Hyde Park Trolley Tour connects two Main Streets

The tour will continue this weekend and will connect both Hyde Park and Mattapan Main Streets with activities, educational opportunities and, of course, shopping.

The Hyde Park Main Streets (HPMS) recently joined with the Mattapan Main Streets in collaboration for the Main Streets Trolley Tour.

The idea started in the summer when HPMS Main Streets Executive Director Thien Simpson was still getting her feet wet in the permanent position. She had been a program director and interim director for some months and had just gotten the full time gig.

“So there was a meeting Downtown every other month for the executive directors of all the main streets with the Boston Main Streets and we were told there was a grant available called Connecting Communities Exploration Grant,” she said. “We received the grant for about $15,000 and the main goal was to connect different neighborhoods, and you had to do it with at least one other Main Street organization.”

Simpson said HPMS and Mattapan Main Streets (MMS) won the grant for their program alongside the other winners, Allston Village Main Streets and

Keeping Hyde Park Beautiful – with a Halloween theme

Even the remnants of the weekend’s Nor’easter – and weary Red Sox fans – could not stop a dedicated troupe of Keep Hyde Park Beautiful members and supporters from planting daffodil bulbs across from the Hyde Park Library Sunday morning.

“Let’s get this party started,” shouted organization leader

Cathy Horn, donning a glittery witch’s hat. She organized the second annual event with a Halloween theme.

“We were hoping that, by doing so, we would get more children and families to participate in a cleanup and bulb planting,” she said. “But with the downpours yesterday, and the rain this morning, that obviously wasn’t going to happen this year.”

MBTA issues coming to a head re: parking, fares McCarthy to hold Nov. 27 meeting

Mary Ellen Gambon
Staff Reporter

Residents of the Fairmount Hill neighborhood have complained about out-of-town residents parking in front of their houses and on their sidewalks at meetings for many months. But the issue became more publicized when it was broadcast on a local CBS news station on October 22.

“You shouldn’t have to walk back to your house because you can’t find parking,” community organizer Bob Vance said. “We are just not used to that in our neighborhood.”

He added that many of the people parking in the neighborhoods are trying to evade the fares at the MBTA commuter rail lots.

Vance has been an advocate for more equitable MBTA service for all areas of Hyde Park for years. He also has brought up issues regarding the current parking concerns and rate disparities among the different lines in Hyde Park.

Hyde Park and West Roxbury are the only southwest Boston neighborhoods with multiple commuter rail stops. Hyde Park has the Fairmount, Readville and the Hyde Park stop, which is located in Cleary Square. West Roxbury has Hersey, West Roxbury, Highland and Bellevue.

Ethos hosting Vets Salute at RTW

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The Ethos Group of Jamaica Plain is connecting with the Riverside Theater Works (RTW) in Hyde Park to present a Salute to Veterans on Nov. 4.

The show is the first of its kind for Ethos, in that it will be dedicated specifically to and for veterans. Only veterans and their families can attend.

"This is really an opportunity for us to highlight the contributions servicemen and women have made for us," said Ethos Chief Development and Community Relations Officer Raymond Santos. "We have women who have served all the way back to WWII participating in this event."

The day will feature food, drink, family activities and a special song and dance number.

"RTW has developed a USO-style show specifically for this event and so it's very new to us," he said. "I haven't seen the show yet, but they described it as a show saluting veterans in the style of the 40s, 50s, and 60s USO shows, so there will be lots of singing and dancing and it should feel very patriotic. It will also be very respectful of the sacrifices our servicemen and women have made over the years."

Santos said the event will go from 12 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Nov. 4 at the Riverside Theaterworks. Santos said they have hosted similar, but much smaller veteran events in the past, but nothing like this before.

The Riverside Theater Works is hosting Ethos this weekend for a special USO-style show based on the Canteen Girls shows made famous by Betty Davis.

"We've done smaller, kind of informal events for veterans in the past as part of our Seniorpalooza series, but it's been many, many, many years since we've done something like this," he said. "It's also the first year we've partnered with RTW and we're excited about a brand new show run."

Riverside Theaterworks Executive Founding Director Marietta Phinney said this USO-style show is a smaller version, kind of test version of a show she wants to bring to the city next year. She said the show will be a tribute to the Stage Door Canteen Girls, which was a morale booster site for servicemen shipping off from New York City just outside of Broadway.

"So they opened the canteen for all the men after the Pearl Harbor Attack," she said. "Celebrities from Hollywood would come and entertain them, and before they were shipped off they'd have some food and dancing. This kind of thing then caught on around the country, and young women who were aspiring stars were going to New York to become performers."

Phinney said she wrote the play from the perspective of five of the Stage Door Canteen girls, in a way that it is mostly through song.

"My main reason for doing this now is to pay tribute to our WWII veterans and our young men and women serving today," she said. "I've had to cut it to an hour to make this presentation, but it will be those five young women telling their stories through music and a little bit of dialogue. We're hoping to bring back some memories for the WWII vets who will hopefully be there."

Phinney said her grandson served in Afghanistan as a U.S. Army medic and now serves as a Boston Firefighter.

Santos said they approached RTW for this show because many of those working at Ethos and those they work for have strong connections to the U.S. Armed Services.

"Anne Glora's husband was a marine and both their children have been in the Armed Forces," he said. "She has a son in the U.S. Marine Corps and one in the Coast Guard. My grandfather served in the U.S. Army around WWI, and all of my uncles have served in the armed forces in one way or another. You'll find it's a constant theme among many of our staff and, especially, among our client base, and this is just an opportunity to treat these folks to something a little bit special."

Santos said he's especially looking forward to the event because of his family connection to the U.S. Armed Services.

"This is one of the things I'm most proud of in my family, the services that we've made," he said. "My sister-in-law passed away, but she was a marine and did two tours of duty in Iraq, and so it's important to me personally. I think in general it's a good thing to do, we can all appreciate how challenging it is to serve your country and it's also a huge challenge to the families who have to endure months and years without their family members, so this is an opportunity to say it was worth it."

Santos said the theater can hold up to 200 people, and RSVP's are required. You can call 617-477-6724 or email RSVP@ethoscare.org.

Prayer to the Blessed Virgin
(Never known to fail!)

Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you.

HONORING FREEDOM

With Election Day coming up fast on our calendar, and Veterans Day the following Monday, we read an interesting proposal that would affect both days.

A recent opinion piece in the Washington Post argued in favor of combining the two, moving voting day to coincide with Nov. 11. The day would then be declared a national holiday.

It is a brilliant idea on multiple levels. Having Election Day as a holiday for most non-municipal employees would certainly help bolster voter participation. Early voting is a huge step in the right direction for giving folks the ability to squeeze a trip to the ballot box into their busy schedule; a day off would be even better.

As for veterans (and those who honor them), we might imagine that some could object to the plan, seeing it as diminishing the impact of the traditional holiday. We understand those concerns, but feel they are unfounded. To start with, despite being a federal “observance,” Veterans Day is far from a universally-accepted holiday in that not all companies give employees the day off. The day, combined with Election Day or not, should be better formalized to ensure time off.

Unlike Memorial Day, where time off is spent more on barbecuing than remembrance, the colder weather and inclusion of civic duty might actually foster greater recognition and reflection. Veterans-related events, such as parades and breakfasts, can be paired with voting-related events in neighborhoods.

Ultimately, what better way to honor those who served, than engaging in the civic duty they fought and died for?

DEATH OF A SCOUNDREL

The prison murder of James “Whitey” Bulger should elicit very few tears, but a few understandable cheers. Good riddance.

We need, however, to look at the bigger picture of how he was killed. Basically, if media coverage is thus far accurate, the nearly 90-year-old man was dumped into general population, wheeled into a corner, and summarily beaten to death.

Like the alleged suicide of Aaron Hernandez, we need to question why Bulger was set up for what may have been a predictable result.

Our justice system needs to be respected. A life sentence should never become a death penalty because of either incompetent prison security or a desire to let the inmates dole out their own brand of justice.

The incident is hardly tragic, but a full and fair investigation is nevertheless necessary.

“Science Fair”: gone too quickly from the big screen

I missed it. The movie showed for a short time at only one local theater in the Boston area and, even at that, the times of the showing were only twice a day in the afternoon, then once daily.

The title of the film was “Science Fair.” It won all sorts of nominations and accolades at Sundance and other festivals. “Variety,” the official Hollywood publication, described it as “an ode to the teenage science geeks on whom our future depends.” More succinctly, it was characterized by one local movie critic as “giving us hope.”

The documentary focuses on nine high school participants at the Intel Science Fair held in Los Angeles in 2017, or as described by one contender, the “olympics of science fairs.” The 1700 participants hail from most of the 50 states and from 78 countries, as they bring their complicated projects for viewing and competition. The science and knowledge that they exhibit go far and above most Americans’ ability to comprehend.

How do I know all this? I’ve watched the enthralling trailer (formerly called “Coming Attractions”) a number of times. But I missed the movie.

The movie is co-directed by a former science fair winner from Milwaukee, Cristina

My Kind of Town/
Joe Galeota

Constantini. Still very young, she describes herself as a former high school nerd but it’s hard to tell that now about her.

It is probably safe to say that the vast majority of participants filmed in “Science Fair” are/were high school nerds. They admit to their lack of athleticism, usually a crown jewel of high school acceptance. They wear t-shirts sporting “We put the STUD in study.” Some admit that they can’t dance.

Actually, I cringe to even use the word “nerd” in describing them with a broad brush because it pigeon-holes them as lacking social qualities, disheveled, unkempt, unattractive, and other such negative descriptors. Nevertheless, it is also safe to say that many of these likeable kids have been bullied throughout their elementary, middle school, and high school years.

Would it not be nice if all adolescents could view this ground-breaking movie! Sometimes they are taken as groups to historical or sports movies, but this one is different. The movie could inspire them and alleviate any anguish in the spectators who are self-described geeks. If only the Boston Public Schools, with their 1.1-billion-dollar budget, could afford to show some of its students—say, middle school students and older—this inspiring film!

Science Fair focuses, literally and figuratively, on projects that will become part of our technological and medical futures. While spelling and geography bees are interesting, the knowledge of the content (Spell “schadenfreude” or name the strait on which Tierra del Fuego borders), is more amusing than lending itself to real-world problem-solving.

So, I’ll have to wait until some future date/venue to be inspired for 90 minutes by the movie “Science Fair: and all its effervescent, brilliant teenagers. In the meantime check out the trailer and perhaps you, too, will regret not having seen it already.

LOOKING FORWARD TO ROXBURY PREP NEW HOME

To the Editor:

As a Roslindale homeowner and current Roxbury Prep school leader, I am eager for Roxbury Prep High School to find its home at 361 Belgrade Avenue. I am in my sixth year at Roxbury Prep and have served as a math teacher and Director of Operations at Roxbury Prep Mission Hill and Roxbury Prep Lucy Stone middle schools. I cherish living in a community that our schools serve, because it allows me to interact with our students and families outside of school. On my daily afternoon dog walks, I frequently run into current and former students of mine who live in Roslindale. I live for those moments.

Throughout my time at Roxbury Prep, I have established tight bonds and maintained strong relationships with a multitude of our students across various campuses – including both Roxbury Prep High School sites. Seeing my former middle school students transform into brilliant, confident, responsible, young men and women makes me proud to be a Roxbury Prep educator. I have no doubt that RPHS is cultivating tomorrow’s leaders, who will serve as agents of change in our communities.

Having our students find a home in Roslindale would finally allow our student body, staff, families, and alumni to settle and establish roots. It will allow us to focus on the work that matters – preparing our students to enter, succeed in, and graduate from college. Our students can build deeper community across grades, rather than simply within their campus. Our alumni will know where to find us when visiting former teachers and staff when home for fall break. I look forward to the day where I don’t have to make two trips and drive nearly 6 miles between campuses to catch up with my former middle-schoolers.

Help us give Roxbury Prep’s high school students the opportunity to come together as a single community under one roof. I’m calling on my neighbors to support our college-bound students at Roxbury Prep by backing the site at 361 Belgrade Avenue.

SWBCDC to break ground on Fairmount Residences

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The Southwest Boston Community Development Corporation (SWBCDC) will be breaking ground on its long-awaited Fairmount Residences project in the coming weeks.

Chair of the SWBCDC Board of Directors Mimi Turchinetz said the project, which started in the Menino administration, has been a lot of hard work, but it has been worth it.

“We’re very proud and enthusiastic about the Residences at Fairmount Station,” she said. “We’re having a groundbreaking with Mayor Walsh on Nov. 15 at about 9:30 in the morning at the site... It is a long time coming, and we had a bunch of different iterations. There was some controversy on the site, but I think as people have seen it go up, they’ve been pleased about the architecture.”

Turchinetz added, however, there’s always room for improvement.

“It would have been great if there was more greenspace, but it’s going to be a great place for people to live,” she said.

The project will provide 27 new rental apartments for low and moderate-income residents, as well as improvements in landscaping and auto and pedestrian access. The building itself will also house a 585 square-foot community room for use by local civic groups. The area was considered a blighted eyesore in the past, and will also improve access to the Fairmount Station nearby, as well as the MBTA Bus Routes 24, 32 and 33. Turchinetz added the building is also very close to the Neponset River Greenway’s Bike Path.

Turchinetz said they’ve already started the process of getting those 27 units filled, and she said the timing couldn’t be better.

“We’re in the process of completing the lottery for the site and we really look forward to leasing that up,” she said. “It’s a major victory for affordable housing; I mean there were more than 2,000 applicants for affordable housing! That really indicates a need in the community.”

Turchinetz said they are also making progress on the Doyle Playground project, which aims to bring back the playground in a whole new way. Years ago, the site on River Street, near the now Dollar Tree, was a place for the neighborhood to come together, but the site had fallen into disrepair and the city took down the playground. Now, the plan is to create a park and playground throughout the site, and Turchinetz said they are starting to finalize their decision on a mural for the site and moving forward with other plans for the site.

Turchinetz said they are also looking to finalize their decision for an interim executive director and move on to trying to find a permanent replacement for

Executive Director Erica Schwarz.

“We’re bringing on an interim, and we’re trying to finalize that today. I think the community will be pleased and we’re searching for a new full-time executive director and I think that will be good for the organization,” she said. “We’re looking forward to some new energy.”

Turchinetz said they are also looking at new ways to get the community involved. She said

Assistant Executive Director Pat Alvarez has just wrapped up her work with the Summer Green Team, which is a decade-old youth jobs program funded in part with the City of Boston.

“One year we had the goats and that was really exciting for the neighborhood,” she said. “It’s really a collaborative and uplifting program for young people in the neighborhood.”

the remainder of 2018 and for early 2019.

The meeting began with a brief slide show of the Doyle Park Block Party held on Saturday, Sept. 29.

This event marked the latest step in the ongoing transformation of the long derelict Doyle Playground (located on River Street, across from Rosa Street). It also marked one year since the Sept. 30, 2017 clean-up effort held in conjunction with the DCR (Department of Conservation and Recreation) and The Mission Continues veterans' volunteer group.

Immediate plans for the project include the creation of a mural that will cover the green wall beside LePhare Church (920 River St.) which forms part of the park's eastern boundary.

Muralist Victor "Marka27" Quiñonez has been commissioned for the work, pending the approval of the artist and of the mural's conceptual design by the DCR, under whose jurisdiction the site falls.

"It shouldn't be a problem, but it's a formality that we have to do," organizer Alex Nadel said of the process, adding that he anticipated the mural to be finished by next spring.

The Doyle Park transformation has been funded, in part, through the Lawrence & Lillian Solomon Foundation and other revenue raising sources, but Thursday's discussion centered on plans to apply for CPA (Community Preservation Act) funds currently available for qualified city projects.

POHWER member Arielle

Spivey shared her assessment of the Park's CPA status:

"The CPA funds are literally waiting for us to apply for it. A lot of people have heard about Doyle and what's been going on, and they're as excited as we are. There's just one problem... because it is DCR land, the DCR has to sign off for us to be able to apply."

Nadel added that some sort of a Doyle Park community maintenance plan would likely have to be approved by the DCR in order to clear the way for a CPA application.

Member Segun Idowu suggested enlisting the aid of Sixth Suffolk State Representative Russell Holmes to help move the DCR's approval process along more quickly. "Hyde Park's person is probably not going to be the best person," he added. "But the person who usually does get stuff through is Russell Holmes, who is right next door."

Stating that Holmes concentrates on projects in his own district, Idowu further recommended that POHWER reach out to the East River Street Neighborhood Association (ERNA) – whose area is on the Hyde Park-Mattapan line – to bring the matter to his attention. "If Mattapan is attached to it, he'll do something," Idowu added.

The matter was left with Spivey planning to contact the ERNA, and Nadel stating the goal of having a Doyle Park application ready for the next round of CPA submissions.

In other business, Nadel spoke of the Nov. 8 forum to be held at the Roslindale branch of the Boston Public Library that would advocate on behalf of housing affordability in the city and against the displacement of lower income residents. The event is co-sponsored by RISE (Roslindale IS for Everyone), an SWBCDC partner.

"One of the biggest aspects of this I'm pretty sure they'll talk about is exactly the same thing that we've been attacking: the BPDA's (Boston Planning and Development Agency's) public review process," Nadel said, adding, "It's totally bunk, basically."

Going into further detail regarding his conclusion, Nadel used as an example the 36-70 Sprague St. project, whose second public comment period closed on Friday, Oct. 26.

Referring to project reports prepared in response to comments received by the BPDA during the first comment period – which closed in early April – he had this to say:

"We had a stack of about 25, 30 letters addressing the affordable part. They didn't even address that in the scoping determination. Not once."

Continuing, Nadel brought up another complaint: that on the BPDA website comments in favor of the 36-70 Sprague St. development, though in the minority, have been front-loaded, with undecided comments following them, and with comments against the development, though in the majority, at the back end of the list.

"They turned it upside down on purpose," Nadel said of the comment listing method. "I mean, they're doing everything in their power to make it look like there's support."

RISE hopes that its forum will become a series, the next installment of which it would like to be held in Hyde Park. Nadel proposed January or February for this forum, with the discussion to be continued. The next POHWER meeting will be on Thursday, Nov. 15 at 6:30 p.m.

Junior Damato began servicing vehicles in 1969. He owns a 10-bay auto repair service center in Hyde Park and an 8-bay center in Middleboro. Junior is an ASE-certified Master Technician, ASE-certified L-1 and ASE-certified Natural Gas.

2019 Subaru Forester

Subaru has been around for many years and the older years were not all good. Today's Subarus are very high quality, quiet and powerfully smooth, with no exhaust heat shield rattles or suspension noises. The tinny engine sound is also gone. Step on the gas and power goes through a very positive feeling shifting CVT, via all four wheels. The 2019 has grown in every area including size, towing capacity weight (1,500 lbs.), with LED headlights (both low and high beams), and SI Drive Mode to enhance the driver's experience. Steering hub controls the heated seats and a heated steering wheel; there is a large, multifunction touchscreen center display. Push-to-start and auto engine stop/start feature is available, and yes, it has a cancel button that keeps the engine running at a stop. (The button needs to be pushed each time the engine is started to prevent the start/stop feature from operating.) All Subarus are all-wheel-drive and EyeSight® Driver Assist Technology is now standard. Trailer assist, 8.7-inch ground clearance, electronic parking brake, power locks, rear camera vision, remote keyless entry, welcome lighting, plus more is also included. For a vehicle with high ground clearance, entry and exit is still low enough for easy access.

The Forester comes in many models with many option packages available. The base Forester with a manual 6-speed transmission starts out at $24,795. Our test Forester Limited was $30,795 plus the option package at $1,695 that included the Starlink™ Multimedia Navigation System with a 76-watt 9-speaker audio system. The 2.5 liter, 4-cylinder engine pumps out 182 horsepower. Put the transmission in the (S) mode and you can feel the different driving experience. The Turbo Forester is gone for the present time, but the updated and more powerful 2.5 liter is more than enough for most buyers. I enjoyed my week spent driving the Forester, a mid-size SUV that worked well in every application I needed. Destination fee: $915. EPA rating: 26 city, 33 highway, 29 combined MPG.

Boston's own Junior Damato, "The Auto Doctor" has agreed to field auto repair questions from Bulletin and Record readers. Please forward your questions to news@bulletinnewspapers.com and we will do our best to get your questions answered.

not have that much parking," Vance said. "So people have been parking on all of the side streets, going up to Beacon Street, Loring Avenue, and all the way up to Dana Avenue. It's public, so it's fair game.

"But it blocks people's driveways, sometimes from 6 a.m. up until 7 p.m." he explained. "People can't have visitors park at their homes or health care workers. And all of this started when the parking rates recently went up.

Readville does have parking, but the stop has a higher fare, charging customers the same as if they boarded in Dedham and Norwood.

"We got the fare lowered at Fairmount to $2.50, after much advocacy with the CDCs up and down what we then called the Fairmount Indigo Line," Vance said. "That's when the trouble began. But it's come to a head now."

Vance said he attended a meeting with Luis Manuel Ramirez, the General Manager and CEO of the MBTA, on October 25, where he discussed these concerns.

"I stressed to them that Readville to South Station did need much study," Vance explained. "Many have been done. The line needs to properly be designated the Indigo Line and treated differently than the Commuter Rail system."

The previous study, done by the former general manager at the MBTA, Vance said, did not count "interim riders," who do not go all the way to South Station. "So many people only go as far as Back Bay," he said. "And students can hop on at Newmarket and go to Four Corners."

"Having all riders in Boston pay the same fare should be done immediately, because it affects people in West Roxbury, Roslindale, Dorchester and East Boston, as well as Readville," said Vance.

He noted that state Sen. Mike Rush was one of two senators who filed a bill for commuter rail fare equity, which did not make it through the Legislature. Sen. Joseph Boncore, who represents the upper sliver of Boston, is his colleague who filed similar legislation.

District Five City Councilor Tim McCarthy, who represents Hyde Park and Roslindale, explained that Hyde Park is a transportation hub and a gateway to the suburbs. Because of its location and easy access to the commuter rail, it has become attractive to commuters, at the expense of residents.

"The parking congestion issue in our neighborhood is really threefold," he said. "First, each family in Hyde Park generally has more cars than their driveway can accommodate, which places strain on street parking.

"Secondly, the high price of parking at the MBTA lots discourages people from parking in a metered spot," McCarthy continued. "Commuters are now parking up on Fairmount Hill, in Readville, or at Most Precious Blood (MPB) for free, and walking to the station."

The third factor of the problem McCarthy addressed was that "way finding" devices, including Waze and Garmin, are routing cars "through our community at an alarming rate."

"These (navigational) devices are sending people off the highway, through Milton, to Hyde Park and through Dedham," he said.

To combat the traffic and parking onslaught the area is experiencing, McCarthy is holding a meeting on Tuesday, November 27 at 6:30 p.m. at the Boston Police Academy at 85 Williams Avenue. He will be discussing the use of resident parking stickers, which has been a topic mentioned at past community meetings.

"I find it amazing that in 02136 we have 3 different fares," McCarthy said. "Readville can cost a worker just south of $4,000 to get to work if they parked and took the train daily. That is disgraceful. The MBTA's own stats speak to the fact that the Readville parking lot is 77 percent empty every day."

McCarthy spelled out his view to the MBTA.

"Lower the fare and lower the cost to park - simple business," he said. "The MBTA has to rethink their business model. Boston residents should all be paying the same fare."

McCarthy said that he and At-Large City Councilor Michelle Wu held a meeting two years ago at the Hyde Park Community Center on the fare disparity issue.

"The MBTA is well aware of our problem with the fares," said McCarthy, who has also held meetings at City Hall with Wu on this concern. "As city councilors, we have no jurisdiction over the MBTA, but we will continue to be the sounding board for our constituents. I know that the MBTA is going through some internal changes, new leadership and staff. I hope they can be convinced that this Hyde Park issue can easily be addressed with the moving of a line on a map. If the fare at Readville and Hyde Park mirrored Fairmount, we would have more commuters, less parking on our streets and less cars on Hyde Park Avenue."

"It's such an economic barrier for people if they have to pay that higher commuter rail fare," Wu said. "It can be anywhere from four to even five or six dollars difference just to go in one direction each day. That adds up to a lot of money very quickly over time."

Wu, who lives in Roslindale, said the same issue is present with parking fares at the different stops in West Roxbury.

"We really need to make fares and parking more affordable at every stop in the City of Boston," Wu said. "And, in regard to the situation in Hyde Park, everyone should be charged the same fare for commuter rail service."

She added that residents need to attend both city and MBTA meetings and hearings to make sure their voices are heard and that these changes eventually are implemented."

Mimi Turchinetz, chair of the board of the Southwest Boston Community Development Corporation, said that she has been working on an upgrade of the Fairmount line with an advocacy group in Four Corners that included Mella and Melvin "Mel" Martin since the Patrick administration.

"We put pressure on the T and the state during Gov. Deval Patrick's administration to rebuild the Fairmount Line so that there would be stops in communities of color," she said.

"From Upham's Corner to Hyde Park, the SWBCDC has been doing amazing work trying to bookend economic development and housing around these stations," Turchinetz continued. She cited the new Residences at Fairmount Station as an example. "From here to Uphams Corner, we hope to see a ripple effect."

Although a couple of transportation equity bills died in the Ways and Means committee in the past two sessions, Turchinetz said she is hopeful that someone will pick up the torch and file legislation to bring capital to help solve the problem.

"As far as the Readville solution, because transportation equity is often seen as benefiting communities of color, Readville has been left out of the loop for some reason in the past," she said.

"There seems to be a perception to some, that Readville is white and rich," she added. "But the issues are not getting addressed. Rents are going up, Hyde Park is mostly a community of color now, and it is becoming gentrified."

Deaths

DEVANEY

Anita Finnegan of New York, New York, aged 71, died peacefully on Monday, October 22nd, 2018 surrounded by her loving family and friends at New York Presbyterian Hospital after a long and courageous battle with Lupus. Anita was born to Gerard and Frances Finnegan in Jamaica Plain, Massachusetts on February 12th, 1947 and earned her Master's Degree in Special Education from Salem State College. She worked as a teacher for over 40 years in Boston and New York influencing many students. Her passion was travel, visiting many countries and continents. Anita volunteered her time at many places, including St. Stephen of Hungary Church in New York City as a Eucharistic Minister bringing communion to elderly and homebound parishioners. She was a friend of Bill W. for 34 years. She is survived by her former husband James Devaney of New York City, daughter Micaela Darling, son in law Michael and granddaughter Stella of Chappaqua, New York, sisters Lorraine Neville of Redmond, Oregon and Beverly Lawrence of Greenland, New Hampshire. She will join her predeceased sister Joyce Finnegan in heaven. Anita is survived by many nieces, nephews, great nieces and great nephews living all across the world. Always elegant, valiantly strong and fiercely independent she valued her friendships dearly. A deep felt gratitude to all the dedicated doctors, nurses and staff of New York Presbyterian Weill Cornell Medical Center who have cared for Anita for the past 30+ years. A teacher to the end, she chose to show us all, how to transition to a better place with dignity and grace. A funeral mass said by her cousin Dominican Friar John Maria Devaney, OP at St. Monica's Church on Friday, October 26th. In lieu of flowers, please send donations to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in memory of Anita.

LoVUOLO

Kevin M. "Poopsie" Of Dedham and Plymouth and formerly of Hyde Park, passed peacefully on October 24 surrounded by his loving family at the age of 56. Proud son of the late Maurice "Sonny" and Hazel (Hope) LoVuolo. Devoted brother of Michael of Dallas, TX, Cheryl LoVuolo and her companion Rick Gramazio of Hanson and Jeanie LoVuolo and her companion Chris Stearns of Foxboro. Prayer to the Blessed Virgin

(Never known to fail!)

Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you.
Grateful Thanks, K.A.D.

Applications being accepted for Boston School Committee

Martin J. Walsh today announced that applications are being accepted by the Citizens Nominating Panel, for two open positions on the Boston School Committee, opening in January 2019. The deadline to submit applications is November 13, 2018.

The Boston School Committee is the governing body of the Boston Public Schools. The School Committee is responsible for:

- * Defining the vision, mission and goals of the Boston Public Schools;
- * Establishing and monitoring the annual operating budget;

- * Hiring, managing and evaluating the Superintendent; and

- * Setting and reviewing district policies and practices

The seven members of the School Committee are Boston residents appointed by the Mayor to serve four-year staggered terms. The Mayor appoints members from a list of candidates recommended by a 13-member Citizens Nominating Panel composed of parents, teachers, principals and representatives of the business and higher education communities. The Committee also includes a non-voting student member of the Boston

Student Advisory Council.

The School Committee meets approximately twice per month during the school year to adopt, review and modify policies and practices that support teaching, learning and improved student achievement. With the exception of executive sessions, Committee meetings are open to the public, feature public comment periods and are broadcasted on Boston City TV.

Applications for the Boston School Committee can be found online <https://www.bostonpublicschools.org/domain/162>.

Brighton Main Streets. She said it was a great collaboration with MMS.

“We decided to do a trolley tour, helping residents to learn about historic sites and (MMS Executive Director) Tina Petigny thought it was a great idea, so we worked out the proposal,” she said. “There were six other submissions and Allston Brighton was the only other to win.”

Simpson said although HPMS has done trolley tours of the neighborhood in the past, they were limited based on funding.

“It was a fundraiser for the past few years and this past spring we decided not to do one. We didn’t focus on that as a fundraiser,” she said. “When we were going through the rounds in the approval process, I knew people would like this because of the popularity of the trolley fundraiser in the past.”

This year’s tour will be bigger, and will have tastes from local restaurants as they go, as well as informational stops detailing the history of areas in the two neighborhoods.

“Throw in some trivial pursuit and a scavenger hunt on top of the tour and it’s a blast,” Simpson said. “It’s fun and interactive and it’s $10, making it very affordable, so we hope to have a good turnout from both the neighborhoods.”

Simpson added that getting businesses to participate for this tour is easier than in fundraisers past, as this is not a fundraiser.

“We used to ask the businesses to donate their food and time, but this time we have the grant, so we’re able to pay the businesses,” she said.

Simpson said they are also starting work on the holiday season. The 38th annual

The tour also includes a historical pit stop at Camp Meigs and the 54th Regiment.

Anderson Tree Lighting and Christmas Festival is happening on Nov. 25 at 2 p.m., and so is Small Business Saturday the day before.

“I’m on the committee for the Anderson Tree Lighting, so I’m helping those guys recruit some businesses to participate and have tables and give out samples, that kind of thing,” she said. “We also want to do a special promotion for Small Business Saturday where if you shop locally and take a selfie holding the receipt on social media, your name will be put into a drawing for gift certificates.”

Simpson said they have been working with the 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Regiment Company A Reactors for the tour, but she’s also working on a grant to bring the Hyde Park institution to the masses of Boston.

“We’re also working on another grant to help the 54th Regiment get some funding to be able to do some programming in the schools in Hyde Park and the surrounding neighborhoods like Mattapan, Roslindale, West Roxbury and the like... We want to let the schools and kids know we have this wonderful reenactment company right here in Hyde Park, it’s tough to get the word out there.”

Cherokee heritage. Warren published her resume which noted her race as American Indian in a hiring guide for law schools. In 2012 Warren said in a statement, "As I have confirmed before, I let people know about my Native American heritage in a national directory of law school personnel." All people put qualifications on their resumes that they hope will advance their career. Harvard was under pressure by racial activists to hire minority law professors when they hired Warren. Harvard refuses to release her hiring file. After she was hired by Harvard Law she was publicly highlighted in a well-respected national law journal for the very first time in her life as a minority law professor of color. Simultaneously, Warren submitted a recipe to a Native American cookbook and designated her race as Cherokee. The DNA test did not prove she had native heritage or that she was a Cherokee as she claimed. The test identified a strain of her DNA like Peruvian strains that have been identified in South and Central Americans. Warren claimed this week that she took the DNA test to restore trust in government. Her most ardent supporters admit she took the DNA test to help her run for President and bandage an Achilles's heel. If Senator Warren's name was Mary Sullivan and she used similar racial gaming to get hired by a municipal fire or police department she would have been fired by now. The same Progressive editorial writers in the Boston papers that now protect her would be shaming her as she skulked out of town.

The issue with Warren's DNA test and her claim to heritage is not trust in government, but trust in Senator Warren. Warren's judgement is poor. For example, Warren has made horrible comments about the justice system and the people who make up the system. The SEIU National Association of Government Employees (NAGE) said it best in their letter demanding an apology from Senator Warren: "NAGE/IBPO represents police officers, court officers, probation officers, deputy sheriffs, and corrections officers, from...across the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Your constituents, the very citizens who elected you to lift them up and makes their lives better, you have blindly cast as racists."

She added that last year, there were about 20 to 25 volunteers. Many had committed to return, but could not come because of the inclement weather.

“Last year was gorgeous, a perfect day for this kind of event,” Horn said.

The team consisted of Trish Turley, Robin Ross, Dottie Hunter, Diane Cylik, Lara Saavedra, Janet Smith, Joe Smith and Horn. A woman named Susan did not give her last name and did not want to be in a group picture, as she was busy planting.

Cylik was totally into the costume concept, donning a reindeer outfit as she pitched her rusty shovel to the earth.

“I had to cut the feet off of it so I could put my boots on,” she said with a laugh.

It took a significant effort to plough through the terrain at the four plots at the library parking lot. Although there were torrential rains the day before, in order to successfully plant daffodil bulbs, they need to be eight inches deep into the soil.

“There is gravel further into the dirt, which helps with the irrigation,” according to Hyde Park community activist Joe Smith, the zoning committee chairman of the Fairmount Hill Neighborhood Association. “We are just going to do the best that we can.”

Cylik hoped the bulbs could get deep enough into the soil before they became a feast for the squirrels.

“The squirrels are just sitting in that tree saying, ‘Yum! Yum!’,” she said.

Saavedra managed to plant a multitude of bulbs into what became a huge trench after more than an hour of a group labor of love, weeding, raking and shoveling.

“You have to plant three to five close together in order for them to be successful,” she explained.

Janet Smith was the team’s plant expert, offering advice on which greens to extract. She told people not to pull up milkweed, which is beneficial to birds and butterflies.

Then, she frowned as she yanked out a particularly nasty vine and showed it to the group.

“This is what I call the evil weed,” said Janet Smith. “It forms hundreds of little black bulbs all over it. When they break off, each one can grow and become another weed. They choke the plants. They try to attack my raspberry bushes.”

The enthusiasm was contagious. Cars passing by the library beeped in support, while attendees of a service at the Nigerian hall next to the lot smiled, greeted the volunteers and waved.

“I came out here today because I live in Hyde Park,”

Trish Hurley said, shovel in hand. “I love my neighborhood. I jump in and help whenever I can.”

“It occurred to me that, if I am going to be going to the library all the time, I have to do something to help out,” added Susan.

Joe Smith equally loves Hyde Park. He has another reason for volunteering: neglect by the state.

“This property is supposed to be maintained by the Department of Transportation,” he said. “I have gone to them over the past couple of years, but I have been yessed to death.

“The workers are always very nice to me, and I understand that they don’t have the manpower,” he added. “I want to see what we can do with our local officials to see how we can have this area properly looked after. We are happy to volunteer our efforts.”

Within two hours, the team planted 500 daffodil bulbs, which were donated by the City of Boston as part of Mayor Martin J. Walsh’s “Boston Blooms with Daffodils” citywide beautification initiative. On the weekends of October 26 and November 2, 20,000 daffodil bulbs will be planted by community groups, individuals, churches and volunteers contacted through the Parks Department.

Joe Smith added that 300 more bulbs will be given to fellow environmental activist Martha McDonough to plant in Hyde Park.

According to Boston.gov, more than 100 community groups participated in “Boston Blooms with Daffodils” last year.

For more information about Keep Hyde Park Beautiful, visit www.keepphbeautiful.org or its Facebook page. The group is planning a wreath distribution with Hyde Park Main Streets to local businesses and other environmentally conscious events and meetings.
