Feisty meeting on Readville Yard 5 Project

What may have been thought of by National Grid and First Highland Management Development Corporation representatives to be an easy community meeting last Wednesday the Boston Planning and Development Agency, formerly the Boston Redevelopment Authority (BRA).

Several government representatives were present to listen to and voice community concerns over the process, including Lisa Consalvo of Rep.

describing their final plans for the Readville Yard 5 project turned into a cantankerous, hostile debate raising concerns over environmental and noise pollution.

The meeting, which took place at the Hyde Park Police Academy on Williams Avenue, was attended by more than 40 people and lasted for more than two hours. The meeting was introduced by Casey Hines of

Angelo Scaccia's office, a representative from City Councilor at-large Michael Flaherty's office, Bryan Flynn of the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services, and District 5 City Councilor Tim McCarthy. A representative from the Boston Water and Sewer Commission also attended the meeting

Grew Park Neighbors discuss billy goats and Slow Streets

Matt MacDonald
Staff Reporter

The Grew Park Neighbors held its monthly meeting on Monday evening, Nov. 6 at 6:15 p.m. in the community room of the Area E-18 police station.

Chair Lynda Wallack, Marianne Toole, Wes Dillingham, Sgt. Dan MacDonald, Officer Paul Broderick, and a half a dozen residents of the Austin/Summer/Myopia/Braeburn/West Street neighborhood were present for the session.

The two main items on the agenda focused on plans to improve the Urban Wild property at the corner of Austin and West streets and on researching the Neighborhood Slow Streets program as it relates to the Grew Park neighborhood.

Wallack introduced the Urban Wild item in the hope of someone volunteering to take the initiative to contact site manager Paul Sutton of the Parks & Recreation Department regarding improvement plans.

Her request was immediately met by SWBCDC (Southwest Boston Community Development Corporation) Assistant Director Pat Alvarez who had, as she informed the group, already

On Saturday afternoon and into the evening on Nov. 11, the American Legion Fogg Roberts Post 78 (56 Harvard Ave.) held its annual Veterans Day spread of food in its downstairs bar.

Put on by the Sons of the American Legion, one of the three groups that – along with the American Legion itself and the Ladies Auxiliary – make up Post membership, the event began at 3 p.m. and was going strong at just after 5 p.m., when Sons Commander Bob Long – enjoying a beer at the bar – shared some details about how the good time came about.

“This is the Sons using our money and our resources that we've raised with can drives and bottle drives to do something for the veterans.”

This year's meal was catered by Tex's Barbeque, paid for with those funds and also with a donation from the win-

Fairmount advocacy, Neponset River promoted at East River

City Councillor Tim McCarthy speaks to local residents at the East River Street Neighborhood Association meeting. He strongly encouraged local participation in the upcoming Hyde Park 150 preparations.

On Monday evening, Nov. 13, the East River Street Neighborhood Association gathered for its monthly meeting in the community room of the Area E-18 police station (1249 Hyde Park Ave.).

About a dozen people attended the half hour meeting, which featured several speakers commenting briefly on things going on in the neighborhood.

Southwest Boston CDC (Community Development Corporation) Community Organizer Alex Nadel spoke to encourage resident participation in the Fairmount Line Advocacy Week, which is running from Sunday, Nov. 12 through Saturday, Nov. 18.

This week of action entails participants taking five minutes to either call or email members of the Massachusetts Legislature's Transportation Committee in order to urge them to vote on a bill – currently in committee – that would change the Fairmount Line over to more of a rapid transit line that would run every 15 minutes or less, and on which the Charlie Card could be used.

Referring to the gap in the rapid transit system that would be filled, were this bill – sponsored by State Representative Evandro Carvalho – to pass, Nadel got at the essence of the initiative.

“There are a lot of people down this way who understand the value of that, but I'm not sure when you talk about ‘state’; somebody from another part of the state who's on the Transportation Committee might not see what the significance of this is.”

For more information about this, visit the SWBCDC website: <http://www.swbcd.org/>.

Matt Donnelly, Senior Project Manager for Pinck & Co. went before the group and – using a work site diagram – outlined the ongoing expansion of Boston Prep.

Since moving to its new location at 885 River St., Boston Prep has undergone construction of one building – designed for 400 students – and is currently planning a new wing to hold 300 more, with classrooms, science labs, STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts, Math) labs, administrative space, a small cafeteria, and community space.

“Construction is proceeding, as you've noticed. The steel framing is going up over in the parking lot area. We'll probably have a topping off, hopefully – you know that's a Christmas tree on top of the steel structure – we're really pushing to get it done at Christmas.”

Donnelly also announced that the eastbound bus stop will be moving from between Rosa Street and Reddy Avenue about 500 feet farther east, by Iora Primary Care. Both the MBTA and the BTD (Boston Transportation Department) have approved the move.

“It's more contiguous to the shopping center and also better for the school to supervise the kids to get them from one side of the street to the other.”

Construction is scheduled to be finished before the start of the 2018-2019 academic year.

Arielle Spivey of People of Hyde Park Wanting Equal Representation (P.O.H.W.E.R.) went before the group to promote the Hyde Park/Mattapan Neponset River Neighborhood Forum, which will be held on Thursday, Nov. 30 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in the community room at 912 River St.

At the meeting, the history of the River, what it has to offer the neighborhood, its ongoing contamination, and the work being done to fix it as a community will be discussed.

The Neponset River Watershed Association, Boston Water and Sewer, and the Department of Health will also be in attendance.

District 5 City Councillor Tim McCarthy – fresh after his reelection – also stopped by to comment on the work being done on Ross Field and the build up to Hyde Park's 150th Anniversary.

“We've created a committee. We'd love to have more people help. We're trying to get more cultural diversity. We're trying to make sure that everybody who lives in Hyde Park is welcome and wants to participate.”

MassDOT looking to complete Arborway construction

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation is looking to finally complete its Casey Arborway Construction project before the end of the year.

According to State Rep. Russell Holmes at a recent Mount Hope Mount Canterbury Neighborhood Association on the Roslindale/Hyde Park/Jamaica Plain/Mattapan lines, the construction period for the Casey Arborway Project should be completed in December.

“We’re almost done,” he said. “I know, I can see you folks shaking your heads and things of that nature, but I will tell you it was nowhere near as painful as you thought it would be.”

One resident said they’ve been avoiding the traffic congestion there like the plague, and Holmes responded that that has been good.

“You avoiding it like the plague has helped us wonderfully,” he said.

Residents in the local area were concerned about the project because it took away the Casey Arborway Bridge, which many said kept traffic low and out of the side streets.

“The traffic was about the same at rush hour regardless of whether there was a bridge or not,” Holmes said. “At rush hour, all the traffic would be fine on the bridge and then bunch up at the end of the bridge.”

According to MassDOT, construction will continue in and around Forest Hills Station for construction of knee walls for the northern head house elevator, installation of components, and forming and pouring new concrete elements associated with supporting the permanent alignment of the Arborway, installation of drainage, utilities, traffic signal foundations and conduit of the Arborway’s new permanent alignment immediately to the south of New Washington Street in the area previously occupied by the Route 39 bus.

For the Arborway west (towards the Arboretum) of South Street, they will be working on grading and paving of the Arborway carriage road on its new alignment, and on Washington Street west (towards the Arboretum) of Forest Hills Station they will be working on installation of new traffic lighting. MassDOT stipulated that all work schedules are subject to the weather.

“We hope to get it done before the first snowfall,” Holmes said.

City, food bank, start holiday season with Giving Chain

Boston Mayor Marty Walsh, Mass. Gov. Charlie Baker and members of the Greater Boston Food Bank tossed turkeys last week as part of the Thanksgiving Chain of Giving.

Staff Reporter

City officials, state representatives and members of the Greater Boston Food Bank (GBFB) kicked off turkey season this year once again with the Thanksgiving Chain of Giving event last week.

Catherine D'Amato, President of the Greater Boston Food Bank, said this is just one small part of what the GBFB does to provide millions of meals to residents in Eastern Massachusetts. She said thanks to the efforts of residents and the GBFB, they've been able to help end hunger in the region.

"It takes all of us, that real public private partnership, to really end hunger across Massachusetts," she said. "Our vision to end hunger involves all of you, so making sure that no one in our state wakes up hungry. It takes all of us working together and this collective human chain is quite representative of that, standing side-by-side, shoulder-to-shoulder, moving food that feeds people."

D'Amato said though the work they do is impressive, there's always more that can be done.

"The Food Bank works across the 190 cities and towns of Eastern Massachusetts, more than 500 agencies receive this food and then directly distribute it to their communities," she said. "We constantly need to do more. We have achieved more than 50 million healthy meals now of distribution, that's remarkable and it's a huge accomplishment."

D'Amato said that one in eight residents in eastern Massachusetts and one in 10 in the country risk hunger every day. She added that they've also been able to increase their distribution to include more fresh produce, and said that more than a third of the food that is distributed is fresh.

"Ten or 15 years ago, the Greater Boston Food Bank couldn't move a carrot," she said. "Not one. And now, fresh produce is well over 30 percent of that distribution."

Boston Mayor Marty Walsh passed more than one turkey during the event, and said the city is always working to get more food to those that need it.

"This is an incredible tradition, every year what we do here at the Food Bank and the loading of the truck and you hope that every year that as we unload it the need gets less and less, and unfortunately it doesn't always happen that way," he said. "The Greater Boston Food Bank is certainly an important and as a compassionate organization, forgiving, in making sure that families have the same things that all of us do."

Walsh said he saw the items of food going through the chain, and thought of how some people can take these traditions as the norm for everyone, when that is not necessarily the case.

"I thought to myself how for granted some people take stuffing at the dinner table thinking it's automatically there, and I started to look over and saw the cranberries, the vegetables and thought about how fortunate we are to have what we have and it's important that we continue to do what we do here," he said. "Fifty-seven million pounds of food gets distributed. On an individual meal basis, think about this for a minute: 48.1 million meals come out of this facility. Forty-eight million meals for people, for families, for young kids; the impact that the Food Bank has on people is absolutely incredible."

Massachusetts Gov. Charlie Baker said he's glad to see the GBFB grow and provide more and more food for the state.

"When I look around this facility and I think about how much product comes in here and goes out every single day, and how big the network the Food Bank works with and has grown to be and sustained over time, you have to start with a tremendous amount of appreciation for the work that Catherine and her team and all of the partners that she works with and you work with every single day here in the Commonwealth get done," he said. "And I get the fact that we're heading into a holiday season, but the difference for a lot of people between having a chance to enjoy the holiday season the same way everybody else does is really in many respects a function of millions and millions of meals that are going to be delivered through this organization and this food bank and the partners it works with over the course of the season. You should all be enormously proud to be part of this."

Are Townies being given short shrift?

America is a nation on the move, and so is Boston.

All over the country words are being truncated to enable faster communication. For instance, "cell" replaces "cellular phone" just as "hippo" serves for "hippopotamus" and "rhino" for "rhinoceros."

In case you're wondering what "wi-fi" stands for, it stands for nothing, not even "wireless fidelity," unlike "hi-fi," the shortened form for "high fidelity."

Now after architects and engineers built this beautiful bridge some years ago connecting Charlestown to downtown - now an iconic Boston landmark both at night and during the day across the Charles River - it was given a hyphenated name to serve two constituencies: the Leonard P. Zakim-Bunker Hill Memorial Bridge.

The first part of the hyphenated name acknowledges the many contributions of Lenny Zakim, a Boston civil rights worker who died much before his time after a five-year bout with bone marrow cancer; the second part references a principal historic part of Charlestown, namely Bunker Hill (the erroneous name for Breed's Hill). As I recall, the formal name was a compromise to satisfy interested parties on both sides.

But Boston's traffic reporters, on television, radio, and in print form, always curtail its admittedly long name and call it merely "the Zakim." They completely omit articulating "Bunker Hill."

been in contact with Sutton about the project, specifically regarding the possibility of having the SWBCDC Green Team youth program work on the site during summer of 2018.

"He agreed that it's time for that site to get some attention," Alvarez said.

Alvarez also mentioned the possibility of having a clean-up in the spring, in which neighbors would pick up trash and "survey the situation" before the Green Team would take over in the summer.

Marianne Toole also brought up to Alvarez the possibility of again using billy goats to get rid of overgrowth and poison ivy.

Alvarez brought up the difficulty of fencing the goats in (with hilly terrain, they can climb to a high point and then jump the fence), while acknowledging their usefulness and appeal.

"Talk about wanting to get neighbors to come out and take care of space," Alvarez said, speaking of the SWBCDC's previous billy goat operation. "That brought so many people, we had folks lined up around the block wanting to help."

As a way around the potential fence jumping problem, Alvarez said that she had floated the idea of having the Green Team walk the goats over to the site on leashes and then letting them eat their fill.

"I'm hoping we can convince them (the Parks Department) to (let them) come back again," she said.

An additional item on the agenda that drew some interest had to do with the Neighborhood Slow Streets Program, in which chosen neighborhoods – after an application and evaluation process – are able to participate in this City of Boston "traffic calming" initiative.

speed bumps in our neighborhood," Dillingham said. "It's a burden to everybody else (for us) to have speed bumps."

Toole agreed to look into the matter.

In the police report, mention was made of an armed robbery that took place at Z & R Convenient Store at 59 Fairmount Ave. in which $8,500 was stolen. This fits the description of two other recent robberies that have occurred in the Hyde Park/Roslindale area. Sgt. MacDonald confirmed that these are being checked out as a related matter.

In additional Grew Park news, Keep Hyde Park Beautiful's Cathy Horn will be the guest speaker at the Grew Park Neighbors December meeting.

Also, Wallack announced that Dean Ebozue – maker of Hyde Park Pride ball caps (www.hydeparkpride.com) – has agreed to participate with Grew Park Neighbors in future initiatives.

Grew Park Neighbors meetings are held on the first Monday of the month in the community room of the Area E-18 police station. The next meeting is scheduled for Dec. 4 at 6:15 p.m.

ner of a Dinner for 25 gift certificate won at the Veterans Fundraiser back in August.

Getting at the motivation for the meal and the feel of the holiday, Long continued. "Memorial Day is for the departed. Veterans Day is for the veterans, and to say thank you."

Long himself is not a veteran, but was entitled to join the Sons of the American Legion because of his mother, who had served as a lance corporal in the Marines back in World War II.

"Her picture's over there, on the wall." He gestures in the direction of a paneled wall behind a tableful of people. The photos – mostly in black and white – are all military portraits. "That's the wall of the members; some are still here, but most are all gone."

Marie Long – smiling brightly in her uniform, her photo bordered in white – is one of only two women whose portrait is hanging there.

A big man in a Navy ball cap comes over and Long introduces him: Jack Moran, Past Commander of Post 78.

"I was Commander here for close to 11 years. Now I'm the adjunct. Basically like the Secretary."

According to Long, however, he's a little more than that. "He keeps the place alive and functioning."

In the hallway, just past the pool table and the spread of food, Moran shows a panoramic photo that must have been taken on an old banquet camera.

"This is about 1900-1910. Somewhere in that vicinity."

Soldiers, sailors, and Marines lined up as if for a team picture, the photo predating the existence of Veterans Day, or even Armistice Day before it.

A display case, holding relics circa World War I, is below it. Across, in another case, a small Japanese war flag announces World War II, with an array of US Army divisional patches at the ready nearby.

The function room upstairs is quiet and empty, save for a couple two women putting out a couple of frosted cakes on a small table in the front of the room. They walk past Moran toward the door as he says, "Thank you. Have a good time tonight."

Along with fundraisers, renting out the function room is another revenue source for what members call the "Little Post That Can."

Looking up at a portrait prominently displayed in the corner, Moran pauses.

"This right here is J.P. ("Jake") Comer, National Commander." Comer served as American Legion National Commander from 1987-1988. "He's still involved, big time. And this is his Post."

Before having his photo taken in front of a wood carved relief of a soldier, sailor, and Marine marching in formation, Moran excuses himself and returns with the current Commander, William MacIver, and the Finance Officer, Bob McQueen.

This is MacIver's third year in charge and, speaking of the Sons, he's effusive.

"They understand the goals and the mission of the American Legion and what we're all about, which is to support those who are overseas active, and those who have been active and are now retired. And they do it right, so it's huge."

McQueen adds, "It's so great to have all of the people that appreciate us in Hyde Park."

Shortly after, back in the relative crowd and din downstairs, Long and MacIver sit next to each other on stools, leaning on the bar top. The food's holding out and everyone seems to be having a good time, as they do at this event every Veterans Day for as long as anyone can remember.

"We just keep passing it on." Long glances around the room. "Again, we get to say thank you. That's all. Nothing more than that. Nothing less than that. Just thank you."

planning stages there were “over 200 ideas,” Smith said.

“We have a lot of work to do tonight, and a lot of work to do going forward over the next few months,” Smith told community members.

The HP150 plans on having a full year of events in 2018 commemorating Hyde Park’s 150th anniversary, having partnerships with existing events and organizations, hosting volunteer driven celebrations, and having three signature events: an April 22 Ceremonial Event, an Adult Oriented Celebration Event on June 16 and a Family Oriented Celebration on June 23.

Smith opened the meeting by discussing the HP150 core values, which includes community pride, building the brand, increased volunteerism, creating lifelong memories, establishing new traditions, community engagement, celebrating rich history, vibrancy in business, promoting natural resources and promoting cultural attractions.

HP150 consists of seven operating committees - the Steering Committee, Marketing Committee, Historical Committee, Partnership Committee, April 22 Ceremonial Committee, Adult Oriented Celebration Committee, and a Family Oriented Celebration Committee.

The Marketing Committee showed their newly designed HP150 logo to the organizing committee, and has already been printed on items such as Frisbees and notepads. The official unveiling of the new logo will take place during the Anderson Tree Lighting on Nov. 26.

“We want this logo to be everywhere- little league uniforms, storefronts, etc.” Smith explained.

The Historical Committee is working on planting 150 trees around the community, having walking historical tours, hanging up historical photos around Hyde Park, and creating historical home plaques.

The Adult Oriented Celebration Committee is planning their event on the night of June 16 to be for adults over the age of 21. The committee has many ideas for the celebration, including closing off a few streets, and having food trucks, bands, a beer tent and local celebrities.

The Family Oriented Celebration Committee would like to host their event at Kelly Field, and include family friendly events such as a movie night, concerts, food trucks, a road race, and paddle boating.

“Keep spreading the word, we can use as many volunteers as we can,” Consalvo told community members.

For more information on how to volunteer and future meeting dates, email hp150boston@gmail.com.

Years ago, Cleveland’s Jacobs Field, where the Indians baseball team plays, was informally shortened to and called “the Jake.” Because the informal moniker can refer to a bathroom (as well as to a generic fireman), Cleveland Indians broadcasters could never use “the Jake” when referring to the site of the next home game.

Back to the bridge: I’m not from Charlestown and know only a handful of people who reside there. Nor have I ever attended the historic June 17 parade there. Charlestown is not the place it used to be, because of gentrification. With containerized cargo now in place, there are not many stevedores there working on the docks, and even fewer of them actually residing in 02129.

Bostonians frequently take pride in the neighborhood in which they grew up. Those from Mission Hill, Savin Hill, and Brighton seem to take the most pride. And so it seems logical that some people from Charlestown might take umbrage at the reference to the shortened form of “The Zakim Bridge.” Perhaps I’m wrong (again).

Christmas cheer at St. Anne's Bazaar

St. Anne's legendary Christmas Bazaar was held this past Saturday, Nov. 11, at the Blue Hills Collaborative (formerly St. Anne's School) and had everything from beer glasses, to religious statues, to dolls, to wooden reindeer, to spaghetti and meatballs.

Bazaar goers tried their luck with raffle tickets and Holiday treasures at bargain prices... including one who got a deal on a set of $2 Christmas coasters.

An overview of the Readville Yard 5 site (in red). A major point of contention for local residents is the agreement between the First Highland Management Development Corporation and National Grid for the power supplier to rent a parcel of the development's land as a depot and an open storage lot.

due to concerns regarding neighborhood concerns about digging up the land, the possibility of air and soil contamination, and contamination of the Neponset River due to runoff of the soil into the river and the nearby pond.

The BRA originally approved the Readville Yard 5 project on Oct. 16, 2014. The proponent, Highland Yard 5 Associates, LLC, filed a Notice of Project of Project Change (NPC) on Aug. 17. An Impact Advisory Group (IAG) meeting was held before concerned area residents on Sept. 18.

Matt O'Connor from First Highland described the latest project changes to what became a nearly packed auditorium by the end of the meeting.

"The original project was going to be for a total gross floor area of 375,000 square feet," said O'Connor. "It was later decided to decrease the project to 333,925 square feet. After the IAG meeting, the NPC proposes to decrease the approved project's total gross floor area from 333,925 square feet to 249,845 square feet. We reduced the number of buildings by one"

O'Connor described how the project, located on the Readville-Dedham line, would allow the Readville MBTA station to be "more pedestrian friendly." It would include wider sidewalks and a staircase, as well as aesthetic improvements such as more trees. No press questions were answered by National Grid or First Highland regarding improved access for persons with disabilities.

O'Connor noted that Robbie Burgess from Howard Stein Hudson was at the meeting. Howard Stein Hudson did an impact study on transportation issues and how the project would be impacted by the National Grid plant. Transportation was said to mainly impact Sprague Street and Hyde Park Avenue.

The project is in the design phase now and is scheduled to begin in mid-2018. O'Connor stressed throughout the meeting that the project is "as of right," meaning that the neither the developers nor National Grid need to seek variances for project approval.

National Grid's project manager stressed, "We are working on this project to see how we can better service the customer."

One major community concern was exactly whom the customers would be, if the project site is to be in Readville.

"Am I correct in saying that National Grid isn't even going to be supplying power to Readville," asked one resident in the audience, to which the National Grid team responded in the affirmative. "Then why are you coming here? Why can't you put it in Norwood? Why can't you put it in the suburbs?"

Another problem that angered the room was that residents seemed unaware that the National Grid facility would be running on a 24-hour basis. This includes a daytime drilling process. Then the rock and gravel goes through a daytime three-step filtration process, which the main National Grid representative, who joined O'Connor at the podium, but whose name was not audible, described.

He was asked by McCarthy and several residents to explain this process, because he was told he "did not answer the question" by the audience. Neighbors voiced concerns that fuel from the MBTA yard may be in the soil and have contaminated it and be released into the ground and the air, as well as minute rock and gravel dust particles.

"The dirt is not contaminated," the National Grid representative said. "It is not really dirt. It is rock and gravel. It goes through Sifter One, where it is concrete and asphalt. Then it goes through Sifter Two, where it goes through a smaller sifter. Then it goes through a final process, where it is stored on-site before it is taken away. It is the same process that we use in Lowell, Everett, Providence and New York."

What is left over "is eventually taken to New Hampshire, out west or somewhere, but not near here," he added.

"Can you give us some definition of the process," asked McCarthy. "Take us through the baby steps so we can understand exactly how this will impact us. We live here and will be impacted by this every day. I live right near here. My uncle has a business right near here. The traffic from all of these trucks and front-loaders is going to be impacting Wolcott Square because you have to access Route 128 and Route 1. You are going to be impacting the quality of life here with the noise."

"I think we are here to learn," added Consalvo. "In 2014, we were excited about it. I don't think it's about National Grid being a good neighbor. With National Grid, this project is a whole different ballgame than what was proposed in 2014. This is 24 hour."

Twelve to 15 smaller trucks, depending upon jobs, will be running from 8 a.m. for 4 p.m. Six to nine trucks, in sets of threes, will be transporting the processed material will be running from 7 p.m. to 4 a.m., but not continuously.

Flynn noted that the number of trucks and the activity has a lot of people up in arms.

"It gets a little bit stressful to me," he said. "You said six, then nine. What if that turns to 10 or 15 in terms of volume of traffic?"

Peter O'Hurley of National Grid explained that the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) has a national map with an environmental impact study that shows all of the areas of the country that are contaminated. Readville was not among the red dots on the map shown to have any contamination, according to this map.

"We have a gas side and an electric side of the plant," he continued. "There is a checklist process that we have to go through."

The first gentleman described the filtration system as having two huge window screens, the second with smaller holes than the first.

"But we're stuck living with all of this crap, for lack of a better word," said one angry resident. "And you are storing it in an open-air container. And you don't do this anywhere else in the city."

Long-time community activist Barbara Baxter explained that the community is up in arms because, two decades ago, Readville was told practically the same thing by the MBTA when the commuter rail station was built.

"Some of the things we have been dealing with for 20 years is the waste in the Neponset River and the smell of fuel," she said. "We don't trust it not to happen again."

"I remember when I was sitting in (Flynn's) chair when I worked for the late Mayor Tom Menino," added McCarthy. "That was one time he wouldn't speak to me. I had concerns about what that project would mean to the community, with the fuel, the noise, the smell, the construction. And 20 years later, here is another major development project, and we have the same concerns. I remember being in the Red Shirt project cleaning up the Neponset River. And now look at how many tons we just cleaned out of it."

"What happens when you start pounding the gravel," asked another resident. "The foundation is made of shale. Will my dishwasher be moving across the kitchen floor?"

"My child and I have asthma," added a man. "What happens when the dust is in the air, contaminated or not? We have to breathe that."

"Even now there are constant fumes and beeping during the night," added a woman. "What happens when you are running 24-7? We need more meetings."

"You can call the police for a commercial noise complaint as well as residential," responded the first National Grid representative at the podium.

Other questions regarded lighting impact, the possibility of creating a sound barrier, why this meeting was not located in Readville, the timing of the meeting, and why the IAG was not consulted prior to this meeting.

District 5 City Councilor Tim McCarthy, who lives in and represents Readville, echoed the residents' numerous concerns.

"I would never place the neighborhood in a compromising situation where quality of life is concerned," said McCarthy in an interview after the meeting. "First Highland has an incredibly positive relationship with the Readville neighborhood. We'll continue to work together to see if this is the proper use of this land."

2018 Mitsubishi Mirage

Mitsubishi is a brand that a lot of car buyers do not think of. Why? Mostly because the dealer network is limited and they do not do a lot of television advertising. Also, like a lot of car manufacturers, they have had some bad years.

This week I am driving a small, compact car called the Mirage GT 4-door sedan. The car is small and light, but seats five in a pinch. Power comes from a 3 – that's right – a 3-cylinder, 1.2 liter, 78 horsepower engine via a CVT automatic; a 5-speed manual is also available. The 3-cylinder engine moves the car at all speeds, even on the highway. The seats are firm and supportive and the car has a smooth ride for its size. Gas mileage ranges from a low of 33 city to a high of 43 highway, depending on the conditions. My average was just under 40 MPG combined (mostly highway). The car was nicely equipped with push-to-start, a/c, steering wheel controls, touchscreen display, HID headlights, in-glass mirror turn signals, and even a remote start. The drive on Route 24 in mixed driving on smooth and broken pavement was good for an economy car. The base 5-speed manual starts out at only $13,395 plus $865 for destination. Our GT as tested starts at $16,995. Not bad for a new car that has a 10-year/100,000 mile power train warranty, and a basic warranty of 5 years/50,000 miles.

This is not an entry-level car like those of years gone by. This can be the answer to a person that needs an affordable commuter car, or a second car in the family.

Boston's own Junior Damato, "The Auto Doctor" has agreed to field auto repair questions from Bulletin and Record readers. Please forward your questions to news@bulletinnewspapers.com and we will do our best to get your questions answered.

Whether you are an experienced or novice interviewer, these sessions will help you learn how to put your best forward and respond to questions with more confidence and conviction!

During the first session, participants will gain an understanding of behavioral interviewing, practice giving descriptive answers, and learn questions you legally can and cannot be asked. Attendees will also be given a packet with practice questions and a tip sheet for writing thank you notes.

In session two, which will take place on Thursday, Dec. 14, participants will meet for a one-on-one mock interview with Cindy Joyce, CEO, Pillar Search & HR Consulting. Participants can choose the interview format, phone, Skype, or in-person, and will be given feedback afterwards.
