East River Neighborhood Assn. urges DCR action

Updates to the Doyle Playground Mural were discussed at the recent ERNA meeting.

Pat Alvarez, the assistant director of the Southwest Boston CDC (SWBCDC), addressed a packed room of about 40 people at the East River Neighborhood Association, which met Monday, June 11 at 912 River St.

One of the programs she has been working on has been an agreed project with a group called Artists for Humanity to paint a mural at the Doyle Playground. The group involves teen artists with a B grade point average or higher.

“Based on what we discussed, there will be a scene of a river,” Alvarez said. “There will be people enjoying the river, walking their dogs,” she said. “It will be a very serene scene.”

The hardest part of the process, Alvarez noted, is “getting DCR to agree.” The park is on state land, and the project needs the approval of the Department of Conservation and Recreation.

She added that she has been working with a national nonprofit called KaBOOM!, which builds playgrounds, particularly in economically disadvantaged communities.

“People wanted a natural playground,” she explained. “They wanted to be able to have the kids climb on and under fake logs and things like that.”

At the recent nearby Neponset River cleanup, Alvarez described filling “22 big contractor size trash bags” with mostly household

Neighborhoods join together to share ideas for Livable Streets

Residents from Roslindale to Roxbury joined forces on Thursday, May 30 at the Lena Park Community Center at 150 American Legion Hwy. in Dorchester to express their views on how they would like to see their major transportation arteries improved to transportation advocacy nonprofit group Livable Streets.

More than 30 people attended the forum, which focused on what residents from Roslindale, Hyde Park, Mattapan, Dorchester and Roxbury would like to see on American Legion Hwy., Cummins Hwy., Blue Hill Ave. and Morton St. for cars, pedestrians, bikers and bus routes and stops.

Kristiana Lachiusa, the community engagement coordinator of Livable Streets, moderated the forum, where she had posted maps of the streets be-

Hyde Park Neighborhood Association rattled by noise disturbances

Residents packed the Area E-18 police station last week to hear about noise complaints and what neighbors should do if they feel some residents are being too loud.

Diane Cylik usually addresses community groups about the environmental cleanup efforts of the grassroots volunteer organization, Keep Hyde Park Beautiful (KHPB).

But at the Hyde Park Neighborhood Association (HPNA) meeting on Thursday, June 6, Cylik spoke of another ongoing pollution problem – noise pollution – to a packed room of nearly 40 people at the Area E-18 police station.

“I want to set the place with a few facts,” Cylik said. “It’s a beautiful sunny day, and I want to sit outside. But five houses away, across the street, there is music blasting for hours. I closed all of my windows and I took out my hearing aids and I could still hear the noise. I have become a prisoner in my own home.

“I called the police to report the noise,” she continued. “But then I heard on the police scanner – yes I have one of those, too – that they should dismiss the call. I was crying and I was upset. So what do we do?”

As summer is starting, the rise in noise complaints is expected to mount. But the complaints at the meeting were already reverberating from residents from Readville to Fairmount Hill.

One woman said she has asked neighbors to turn down their music. In response, teenagers have urinated on her car tires.

“I want people to see this sign,” Cylik added, showing the police number to call for noise disturbances, 617-343-5500. “Call this number.”

Sgt. Daniel MacDonald explained that residents could call that number or 911.

“It is easier to track 911 calls,” he said. “I would suggest that you get all of your neighbors to call and report the issues so that we have the address on file.”

Pierce St. talks about cultural celebration, church anniversary with church and police

Residents discussed crime and neighborhood news at the Pierce Street Neighborhood Watch on Tuesday, June 4.

Attendance was light, but the mood was bright as the Pierce St. Neighborhood Watch celebrated the collaboration between the Family Life Fellowship Church and the police in Area E-18 at its meeting on Tuesday, June 4 at the church at 28 Arlington St.

Saturday, June 1 marked the 24th anniversary of Family Life Fellowship's Cultural Day, Pastor Karen Ricketts told the group of about 15 residents and police officers. More than 250 people attended the festivities, marked by cultural displays, a myriad of food choices, dancing and people dressed in clothing reflective of their respective homelands.

"We are in anniversary mode," Ricketts said as she described a number of events the parish is holding over the week to celebrate its anniversary, with the festival being the highlight.

"The streets were blocked off this year so that we could have tents celebrating the different countries that make up our church," she said. "I really want to thank the police for that. Attendance was higher this year than ever before."

"This was one of the best festivals I have attended so far," according to Gerri McElmoyle, of Area E-18's community service office, noting that it was both fun and educational. "They had a parade, and those dressed in their native garments walked proudly to show them off. The colors were spectacular."

Countries represented during the festival included the USA, Barbados, Dominica, Jamaica, Haiti, Ghana, Nigeria, Trinidad and Tobago. Tents were decorated with memorabilia from the countries, and the smells of native dishes wafted through the air. Officer Pruitt judged the culinary contest.

"The music had my feet tapping all day long," McElmoyle said. "Our thanks to Pastor Karen Ricketts for organizing this annual event and Reverend G. Lartey and his congregation for also making us all feel welcomed."

Ricketts highlighted the church's partnership with the community by inviting everyone to "Power and Praise," an intergenerational concert held at the church on Friday, June 7.

In addition, Family Life Fellowship held a financial literacy workshop on the morning of Saturday, June 8, which was open to the neighborhood.

Family Life Fellowship Church's anniversary service on Sunday, June 9 from 9:50 a.m. to noon was the culmination of the weekend's festivities.

Melanie Daye, chair of the Pierce St. Neighborhood Watch, praised the police and the church for being active in the neighborhood.

"There hasn't been any activity in the lot across the street from the church," she said. "Before, there were trucks there all the time. You could smell gasoline."

Officer Paul Broderick did have several items to note in the police report in the neighborhood:

City looking to move Animal Control to Parks Department

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The Boston City Council Committee on Government Operations held a hearing recently at the request of the Boston Parks Department to move the Animal Care and Control (ACC) Commission under the purview of the Parks Department.

The ACC is currently run through the Inspectional Services Department (ISD), which got it from Property Management in 2014. The currently-proposed move would have to go through a City Council ordinance.

Boston Parks and Recreation Commissioner Chris Cook said it makes sense for Parks to bring ACC under its umbrella, as many of the calls for animal control occur on Parks property.

“We do see a lot of the wildlife interactions taking place on our land, so we do think we are the right agency to actually absorb the city entity,” he said. “For a lot of regulatory reasons, a lot of the conflicts, whether it’s off-leash dogs or wildlife such as geese and coyotes, they actually occur on our properties and so it runs into the existing city ordinances and rules regulating parks and open spaces.”

Cook added that ISD’s mission is specific to private property and a narrow scope, while the Parks Department has a bit more flexibility, and would be a better fit for the ACC.

“We do think there would be an opportunity to capitalize on the learning environment of the Parks and Recreation Department through all of its outreach programs, and we could actually get people to understand the rules and regulations behind Animal Care and Control,” he said. “We think that it not only makes sense from a regulatory perspective, but we really think it makes sense from an educational perspective to absorb ACC into the Parks and Recreation Department.”

Cook added because of park interactions with animals, the department already interacts with the ACC and ISD on a daily basis.

“And the majority of their time is actually spent typically on our properties or on Public Works Department city streets,” he said.

Cook said the changes to the city ordinances governing the ACC, which are Ordinances Chapters VI, VII, XVI and XVIII, would be pretty straightforward.

“A lot of the language you see just strikes ‘ISD’ and inserts ‘Parks and Recreation,’” he said. “And then I just do want to flag that with the transfer of ACC, the revolving fund associated with ACC would also be transferred to the Parks and Recreation Department and that would go through all of the auspices and oversight of the City Council that all revolving funds in the city go through.”

The change would also affect which agency issues dog licenses. Under the current system, those licenses are issued by ISD. In the new system, they would be issued by ACC under the Parks and Recreation Department. All offices and titles would be transferred under the Parks as well. There would not be any layoffs or changes in position leadership. The city currently requires that all dogs six months of age or older (human years) must be registered and licensed every year by the ACC.

The impetus behind the change comes from complaints from residents of South Boston that they would have to reach out to two different agencies – ISD and Parks – to have a meeting on enforcement of leash laws in the park.

“Now we think we could deploy them citywide in a way that makes sense that is driven by the 311 calls,” he said. “The other important aspect of it, the Parks and Recreation Department has so many more resources as far as outreach in terms of getting educational materials into the hands of residents, whether its our Coffee Hours or our three or four hundred different programs we run through our arts and culture programs, it’s just easier to have some of those ACC officers on hand to educate the public on things they could do while engaging wildlife.”

Cook added that pest and rat control will remain under the ISD jurisdiction. The Boston City Council will vote on this change at the June 5 meeting that took place after the Bulletin’s deadline.

TRAGEDIES

Details are still hazy and incomplete as to what happened to Red Sox All-Star David Ortiz in the Dominican Republic and why.

There are plenty of rumors as to why the beloved slugger was shot in the back, but precious little in the way of hard facts. It really shouldn't be that surprising. Pieces of any criminal puzzle take time to click into place.

A few things strike us in the immediate aftermath.

First and foremost, heroes can let us down. It was predictable, but naïve, to see many folks online refusing to put any credence in some of the more scandalous rumors surrounding the shooting. They were not just skeptical, which would be a reasonable response, they were unmoving in their refusal to believe even a shred of the emerging stories.

The reality is that two things can be true: Ortiz can be a good man, and a man whose flaws and deeds came back to haunt him. No one is perfect, especially not sports stars. He is no less deserving of our prayers and concern.

The other observation we had is quite a bit broader in scope, and perhaps more alarming in a societal sense: we are all still quick to believe and share inaccurate reporting and fake news.

In the immediate aftermath of the shooting there were understandable, but no less inaccurate, reports of the extent of his injuries (a bullet passed cleanly through his leg); rationales for the attack (a robbery), and even horrible reporting in social media as to where the shooting took place; Venezuela, opined one baseball "source").

As we veer ever closer to another presidential election, one marked by increased scrutiny of online disseminators, the fact remains that we are still making the same mistakes with media consumption. We still believe and spread bad intel. There is still a rush to "be first" and enjoy some false sense of pride in "educating" our friends and peers.

Speed is the bane of reporting and distribution alike.

It is hard to get too worked up. The Ortiz news was shocking and most reactions understandable. Reaching for the "share" button was reflexive.

The problem is that, days later, many still believe those initial fictions that immediately emerged. As a flipside to the same coin, even vetted news is being dismissed because it doesn't fit a mental image of a man they only know from TV.

Our collective sense of truth in media still needs a reset. We never seem to learn.

Tradition

When my brother-in-law Frank as a young boy noticed that flags were suddenly hanging outside along his mid-western street on his birthday, he assumed that the Bedford Falls-like community in which he lived was toasting his natal day with this display of Americana. Unremarkable to say, it was also Flag Day. He did not understand the tradition of June 14.

My Kind of Town/
Joe Galeota

In "Fiddler on the Roof" the audience hears much of the importance of tradition, as the play and the movie both open with Tevye and others singing about it robustly. With so many of us, both very young and very old, tradition plays such an important role in our lives. With youngsters all one has to say, "This is the way we did it last year/month/week" and a tradition has been established.

Here in Boston there are large traditions, such as the Fourth of July Concert with its cannons for the "1812 Overture," performed before hundreds of thousands as well as a national television audience, lesser traditions such as the Little League parades involving a section of the city, and smaller traditions involving a neighborhood, such as the reading of the Declaration of Independence at the opening of Buchanan Road's Independence Day block party.

A wonderful, close-to-Boston tradition was recently revealed to me by a city resident who plays Saturday morning softball with suburbanites in distant Wayland. Their softball diamonds—they face each other with an overlapping center field—are situated kitty-corner on a square town block, on one side of which is a funeral home.

Whenever the casket is being transferred from the funeral home to a hearse for the procession to a church or cemetery, one of the observant players bellows, "Funeral!" At this time all play stops on both diamonds, players respectfully doff their hats, and hopefully silently pray for the deceased and his/her survivors as the funeral cortege slowly wends its way around the block.

The tradition of men doffing of their hats, standing respectfully still, and abstaining from any activity when a funeral passes is not new. Construction workers doing street repairs used to have the monopoly on this custom. Some classrooms in parochial schools used to pay similar homage to a passing funeral.

In these days of hurry-up for everything, it's delightful to hear of this tradition that undoubtedly slows down a softball game, as its players struggle to meet after-game appointments. Perhaps this respectful tradition could be emulated by youth coaches of all sports.

Mayor's Garden Contest Deadline July 10

Mayor Martin J. Walsh has announced that Boston's green thumbs have until Wednesday, July 10, to register for the 2019 Mayor's Garden Contest presented by the Boston Parks and Recreation Department with a grand prize provided by JetBlue and prize packages donated by Mahoney's Garden Centers.

Now in its 23rd year, the contest recognizes gardeners who have landscaped, planted flowers, trees, shrubs, and, in the process, helped beautify Boston's neighborhoods.

Gardeners or those nominating their favorite gardeners may find printable and online nomination forms at www.boston.gov/mayors-garden-contest. First place winners will receive the coveted "Golden Trowel" award from Mayor Walsh and prize packages from Mahoney's Garden Centers and the Boston Flower and Garden Show at an awards ceremony in August in the Public Garden presented with support from Polar Beverages.

First place winners in this year's Garden Contest will also be entered into a drawing for a JetBlue Grand Prize consisting of roundtrip flights for two to any nonstop destination from Boston. Terms, conditions, and blackout dates apply.

Gardeners who have won three or more times in the last ten years will be automatically entered into the Hall of Fame and will be recognized at the awards ceremony in late August. These distinguished Hall-of-Famers are not eligible to enter as contestants, but are welcome to return as judges.

To enter the contest, apply online at www.boston.gov/mayors-garden-contest or pick up entry forms at Boston City Hall, Boston Community Centers, and Boston Public Library branches. For more information please call (617) 635-4505.

weeks," she said. "So it was a project about pilots that I was shooting for a press agency that I shoot for, and then this story evolved from that."

Dinner said one of the aspects of the base that struck her was the people.

"They're just like everyone else, they're soldiers," she said. "They're all conflicted, some want to be there, some don't, some are confused some aren't. It's a wide range, some have been there for their tenth time in Afghanistan and some are fresh out of high school, it's their first time and they weren't even alive when Sept. 11 happened. For them, it's just hearsay why this war is happening and why the fight continues because they didn't experience the beginning of it. So there are a lot of different perspectives. There are generals who have spent more time in Afghanistan in the last 17 years than they have in the U.S."

At the time of her arrival, the 101st Airborne Division was stationed at the base. The division is famous for its path finding missions during D-Day, as well as several deployments to Iraq, Afghanistan and Vietnam.

"It's the 101st Airborne, and it's interesting that one of the first units they sent out to Dahlke is such an iconic airborne unit," she said. "They have since come home because they do nine month deployments, but they'll probably be back in two years, or at least that's what they think."

What also struck Dinner about the base is it was nearly brand new.

"This base is right next door to another base that was abandoned in 2014," she said. "It was given over to the Afghans and it cost millions of dollars. The Afghans couldn't maintain it so it was abandoned, and then they go and build another multi-million dollar base right next door. The money that goes into these bases is obscene, especially an Air Force base, because there are so many things that need to be there for helicopter operations. And this base has a few airplanes to escort the helicopters."

And these escorts, she said, is definitely warranted.

"It's one of the bases the Taliban doesn't have the exact coordinates for and so they try very hard to hit the helicopters going out of there. Every day there's incoming fire from rockets," she said. "It's not a front line base though. We're doing more and more combat air attacks than we ever have before because of Trump's new air policy, but U.S. Soldiers are not on the front lines like they used to be."

Dinner said she will be publishing her experiences in a full story soon.

"Just not yet because I'm going back," she said. "The timeline got changed because of the peace talks that are happening."

The exhibit is presented by the Hyde Park-based organization Artists At-Large. Dinner said she had known Artists At-Large co founder Thomas Seggars from a previous exhibit.

"I never thought this exhibition would be in a fine arts gallery, it's not about that, it's about people seeing and knowing. A library is a perfect space," she said.

Dinner's photographs will be on display until June 30 at the library. From there, they will be on display at the Boston City Hall starting in September.

items, including “diapers, soup cans and laundry detergent bottles.”

“We need to all join together and get DCR on the stick,” Alvarez told the crowd. “We keep saying that we need to get signage in English, Spanish and Haitian Creole about the water not being safe. There are chemicals in there that are not safe. We need to force them to do something, but DCR keeps saying, ‘It’s only one acre.’”

“But it’s our acre,” ERNA co-chair Barbara Hamilton said. We look at it every day going by.”

One member suggested putting up a sign with a skull and crossbones to alert people of the danger.

Alvarez noted that if there are enough contaminants found in the river, the group can ask Gov. Charlie Baker to request Super Fund money from the federal government.

Another goal is to make a river path that would go from the Fairmount commuter rail station to Mattapan station.

“It’s not an either/or situation,” Hamilton said of the projects. “It’s a both/and. It does something to the psyche of the neighborhood.”

District Five City Council candidate Mimi Turchinetz, who is currently the chair of the board of the SWBCDC but will be stepping down to run her campaign, suggested inviting representatives from the DCR to the next meeting as well as other community groups.

“This way, we can show the depth and the need,” she said.

Alvarez also spoke of the affordable housing crisis, which is another issue being tackled by the SWBCDC.

“All of the properties that are in foreclosure are being bought by foreign investors,” she explained. “They are coming in and making a huge profit, and they are pushing people out.”

To combat this, the City recently proposed spending $95,000 per unit for up to 30 units so that people already living in their homes would be able to stay there, she said.

For more information, contact Alvarez at palvarez@swbcdc.org.

Speeding and traffic were also discussed. The Hyde Park neighborhood liaison to the Mayor’s Office of Neighborhood Services mentioned that he is waiting for applications to become available for the Slow Streets program.

“All I can say to everyone is please be vocal,” he said. “If you think there is an intersection that could really use a street sign, please let us know.”

He added that successful applicants like Grew Park used Area E-18 as a resource for compiling data on traffic reports and accidents. The community service office number is 617-343-5611.

Flynn added that he will ask a member of the Boston Transportation Department to attend the next meeting.

Flynn took the opportunity to honor co-chair Patricia Odom. Last month, the governor honored her for being the first African American female to serve as a recruiter in the U.S. National Guard.

“When I first came to these meetings two years ago, I wondered why it was so structured in here,” he said with a laugh. “Now I know.”

“But seriously, I want to thank you very much for your service,” Flynn said.

Another service-themed event is the dedication of a new playground at Camp Meigs in Readville on Saturday, June 15 at 3 p.m. It is located at Hamilton St. in Wolcott Sq. The DCR commissioner will be in attendance, as well as Rep. Angelo Scaccia.

Walter Apperwhite from City Councilor Tim McCarthy’s office echoed Flynn’s sentiments about safer streets, noting it is one of the main requests the office receives.

“But make sure there is some kind of consensus in the neighborhood,” he said.

He described the situation with a stop sign or a speed bump like a “broken bone” that impacts the entire body of streets and traffic flow around it.

“When they do a traffic study, they look at the impact not just on that intersection, but on the three intersections around it,” Apperwhite said.

Also on the agenda were the introduction of two candidates for City Council – Marty Keogh for the At-Large seat and Turchinetz for District Five.

“I was born in the Mission Hill projects, but I lived in Hyde Park for 25 years,” he said. “I grew up playing baseball and football over there in Ross Field.”

Keogh has spent the second half of his life as an attorney in West Roxbury. He is a member of the Hyde Park Historical Society, West Roxbury Historical Society, was a member of the Hyde Park Neighborhood Association and until recently served as the president of the West Roxbury Civic and Improvement Association.

“A lot of the issues we are talking about here tonight are the same issues we were talking about in Hyde Park before,” he said. “And the traffic and speeding are the ones we are dealing with right now in West Roxbury.”

Keogh said his three priorities are traffic, development and crime.

“I was no angel growing up,” he said. “I got a million second chances. That’s why I became a lawyer. I wanted to give people a second chance.”

Turchinetz said that, as a community activist and an attorney, she knows how to advocate for people on multiple levels.

“I look at the world with a big picture lens but also with a small picture lens,” she said. “I can see the work that we can do with a big picture lens, and I also look at things with an equity lens. I want to serve Mattapan, Roslindale and Hyde Park and start going up and down River Street, knitting the district together.”

Turchinetz added that she has the experience of living in all three towns and has valuable knowledge because of her two decades building the SWBCDC.

“I want to address the growing development problem and the climate crisis,” Turchinetz said. “I want to expand and maintain our urban wilds. They are such an incredible resource.”

The next ERNA meeting will be held on Monday, July 8 at 7 p.m. at 912 River St.

REGISTRATION NOW OPEN FOR BOSTON NEIGHBORHOOD BASKETBALL LEAGUE

The Boston Parks and Recreation Department has announced that registration is now open for the 50th annual season of Boston's favorite summer basketball league, the Boston Neighborhood Basketball League (BNBL), kicking off on Monday, July 8.

BNBL is the oldest municipal basketball league in the country serving young men and women in three divisions each for boys and girls: 13 and under; 15 and under; and 18 and under.

Encompassing recreation, sports, and community engagement, BNBL's real value is in helping make Boston happier and safer in the summer months by providing a physical outlet for youngsters throughout the city. Over 1,500 players on 150 teams will participate in this year's league at 20 sites throughout the city. BNBL is played at Boston Centers for Youth & Families (BCYF) community centers and selected city parks. The 2019 BNBL season ends with the championship games played in mid-August.

To register online for BNBL go to https://apm.activecommunities.com/cobparksandrecdepart/Activity\_Search. BNBL also offers a free Pee Wee Developmental Program for boys and girls ages 6 to 11 offered at various locations across the city in Dorchester, Mattapan, Roslindale, South Boston, West Roxbury, and Roxbury. This program teaches young players the basics of basketball in a fun and non-competitive setting. Registration for Pee Wee BNBL is done on-site at the Pee Wee locations.

Ask The Doctor

Junior Damato began servicing vehicles in 1969. He owns a 10-bay auto repair service center in Hyde Park and an 8-bay center in Middleboro. Junior is an ASE-certified Master Technician, ASE-certified L-1 and ASE-certified Natural Gas.

2019 Toyota Avalon XSE Hybrid

A few years back, my wife wanted a Toyota Camry. I asked, "How about an Avalon?," and she said the Avalon was not sporty like the Camry. So, she ended up with a V/6 Camry XSE that had a MSRP of over $36,000. Compare that, five years ago, to today's loaded Hybrid Avalon MSRP at $40,492. The 2019 Avalon Hybrid is powered by a 178 horsepower, 4-cylinder gas engine and 215 horsepower Hybrid electric power. In my opinion, Toyota is the leader in Hybrid vehicles. I service 20 plus vehicles a day and the keyword is service, not repairs, and Toyota is on the service list of normal maintenance.

The Avalon has a more aggressive front grille and very modern rear style. The look is not the typical Avalon. It now looks more like a high performance four-door sedan. Open the door and touch the seats and find high quality soft leather with suede inserts. A large center display is very clear and very easy to navigate. Sport-tuned suspension that, unlike the older tuned suspension, does not give a harsh ride. There are 18-inch tires and alloy wheels, and all safety, driving and accident avoidance features. LED lights are everywhere, including headlights, with heated front seats with power adjustments.

There is dual zone electronic climate control, push-to-start and lots more. The heater comes to temperature quickly. The engine combination has instant power and is very quiet under all driving conditions. On the back roads there is very little swaying or leaning when cornering. The suspension absorbed all the bumps I could throw at it. Base price starts at $39,000 (destination fee: $920). Our test car did have a few options, including the carpeted mat package at $248; illuminated door sill plates at $379; and paint protective film at $395. EPA: 43 city and yes, 43 highway MPG. My thoughts are that the Hybrid is a car I can live with in any driving condition and the Hybrid option is now affordable.

Boston's own Junior Damato, "The Auto Doctor" has agreed to field auto repair questions from Bulletin and Record readers. Please forward your questions to news@bulletinnewspapers.com and we will do our best to get your questions answered.

Walsh talks HP at Coffee Hour

Mayor Martin J. Walsh greets Jesse Searcy of Hyde Park during the June 6 Neighborhood Coffee Hour at Dorchester's Ronan Park. The series visits 17 neighborhood parks and gives residents a chance to speak one-on-one with Mayor Walsh and department heads. The Neighborhood Coffee Hours give residents a unique opportunity to speak directly with Mayor Walsh and staff from City departments about open space and other needs in their neighborhoods. Participants enjoyed coffee and breakfast treats provided by Dunkin' and fresh fruit from Star Market along with flowering plants grown in the city's greenhouses.

forehand. Attendees circled areas where they felt were the most dangerous. During a 90-minute slide presentation, they commented on what they would like to see improved and how their daily lives are impacted now.

“The goals of these planning sessions are to offer opportunities for the communities to be empowered; to advocate for the changes they need, and to provide the know-how of who to talk to,” Lachiusa said.

She added that these forums provide the “resources and tools” for people who don’t know which roads belong to the city or state, and from which department or legislator where they should seek resources.

People also had the chance to connect across neighborhoods and realize that they encountered the same problems – feeling endangered in crosswalks, worrying about their children and thinking about bike lanes and bus-only lanes.

The first topic of discussion was American Legion Hwy., which stretches from Roslindale to Dorchester. There are no plans in the works as yet, but plenty of feedback.

“All of these accidents are right out here,” said one resident, pointing outside. “We need them to keep crashing into the wall.”

Rick Yoder, the co-chair of the Mount Hope Canterbury Neighborhood Association (MHC), spoke of the other end of American Legion in Roslindale, near the ScrubaDub car wash at Walk Hill St.

“There is an 81-foot curb cut,” Yoder said. “You never know when the cars are going to come in, and where the exit and entry and exit are.

“When you are walking, you almost have to do a spin in, out and around to watch for traffic,” explained fellow MHC co-chair Lisa Beatman. “It’s a very dangerous area. Traffic is coming from three directions, and it’s near a K-8 school.”

Yoder added that there have been a couple of fatal accidents on Walk Hill, and “a couple of rollovers on American Legion.”

“The intersection needs to be redesigned, and traffic needs to slow down,” he noted.

Beatman commented that the name of the street should be changed from Highway to Parkway, which would be more in keeping with its original intention with greenery through an urban neighborhood.

“When people see the word ‘highway,’ they automatically think speeding is okay,” she said.

Another huge problem is the 14 bus line, which runs infrequently, stops early at night, and doesn’t run at all on Sunday.

Gwendolyn Farrell of Hyde Park recommended speed check signs on American Legion, as well as Blue Hill Ave., the most widely traversed road.

“Also, if they make the roads a little bit narrower, they could add a dedicated bus lane or bike lane and also slow down traffic,” Lachiusa said.

Some residents questioned narrowing an already dangerous Blue Hill Ave. One resident suggested putting the bus in the middle in the road with a platform in the middle, similar to the subway.

Blue Hill Ave. and Warren St. have one of the highest crash rates, and the 28 bus is the most widely used bus routes with more than 45,000 passengers along that roadway per day, Lachiusa said.

“If you are biking, forget about it,” she added.

The audience suggested traffic calming measures, including speed bumps, raised crosswalks more traffic lights and other means from Blue Hill Ave. to Columbia Rd.

Others suggested a dedicated bike lane and making more frequent bus trips so that people would use cars less frequently.

Lachiusa stressed that this is the first of several community meetings, and that it is meant to empower people.

“I thought there was a good turnout and good conversation,” she said. “Talking about street improvements can be challenging and divisive, and there often aren’t right answers. The larger the group of people with similar goals, the more likely they will be to make the changes they want to see.”

Arealus Pough, community engagement manager at the Lena Park CDC, agreed.

“I was very impressed with the turnout and that people from all of the neighborhoods were working together toward the common goal of making our streets safer for everyone,” he said.

Disturbances continued from page 1

Ralph Cotelleso agreed.

MacDonald said he could take the addresses and that officers could speak to the owners, because there is a city ordinance about loud noise. Fines can be issued in increasing amounts.

HPNA President Jim Kirker urged residents to attend community meetings, including this one, regularly, so that their concerns will be addressed.

"Don't just come to the meeting when you have an issue, and then not show up again," he said. "It can't be a one-shot deal. You have to keep coming back and stay involved."

On the business side of Hyde Park, Hyde Park Main Streets (HPMS) Executive Director Thien Simpson gave a presentation on the goals and accomplishments of the organization.

"Our job is to make sure that our business district is a more viable place," Simpson said. "Whether you're a business owner or you're thinking of starting a business, our office is here to support you with a variety of services."

She added that it is best for a prospective business to become involved with HPMS before it even invests in a property. HPMS can offer technical assistance, legal issues and financial planning to make sure that venture gets off on solid footing and keep a successful one on track.

"We are really known for our signage program, where we offer up to $2,000 for signage improvements," Simpson said.

Some examples she gave are the new awning at Cappy's Pizza on Truman Parkway, the new signage at Arbit Chiropractic on River St., Rincon's new sign design, and Lovely Nails, which never had a sign.

"At that point, Boston Main Streets said, 'Thien, you've got to slow down because you used all of your grant money for the year,'" Simpson said enthusiastically. She noted that the new fiscal year starts in July, so she is ready to hit the ground running.

Residents spelled it out for neighbors about what to do when someone is being too loud.

HPMS also has partnered with KHPB on beautification efforts in the business district, helping to replant the 40 planters and encouraging business owners to keep litter off of their properties.

Simpson added that the next large community event is the rededication of Camp Meigs Playground on Saturday, June 15 at 3 p.m.

In the fall, Simpson hopes to plan a Mardi Gras masquerade party as a fundraiser.

The one issue raised was about having marijuana dispensaries in Hyde Park. Simpson explained that the issue is out of her purview because they are out of the business district. Also, because of the law that was passed, Boston is required to have 53 dispensaries spread throughout the city.

Currently there are two disposed dispensaries on Hyde Park Avenue.

Mimi Turchinetz, a candidate for the District Five City Council seat, said both parties should be invited to a meeting to talk about what amenities they intend to offer the community. "We need to see what kind of community benefits they are willing to offer and extract information," she said.

Justin Murad, also a candidate for the D-5 seat, noted that he read in an article about a dispensary in Colorado that offered to build a recreation center.

Regarding the ongoing debate on whether the zoning for the 11 Dana Ave. project is "as of right," Kirker announced that he has reached out to top officials at the Boston Planning and Zoning Authority (BPDA) to request a meeting between them and the HPNA to request an explanation.

"Bryan Flynn at Neighborhood Services has been instrumental in getting Bryan Glasscock to answer my emails," Kirker said. "Hopefully we'll get some specific data."

Kirker added that he hopes to schedule a special meeting within the next few weeks.

The next HPNA meeting is tentatively scheduled for Thursday, July 11 at 7 p.m. at the Area E-18 police station, depending upon room availability.

Theodore Parker hosts a cappella concert

Ariane Komyati
Staff Reporter

The Theodore Parker Church (TPC) hosted Windborne - a political and intercultural a cappella - in concert on Friday, May 31. The a cappella quartet performed in TPC's Parish Hall, which was completely filled with church and community members.

The Windborne quartet - which is made up of vocalists Lynn Mahoney Rowan, Will Thomas Rowan, Lauren Breunig, and Jeremy Carter Gordon - has been called "some of the finest singers of protest and folk music that I have ever heard..." by folk music journal Sing Out!. The group shifts effortlessly between different styles of traditional music, hailing from all parts of the world including Bulgaria, Quebec, France, and Appalachia.

"I saw them perform at the New England Regional Folk Alliance, and I was quite impressed," explained Carol Allen, who does bookings for the TPC. "We discussed dates they could perform, and now they're here in concert!"

"Lynn, Will and I started singing together for fun in high school," New England native Lauren Breunig explained. "Jeremy joined in 2013, and that's when Windborne really started. Singing has been a full time job over the past year."

During their concert at the TPC, Windborne performed songs from their project Song on the Times: Social Action Songbook & Album. The illustrated songbook and album takes music from working class movements for people's rights in the US and UK over 400 years, and is sung for today's struggles. "Some of the lyrics are very old, but they have the same message today," explained Breunig. "We've also updated some of the lyrics." These topics include workers rights, climate change, and racial justice.

Windborne believes that as artists, it is important to make music that bring people's attention to struggles and poverty. They opened the a cappella concert by singing "The Diggers' Song", a 17th century English ballad which was a protest song for land rights. Many people in the audience clapped their hand and stomped their feet along with the beat. The group also performed "Bread and Roses", a political slogan, poem, and song associated with the textile strike in Lawrence, MA in 1912.

Windborne members Will and Lynn performed a song they wrote in 2006 after seeing the Al Gore documentary An Inconvenient Truth. The song, titled Slave to Time, is a call to action and an apology to future generations. "The phrase 'do not be a slave to time' speaks to how easy it is to assume that someone else will deal with the problem, or that we will deal with it later. It is a call to action beyond climate change, it speaks to all social struggle," explained Lynn Rowan.

The group went viral two years ago when a video of them singing outside Trump Tower in protest was shared thousands of times on Facebook. The lyrics discussed the "low folk rising up" and "the tyrants in their towers of gold shall hear the people's cries". "It was about a week before Trump's inauguration," explained Jeremy Carter Gordon. (You can watch the video at <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=aE3s2IWgcAE>).

In 2014, Windborne was one of ten groups in the nation chosen to be US cultural ambassadors, traveling to Angola, Turkmenistan, and Central Asia. The group also engaged in a lot of community events while in these countries.

This is the church's last Music on Centre concert of the Winter/Spring 2019 season. "This was our most ambitious year so far for Music on Centre," stated Allen. The TPC's Music on Centre has hosted two other concerts during the winter and spring of 2019. In January, they hosted singer-songwriter Joe Jencks and Balkan musician Samodivi. In April, Music on Centre hosted the folk group the Heather Pierson Trio and singer Mike Laureanno. All shows benefit the TPC and its work.

"We are getting more and more people from the neighborhood to come [to our concerts]," explained Allen. "We try to bring in fun music for the church, since we are very music oriented."
