jamaica Plain, and New Mission High School in Hyde Park.

School Committee Chairperson Michael Loconto. "We would like to thank the Beker Foundation for having a positive impact on our students."

"The Beker Foundation is delighted to support Boston Public Schools' dedicated teachers with the 'If I Could, I Would' grant," said Jayne Beker of the Becker Foundation. "Our goal is to empower teachers to think creatively about enhancing their students' classroom experience and to enable them to fulfill their visions. We hope teachers will feel inspired by their participation in this grant, and that their entire school community will benefit from the process."

Educators from the chosen schools will have the opportunity to write a brief proposal for a portion of the funds to be used in their classroom. Proposals will be reviewed by a selection committee of their peers and the educators chosen will receive the funds to implement the investment in the 2018-19 school year.

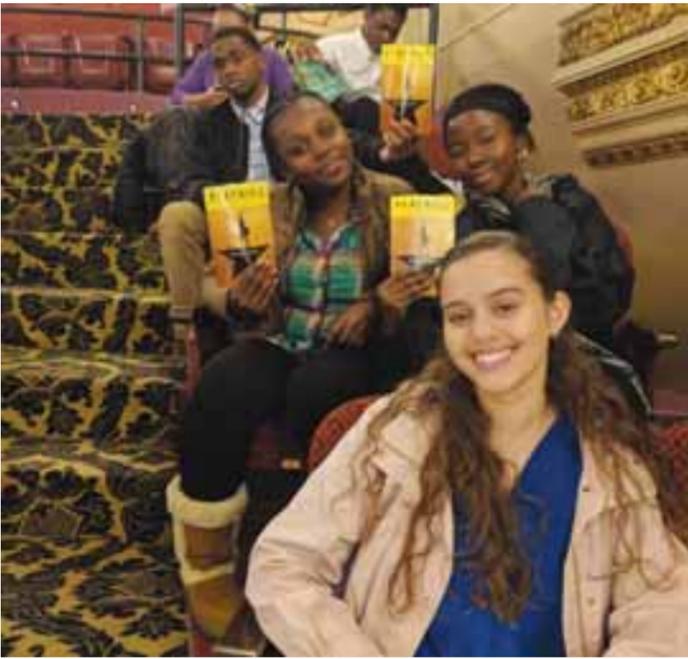

"Our educators work hard to provide our students with robust learning experiences and this investment gives them the opportunity to expand that," said Boston Public Schools (BPS) Interim Superintendent Laura Perille. "We are grateful for the Beker Foundation for providing these five schools a greater opportunity to grow effective teaching and learning."

At the end of the year, participating educators are to write an impact statement, describing the outcomes of the investment in their classroom. The Beker Foundation hopes that this grant program will serve as a pilot that can be expanded across the district in the future.

"As the district continues to focus on preparing students for college, career, and life, it is important that educators get

Boston Prep students showcase new take on history on Hamilton Stage

One hundred Boston Prep students were excited to earn a spot on a special trip to see a performance of Hamilton as part of the Hamilton Education Program.

Two Boston Prep seniors performed an original rap – a duel between Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr, inspired by the Broadway hit Hamilton – on stage at the Boston Opera House while their classmates, thousands of students from around the state, and the Hamilton cast cheered them on.

One hundred high school students from Boston Prep earned a spot at the hottest show in town on Thursday, October 18 as part of the Hamilton Education Program. The program, developed by the Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History, offers schools a curriculum that brings Hamilton into the classroom as a means for improving the teaching and learning of American history. The Broadway hit, authored by Lin-Manuel Miranda, tells the story of American Founding Father Alexander Hamilton through rap and hip hop. The Hamilton Education Program, making stops throughout the country, brings students to the theater for a full day, including watching original performances by their peers, engaging in a Q&A session with the Hamilton cast, and enjoying a full-length performance of the hit musical.

After learning about the American Revolutionary period and the Founding Fathers in Advanced Placement U.S. History, Boston Prep students created their own original performance pieces, in the form of a song, rap, monologue, or theatrical scene. Student submissions were evaluated to determine who would be offered a spot on the highly popular field trip. One piece, authored by seniors Nicolas Adeleye and Arius Thomas, was selected for performance on stage at the Boston Opera House. The rap, set to an original beat also produced by Arius, recounts the violent opposition between Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr as they battled over how to best help America take form in its nascence.

The rap begins with Alexander Hamilton, played by Nicolas, musing to himself. “A country that’s not a country but a bunch of states./No centralized power. How is this the USA?/State interest over all, it just makes no sense./ Interstate relations are starting to look tense./For long time now I’ve stayed quiet on the fence/But I refuse to watch our infant country rule itself under unconstitutional pretense.” Aaron Burr, played by Arius, responds by challenging Hamilton to a duel. “I challenge you to what they call/An affair of honor/No peace in this scenario/’Til one is a goner.”

Both young men fought off the performance jitters to perform in front of the iconic Hamilton backdrop in front of 2,500 students from around the state. “I was just so nervous,” said Arius. “It didn’t even hit me that we were talking to some of the cast members in the back.”

“Never in my life would I think I would be here. Stepping off the stage, it felt like a dream,” reflected Nicolas. Performing on stage himself was not the only powerful part of the day, though. He also noted that watching the live performance brought history to life. “Something about visually seeing an event, as opposed to just reading about it in a book, really changes your perspective on the event as a whole.”

Prayer to the Blessed Virgin (Never known to fail!)

Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you.

Grateful Thanks, M.E.B.

Miracle Prayer

Dear Heart of Jesus, in the past I have asked You for many favours. This time, I ask you this very special one (mention favour). Take it, dear Heart of Jesus, and place it within Your own broken heart where Your Father sees it. Then, in His merciful eyes, it will become Your favour, not mine. Amen. Say for three days, promise publication and favour will be granted.

tape or further convolute the access in this burgeoning industry, but the fights are happening, the tears are flowing, and people are intense about this,” she said. “It’s a citywide conversation we need to have.”

At-Large City Councilor Annessa Essaibi-George said that defining what a mental health treatment and recovery center is will be a challenge. Edwards pointed out earlier that a recovery house is actually designed to be “near temptation,” but a recovery center is different. Edwards said that it’s designed to get someone seeking treatment away from their addiction, and Essaibi-George said she wants to be clear in the language of any potential zoning amendment.

Essaibi-George also said the City of Boston does have the authority to amend the current zoning.

“Currently, as we all know we have a buffer zone that prevents establishments from opening within 500 feet of schools and within a half mile of other cannabis establishments; and this conversation is one that we certainly can’t wait to have,” she said. “Many of us have already heard of proposed establishments in many of our neighborhood and civic association groups. Many of them are ready to open soon.”

District 6 City Councilor Matt O’Malley pointed out that originally for medical marijuana, the process was dependent on district city councilors to hold hearings and bring forth proposals accepted by the community for the council to vote on. He said while the administration is well within its right to take that process, he felt the council should keep an eye on these proceedings.

“I think it’s important that this body again exerts its influence in our understanding of the neighborhoods. I would argue that we know our neighborhoods better than many, so I think this is an important conversation to have and I would even argue that we look at other criteria in terms of zoning code changes in terms of placement of these facilities,” he said.

The council will be hosting a hearing on this issue soon.

chaired by Burnett Street resident Tobias Johnson has been monitoring these benefits agreed to in December 2015: a community room, a mural, a bikeway connection of the SWC Park, and a community garden; all totaling between $600,000 and $800,000.

According to Johnson the quarter-mile park connection was budgeted at $100,000 from SSG and $25,000 from adjacent MetroMark. The funds are held by the BPDA. The community garden had been budgeted at $80,000, but the stumbling block there is who will hold the community garden. The Trustees, the successor to Boston Natural Areas Network, the largest owner of community gardens in Boston, has declined.

Only the community room is completed (with "Community" spelled out in metal letters on the marquee at Burnett Street) although this has not been turned over to SNA.

Natalie Kaufman, chief of staff to Rep Liz Malia, said that getting the bikeway was unlikely given two competing state agencies MassDoT and DCR and contaminated soil.

Johnson is frustrated that anything else will be done.

"[Construction] costs have increased due to inflation," he said. "What comes out after five years of negotiation is we will do well just to get the mural completed."

Yet this too is stalled. According to Johnson, the $50,000 promised by SSG for the mural has been cut to $30,000 because it claims the mural can be painted directly on the metal paneling of the building instead of applied canvas.

"They're nickel-and-diming us," said SNA co chair Rob Coerver. "What are we willing to fight for?"

In a straw vote, it was agreed that promised funding for the SWC Park connection would be moved to subsidize the mural.

Eva Kaniasty of Plainfield Street has been the chair of the 50 Stedman St. development that has been percolating for over a year. She had a bundle of plans and elevations that she used to explain the project.

Michael Forde, Sean Morrissey and Bryan Austin propose a four-story; 20-unit building with ground floor parking on what is now the Wentworth Service Station garage.

Forde and partners—operating as Helm Investment—are also building the 28-unit 76 Stonley Rd. which, after a three years of often heated debate with SNA, is slowly getting underway.

Kaniasty said her committee met with the development team on July 10 and she described changes to the roof deck, top floor set back and design of the multi colored row house.

Helm Investment had a pre-file meeting with the BPDA on June 11 and received a zoning refusal letter from Inspectional Services on July 15, 2018.

A Small Project Review application was filed on Sept. 11 and a BPDA sponsored community meeting is scheduled for Oct. 29.

Kaniasty said at the July 9 SNA meeting that neighbors at 41 Brookley and 33 Plainfield support the project.

But Mary Rigo at 48 Brookley was not happy. Her son Andy spoke on her behalf.

"We've lived across the street for a very long time," he said. "My mother was not involved. She owns two properties, one at 43 Brookley that abuts this development. She felt very left out of all of this as a direct abutter. Everything is proceeding without her."

"My mother might build on that lot," Rigo said. "Her big concern is the height."

The question was does a vacant lot constitute an abutter.

Fred Vetterlein, who owns property on Plainfield, brought up a contradiction.

"It's been a battle just to get that building down to three stories," he said. "It's beyond belief what developers will do. The neighbors really want this area developed."

Kaniasty said there had been community review of the project as she displayed rolls of plans.

Vetterlein was unsatisfied "We've had 40 meetings. It's all unproductive," he said.

Alex Ross, co-chair of SNA, tried to quell the arguments.

"SNA represents the neighborhood," he said. "We recap and vote."

Alan Ihrer said the developer should be stopped

"I support Mary. Let's take a vote. I make a motion that we contact the BPDA and the developer and request that the project be stopped until there is hearing"

The motion carried with two abstentions.

Andy Rigo was not satisfied.

"We will fight this adamantly. No question," he said. "It's infuriating. There's going to be a battle."

There will be more battles. Jerry Mello is currently removing the huge fuel oil tanks and removing all contaminated soil on his property that flanks Stonley and Stedman next to 76 Stonley and opposite 50 Stedman. The property fronts on Brookley Road and will be put up for sale.

thing more reasonable for residents.

"The development team called me and they appreciated my letter, they appreciated my honesty and they appreciated that we took them through the process," he said. "I think they're going to go back to the drawing board and take another crack at something smaller and come back at a later date."

McCarthy said, however, that to make Readville better, the neighborhood does need some kind of density to allow pedestrians to come in and make use of local retail and potential restaurants, but not as much as has been proposed.

"You know, I believe in the old saying that retail follows rooftops, and I think if you want to have a robust center in Readville, with maybe a restaurant and some shopping and maybe a destination point where people would want to go, we're going to need more density," he said. "The density at that scope is just too large at this time."

Neighbors would have to be more spread out in the neighborhood for McCarthy to support it.

"Maybe if he comes back at a later date, with perhaps 150 units or 200 units, something neighbors could see that the traffic could be relieved by the changes they were making, maybe then the residents will be able to welcome it in," he said.

McCarthy said he hopes the proposal continues, or another residential proposal is put forth. The area is already heavily congested with truck traffic and Amazon traffic from the area warehouses, and any new light industrial or commercial development of that nature would only make things worse.

"My biggest concern from the get go though has been what can go in there," he said. "It's not really a scare tactic, it's reality. We're seeing a lot of truck traffic from Amazon coming in our area, and it is light industrial (zoning) so they move in as-of-right, and they don't help our economic situation. It's actually a negative impact because of traffic."

Warshaw did say during the meeting that any increase in use by Amazon or the other companies there for light industrial or commercial could result in a 30 percent increase in truck traffic.

the resources they need to help our students reach those goals," said BPS Managing Director and Senior Advisor of External Affairs Makeeba McCreary. "Investments such as these are a catalyst for the district's focus on providing teaching and learning at high standards for all students."

EDITORIAL DECISION MISLEADING

To the Editor:
This letter serves as constructive criticism to the letter presented by this newspaper on October 18, 2018 from the District 5 City Councilor regarding the proposed 500 unit complex on Sprague Street in Readville. First, the Editor placed the word “opposes” in the caption for the councilor’s letter, when indeed, that word had never appeared in the text. He, instead, had expressed “I will not be supporting this project”. This is a significant difference as the person not supporting a matter can, at the same time, not be opposing the same matter. Our State Rep., State Senator, and a Councilor At Large have been on record from the beginning of this process, some two years ago, as vehement opponents in support of their Readville constituents. In general, we are somewhat pleased that the District Councilor has taken his recent stance but, without doubt, it is full opposition that is expected.

The councilor explains that “We have tracks (sic) of land unlike anywhere in the City of Boston”. It is presumed he meant tracts of land and these tracts have proven to be valuable in luring attractive light industries to this region due to the access to freight rail, commuter rail, and state highways. Some of these companies were recently forced out of their former sites due to impending development proposals and it is good that Readville can accommodate this diverse workforce, as not all workers in the city will be qualified for employment in “high tech” at the Seaport District.

Just a half a dozen years ago the BRA, under the Menino Administration, monitored a new zoning article for Hyde Park and this area retained the light industrial classification for the reasons described above and because this community was in full support. The current administration should not be allowing quality of life in the community to be jeopardized by outside interests.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts The Trial Court Probate and Family Court

CITATION ON PETITION FOR FORMAL ADJUDICATION

DOCKET No. SU18P1975EA

Estate of: William G. Dunn
Date of Death: 08/06/2018

Suffolk Probate and Family Court
24 New Chardon St.
Boston, MA 02114
617-788-8300

To all interested persons:

A Petition for Formal Probate of Will with Appointment of Personal Representative has been filed by:

Darlene Dinezio of West Roxbury, MA

requesting that the Court enter a formal Decree and Order and for such other relief as requested in the Petition.

The Petitioner requests that:

Darlene Dinezio of West Roxbury, MA

be appointed as Personal Representative(s) of said estate to serve on the bond in an unsupervised administration.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

You have the right to obtain a copy of the Petition from the Petitioner or at the Court. You have a right to object to this proceeding. To do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance and objection at this Court before: 10:00a.m. on the return day of 11/15/2018. This is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline by which you must file a written appearance and objection if you object to this proceeding. If you fail to file a timely written appearance and objection followed by an Affidavit of Objections within thirty (30) days of the return day, action may be taken without further notice to you.

UNSUPERVISED ADMINISTRATION UNDER THE MASSACHUSETTS UNIFORM PROBATE CODE (MUPC)

A Personal Representative appointed under the MUPC in an unsupervised administration is not required to file an inventory or annual accounts with the Court. Persons interested in the estate are entitled to notice regarding the administration directly from the Personal Representative and may petition the Court in any matter relating to the estate, including the distribution of assets and expenses of administration.

WITNESS, Hon. Brian J. Dunn, First Justice of this Court.
