Keep Hyde Park Beautiful (KHPB) celebrated all the hard work they have done throughout the year and thanked their volunteers by hosting a "Volunteer Appreciation" holiday party. The event took place on Dec. 12 at the Menino Arts Center and included hors d'oeuvres, desserts, drinks, holiday music, and mingling amongst other community members. Over 50 community members attended the party.

Keep Hyde Park Beautiful, which started in May 2017, is a "grassroots community group comprised of residents, property owners, business owners...and anyone else who wants to help us make Hyde Park a cleaner, greener commu-

On Thursday, Dec. 12, the Board of Directors of the Boston Planning and Development Agency (BPDA) voted to table the proposed development at 1717-1725 Hyde Park Ave.

The project – known as the Residences at Readville Station – has been under review at the BPDA since its letter of intent was filed by Ad Meliora, LLC in September, 2018.

The development would be located on the 2.5 acre lot next to the Father Hart Bridge between Hyde Park Avenue and the Amtrak/Providence/Stoughton/Franklin rail line.

As proposed, the site would have two buildings: one containing 157 condominium units and the other containing 128 rental units and a ground floor restaurant/retail space.

These buildings would partially wrap around a courtyard/pocket park area and would open at a center entrance that would be located near the crest of Hyde Park Avenue.

Combined, the 285 residential units would consist of 125 one bedroom apartments, 111 two bedrooms, 37 studios, and 12 three bedrooms, with garage parking for up to 300 cars.

Since the filing of the project application, the community process has consisted of one heavily

McCarthy says goodbye for now

About 60 people crammed into Bacaro's in Hyde Park on Monday night to wish outgoing District 5 City Councilor Tim McCarthy well on his way after his last Boston City Council meeting last Wednesday.

McCarthy said he felt blessed and honored at the party's turnout, which included friends from as far back as middle school and several elected officials.

"It's unbelievable," he said. "The best part about a party like this is there are people here from Neighborhood Services, there are people from when I was in the Parks, there are people from when I was in Public Works, from when I was a councilor and even before that. There are people I played football with and people who don't even live in the city anymore and came back."

McCarthy spoke about his friend PJ Terranova, now a member of the Riverside Theater Works and an old, old friend.

SWBCDC focusing on piecemeal housing

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The Southwest Boston Community Development Corporation (SWBCDC) met on Tuesday for its annual meeting.

The meeting was designed to get everyone together to celebrate the group’s recent accomplishments and look to the future. Executive Direct Jean DuBois said while they are very proud of the Residences at Fairmount Building, the more than 10 years it took to finance the build left a lot of people out of the process. She said for that reason, they’re looking at purchasing homes – triple deckers at this point – and keeping residences where they live to keep the housing in the area affordable.

“Here’s the cheaper, faster way,” she said. “We now have $8 million, $5 million from the Boston Property Casualty Initiative, which is basically an insurance pool, and $3 million from the City of Boston to buy these kinds of houses. The city gives us about $100,000 for each apartment.”

DuBois said they have secured housing for 13 families by the end of the year and are looking to keep 30 more in their homes in the coming months. She said the original model for this was the apartments they keep now at 875-889 American Legion. She said there were some bumps along the way, as they and the City assumed the costs would be lower and did not allocate enough funding to keep those residences solvent at first, but the model is working now and they are looking to expand it in the neighborhoods they currently serve and then possibly into Jamaica Plain.

They’ve been able to purchase three apartments at 17 Lexington St., six units at 63 Westminster St. and four units at 144 Arlington St. She said the apartments had 63 Westminster actually came with something extra.

“They had two illegal extra units in the back, so we can’t use those,” DuBois said. “The Mayo Group owned this house before buying it during the last recession.”

DuBois then brought up a discussion the group has been having with residents from the Woodbourne Community Group in Jamaica Plain regarding a proposed development at 15 Catherine St., which is on the Jamaica Plain Roslindale line. Woodbourne representative Richard Friend said they’ve been fighting a battle with a developer who has proposed five townhouses at the site, which currently hosts a triple decker.

“It breaks every zoning law there is, unless you want to build a skyscraper there,” he said. “These are all luxury apartments, selling for probably over $1 million each and other developers in our neighborhoods have been doing the same thing, tearing down affordable housing and putting these big luxury buildings up.

Assistant Director Patriica Alvarez went over the group’s

Green Initiative progress, and she said they have made great strides at specific areas like Sherrin Woods (new trail, flower meadow, the removal of tons of construction materials). She stressed that more advocacy is needed for helping to fund cleanups and staff for the city’s Urban Wilds and Urban Wilds program.

“There is nothing in the City’s budget to maintain these 35 Urban Wilds, and in the entire City there is one human being, Paul Sutton who is in charge of taking care of them,” she said. “Without friends groups and groups like ours he can’t possibly take care of all of them. We’ve got to advocate for more funding and more staff.”

She added they are continuing the work with the SWBCDC Green Team and have been advocating for adding $5 million to the city’s budget for the purchase of woodlands not appropriate for development but still at risk of development. She said she wants the City to keep that land in conservation and in perpetuity.

While the Residences at Fairmount is a model that the group is not pursuing at the moment, one resident of the new building said she is especially grateful. She currently lives on the third floor, but before that she said she had to move out of Boston to Brockton and away from her daughter, who was attending and is currently going to Sacred Heart School in Roslindale. She said it broke her heart, as she did not get to have the day-to-day interactions with her daughter, since her daughter was staying with a family in Boston. She applied and applied and applied to affordable housing lotteries all over the city and low and behold, she won at Fairmount.

“She thought it was her house before we won the lottery. She kept saying ‘I’ll see you soon,’ and she began to speak it into existence,” she said. “When you’re applying, just never give up.”

A brush with judgment

As the father of four daughters, I have antennae that are consistently attuned to gender inequality. They are so sensitive that I frequently compliment speakers who mention “sisters and brothers” in that sequence, violating the usual sequence of “brothers” first.

Recently at a very politically correct venue featuring Christmas music, the orchestra leader introduced the next carol as “God Bless the Master of This House.” There are two versions of this song: the short one, which was played the night in mention, and the longer one, which goes for a number of verses detailing the crucifixion.

The carol, with words spread on garlands in the middle of the last century, is said to be midway between a wassail (which I always thought to be merely an apple-cider-based drink but also actually includes singing) and a hymn.

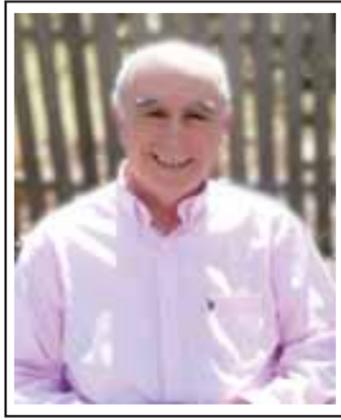

After the orchestral leader introduced the song, I sort of tuned out, wondering why in such a venue would he have the chorale and orchestra play such a seemingly chauvinistic carol.

One of the popular songs in “Les Miserables” also references the master of house, but the setting is in 19th-century France when women were subjugated to their husbands. The catchy, humorous song from Victor Hugo’s play as sung by Monsieur Thenardier continually touts the egotistical husband as the supreme monarch when not cavalierly referencing the name of the Creator without regard for the Second Commandment.

Ahh, but the Christmas carol in discussion here, first heard by me ever so recently, with merely two verses is no chauvinistic song: its second line shows why.

*God bless the master of this house,
The mistress also,
And all the little children
That round the table go:*

*And all your kin and kinsfolk,
That dwell both far and near;
I wish you a Merry Christmas,
And a happy New Year.*

I TAKE EXCEPTION TO YOUR EXCEPTION

To the Editor:

I find your level of unrest with the current decision made by the WRCIA very divisive in nature. One of the only things that was stated in your letter that I can say is factual is that the two potential locations will be closer to your neighborhood association than mine. However, West Roxbury is West Roxbury. And, while I understand and empathize with your concern - because I have my own concerns about things close to my home, I also find that WRCIA still has a voice as it functions within West Roxbury.

As the new leadership of WRCIA, I have tried to look deeper into issues that have arisen prior to my appointment. This was one of them. At the meeting held with Finbarr in September, which you were present for, it felt very uncomfortable and forced that the WRCIA was telling a business they could not have our approval when many of the people at that meeting liked and approved of Finbarr. It was not a matter of disliking Beacon or throwing a wrench in the works, but a matter of hearing all sides. Per my understanding, Beacon came before the community groups in 2017: they then tried to change to recreational after being told they could be medicinal only. They have visited other cities in close proximity such as Framingham with plans to go recreational, and they said to Matt O’Malley in a recent letter that they would be, “Medical Only,” however, “if that approval would be proposed to change, a re-engagement with the city would be necessary.” These words, straight from their letter do not scream medicinal only. I have no problem with recreational facilities, but I have a problem with a company coming into West Roxbury on the pretense of “medical only- always” simply to change once the surrounding community has grown comfortable with them.

WRCIA voted at the November meeting 20-0 that we were not comfortable standing by our almost 3-year-old letter of non-opposition in light of these events. West Roxbury, rather Ward 20, did actually vote in favor of medical and recreational marijuana in both the 2012 and 2016 elections respectively. I take exception to the twisting of facts to support opinion. In light of the controversy, WRCIA will be holding a meeting February 10, 2020 with a board of people who have actually had shops open in their towns, members of the marijuana community, and any of the companies or community groups that would like to attend. Our goal is to give members of this community a bigger picture: one that is transparent, cohesive, and easy to understand. I would like to extend this letter as an invitation to anyone who would like to join the conversation- we are always happy to listen. I live in West Roxbury with my husband and five children and I participate in the WRCIA because I am concerned with and committed to my community. This is a volunteer position but I take it upon myself to do my best and I feel that is done by listening. As previously stated, we would love to listen- so feel free to drop into any of our meetings and hear what we have to say or speak your mind.

*Larissa Castro
WRCIA President*

PASSING TRUST ACT VIOLATES OATH

To the Editor:

Once again Mayor Walsh and his rubber stamp city council prove that they do not serve the law-abiding citizens, and legal immigrants of Boston. They recently expanded the unconstitutional Trust Act passed in 2014 which basically made Boston a sanctuary city for illegal aliens. Walsh and the city council took an oath to defend the U.S. Constitution. The federal laws concerning immigration were made in pursuance of the Constitution. By passing the Trust Act, not only did they violate their oath but made Boston welcoming to illegal aliens criminals.

*Hal Shurtleff
West Roxbury*

SUPPORTING TRUST ACT IS COMMENDABLE

To the Editor:

We commend the Boston City Council for passing an Ordinance to strengthen the Trust Act. The Trust Act will help to clarify that Boston police are responsible for local law enforcement - to serve and protect, and not federal immigration enforcement.

When our local police take on the role of federal immigration enforcement, they lose the trust necessary for people to report crimes, offer testimony, and seek help for themselves or their family members and neighbors. If immigrants trust that they can safely contact the police when they need help, particularly in domestic violence situations, this will make the City of Boston safer for all of us.

We thank the Council and Mayor Walsh for their work to re-visit and improve this policy, and for their public commitment to supporting it.

However City policy is not enough. We believe that state-wide protections are needed.

We ask that all of our State Representatives and State Senators support the Safe Communities Act (S.1401 and H.3573) and ask that they make passage of this bill a priority in the current legislative session.

Among many reasons for supporting this legislation – not least, to insure that all people in our Commonwealth, consistent with our state constitution, have due process and civil rights protections, regardless of their immigration status – we are most concerned that without these protections, children from immigrant families will continue to live in constant fear of being suddenly separated from their parents. Stepped up federal deportation efforts are the cause; we here in Massachusetts should not be complicit. Protecting and supporting our immigrant neighbors makes all of our communities safer, and stronger.

ROAD DIET DOESN'T PROVIDE ENOUGH BENEFIT

To the Editor:

As someone who recently moved back to Roslindale, I am very well aware of Centre Street and the business district between Holy Name and St. Theresa’s churches. I worry about all that data -driven that pedestrian-focused safety solution to the status quo along Centre Street.

I have heard both sides of this argument and attended that November 9 meeting by the West Roxbury Safety Association at the Irish Social Club attended by nearly 400 residents.

I have nothing against bike lanes for bicyclists. However, we do know that mini-motorized bikes and scooters will also be using these bike lanes caus-

“This is our second one [holiday party for KHPB], we had one last year,” explained Cathy Horn, Founder of Keep Hyde Park Beautiful. “Last year it was just for the planning committee. This year we decided to open it up to everyone who volunteered, so it’s more of a volunteer appreciation party. We’ve had about 47 RSVPs.”

Throughout the year, KHPB has hosted multiple clean up events, planting events, and group nature walks. Last month, the group held their first ever “Fixit Clinic”, where volunteers helped neighbors troubleshoot and fix their broken items. KHPB has also helped with a Sherrin Woods Urban Wild clean-up in September, hosted “Flash Mob Clean-ups” on multiple streets around the neighborhood, hosted a group walk in Sherrin Woods, teamed up with Hyde Park Main Streets to beautify the planters in the business district, had a walking tour of the historic Fairmount Hill, held a dedication of the Barbara Baxter Memorial Garden, co-hosted a rock painting event with The Switch Co-Op, and much more. KHPB also has a We Noticed! Award, where they recognize local businesses that beautified their stores and the area around it. This year, recipients included the Rincon Caribeno Restaurant, the Parkway Cleansing Company, Christie Dustman & Company, and True Value.

“We make sure we recognize businesses,” stated Malika Whitley, a KHPB member. “We meet once a month and put our minds together to see what we can do in the community to keep the place neat.” Whitley’s favorite KHPB event is the “Flash Mob Clean-Up”. This year, the group has hosted flash mob clean ups on Business St., Prescott St., Cleary Square, and the business district.

“When you get people out there, they do something that they have never done before. Being out there is a big impact on them. You get out there in the community and help clean-up,” remarked Whitley.

Elisabeth Scott, longtime Hyde Park resident, follows KHPB on Instagram, and decided to attend the holiday party to learn more about the group. “I think they [KHPB] are a lot of fun and I enjoy what they do. I’m thinking of joining,” Scott stated. She enjoys the nature photos that KHPB shares on their social media pages.

“We [KHPB] don’t really have a membership, it’s really whoever just wants to get involved. I like to think of it as ‘everybody is a member’ they just don’t realize it. We all want the same thing. We want to live in a nice, beautiful community. Whoever can contribute to getting us there is welcome [in KHPB],” Horn remarked.

McCarthy Farewell

and I knew his sister and the instant I'm not a city councilor anymore I'm going to be on the Riverside Theater Works Board," he said. "I'm looking forward to it and focusing on the things I really want to focus on now. You know, the city council is always skimming the top, you can't really be an expert in anything, you've got to know a little bit of everything and you've got to be a jack of all trades. But now I can focus really on what I like to do and maybe sit back and perhaps coach some football. Who knows. But I'm excited; I'm ready for the next thing."

Terranova said he knew McCarthy was destined for public service even back in grammar school.

"I grew up about three blocks from his house," he said. "He was the same as he is now. I always knew he would be in politics; he was very smart, driven, dedicated, family-oriented. He has not changed, he's just aged."

McCarthy said for his part he's looking forward to a small amount of downtime.

"I haven't locked down a job yet for January, but I'm still putting my feelers out and I have a couple of irons in the fire, as they say," he said.

McCarthy's Chief of Staff Lee Blasi, who worked for former City Councilor Robert Consalvo, said both of them showed incredible integrity during her time with them.

"It's been amazing and it's been an honor," she said. "Tim is honest, genuine and compassionate. I come from a generation where we value respect and hard work. Tim's that guy; he has a love of this city and his community."

Resident and former Boston Police Department Superintendent Lisa Holmes said she first met McCarthy at Curry College where they were both working toward degrees as adults. She said it was great having a confidant because when work butted into their busy class schedules they were able to cover for each other.

"We stayed very close and helped each other out. He helped me out at the police department and I did whatever I could for him within the neighborhood and District 5," she said. "For the last five years I was over at the Boston Police Training Academy and with all those community meetings, I made sure they had what they needed on the first days of work and stuff, and we've just been good friends for years."

McCarthy said at his last Council meeting on Wednesday that he's been working in the city at the Department of Public Works, Parks and Recreation and Department of Neighborhood Services.

"I've been here for 27 years, so it's been good stretch," he said. "It's not a wake, I'm not leaving forever. I'll still be active in the community and I hope that the person who fills in my seat will be ready, I'll be very active in my community."

McCarthy also thanked his staff, who have been with him since he was elected to office six years ago.

"It's amazing when you get the new staff updates, my staff never changed," he said. "Twenty-seven years, it's been a good stretch. I started in August of 1992. So yeah, it's bizarre when you hear earlier Councilor (Andrea) Campbell had someone up there who has been working for 30 years, I'm like 'wow, that's a long time,' and it dawned on me that, 'whoah, that's me.'"

Retired Public Servant Surprised by "WEP"

Dear Rusty: I turned 62 in October 2018. A few months prior to my birth month, I went on the Social Security website which said my estimated benefits would be between $900-$1000 at full retirement age and between $600-$700 at age 62. I receive a pension from a city government where I was a firefighter for almost 20 years where I did not pay Social Security tax on my income, but I have over 20 years invested in Social Security from other jobs. I expected the cut in benefits for retiring early (62), but I was totally caught off guard by my benefits being cut in half again because of the Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP). My city pension is about $1700 monthly, and it's my understanding that WEP is not supposed to reduce my Social Security by more than half of my government pension. My current Social Security benefit is $348 a month which is considerably less than half of my $1700 pension. Am I missing something? Shouldn't I be getting $600-$700 in Social Security benefits? Signed: Retired Firefighter

Dear Retired Firefighter: WEP rules are complicated and you certainly aren't alone in your dismay over how WEP affects Social Security benefits for public servants in certain states which didn't participate in Social Security. I'll try to shed some light on what happened to your benefit amount.

The first thing you should know is that the estimates you received from Social Security before you claimed were just that – estimates. If you were working in SS-covered employment prior to getting the estimate, the amounts given assumed you would continue to work at your recent SS-covered earnings until your full retirement age. If you didn't, your full retirement age (FRA) benefit amount would be less than the amount quoted. The estimate given at that time didn't take WEP into account either. The WEP reduction takes place before the reduction for claiming early at age 62. WEP affects your "primary insurance amount" (PIA), which is the amount you're normally entitled to at your full retirement age from SS-covered work.

When you applied for Social Security your PIA was recomputed using a special WEP formula. Your PIA is based on your "average indexed monthly earnings" or "AIME", which is the monthly average of the highest earning 35 years over your lifetime in which you contributed to Social Security. Your PIA is determined by breaking your AIME into 3 parts (called "bend points"), multiplying those parts by a certain percentage for each part, and totaling up those three computations. When WEP applies, the first part of your AIME is multiplied by 40%, rather than the normal 90%, of the first $895 of your AIME (this is the amount for your "eligibility year" 2018). So, the first part of your WEP AIME would contribute $358 (instead of the normal $805) to your PIA and, thus, to your FRA benefit amount – a reduction of $447. (If you have more than 20 years of substantial earnings in SS-covered employment, the impact of WEP is lessened by about 5% for each year over 20). There is a maximum WEP reduction ($447 for 2018) and there is also a rule which says your WEP reduction cannot be more than half of your non-covered pension amount. But since half of your city pension is more than $447, that rule does not change the WEP reduction.

Russell Gloor

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

So, using your general numbers, if your FRA benefit (before WEP) was "$900-$1000", let's say that your normal PIA was about $950. After the WEP reduction your WEP PIA would be about $503, which is what you would get if you waited until your full retirement age to claim Social Security. By claiming at age 62, your benefit was reduced by about 27%, which would make your benefit about $367/month. This isn't far from what you are now getting, considering that we're using only estimated numbers in these calculations. Remember, the SS rule doesn't say that your WEP reduced benefit amount can't be less than half of your non-covered pension amount. Instead it says that the WEP reduction to your PIA can't be more than that.

2019 Subaru Crosstrek Hybrid

This is my first time driving a Subaru Hybrid. It is all new, with 2 electric motors along with the 4 cylinder 137 horse power 2.0 liter popular boxer engine, and twin electric motors pumping out additional power all thru a CVT automatic. This Hybrid is different than others. The EV range is only 17 miles and the recharge with a conventional 120 volt plug-in is only 5 hours and with the 240 volt plug only 2 hours. I used the regular 120 volt plug at work and it did charge in 5 hours. Seventeen miles range does work for short distances and for the long drive the gas engine takes control. Total driving range estimated at 480 miles. EPA 35 / 90 with EV mode.

Our Crosstrek was finished in blue pearl paint the finish was very deep to look into and bright. Subaru used to a kind of plain all wheel drive vehicle. This 2019 Crosstrek is anything but that. There is plenty of ground clearance, 8.7 inches, yet the seats are positioned low enough to enter and exit with ease. Subaru Eyesight driver assist with adaptive cruise control. Automatic pre collision braking, lane departure and sway warning with lane keep assist plus much more. LED lights front and rear with steering response head lights and automatic high beam control. Heated front seats and wiper deicer, steering hub controls, 6 way drivers power seat, leather wrapped steering wheel 4.2 inch dash cluster 8 inch touch screen center multi media display, tire repair kit replaces spare tire.

Base price on the Hybrid $34,995.00 destination $975.00. Our car did have option packages that included power moon roof, heated steering wheel, high out put audio with Nav and Harman Kardon 8 speaker 432 watt audio radio. Every one that looked at the car was impressed. There were no lows on this vehicle over my week of driving. I did charge the car and was able to drive about 17 miles on electric power some on highway.

Tony's Meat Market brings opera to neighborhood once again

Boston Opera Collaborative member Carley DeFranco entertains the crowd at Tony's Market in Roslindale.

Staff Reporter

Almost 100 people packed into Tony's Meat Market on Friday to hear the dulcet tones of opera and Christmas classics as part of the market's annual Christmas Pop-up Opera Night.

Owner Tony DeBenedictis has been putting the show on for almost 10 years now. He said he wanted to share his love of opera with the neighborhood, and with the help of the New England Opera Collaborative and local resident Fran Rogers, he has been able to open the opera to a wide Roslindale audience.

"People love it, we have good food and a lot of people come," he said. "A lot of people love opera. It was like a festival atmosphere here. We have the opera singers, we have (Ace Hardware owner) Joe Portelecki come and play the violin all night. WE have some food some wine and yeah."

DeBenedictis was born in 1939 in Pratola Serra in Italy and grew up during World War II. He said when the fighting was finally over, he heard his first love.

"Opera was the first music I heard in my life," he said. "In Italy they were feasting the town, when there was war there was no feast, but when the war was over there was a feast and they were playing Aida. I was fascinated. I never heard music before, there was a war. And it was the first music I heard and it stuck with me."

DeBenedictis said he does it to give something back to the community that has been supporting him and his store since 1963.

"Two years ago we had 100 people and tonight we have more," he said. "Tonight

I'm trying to give back to the community you know because they've been so good to me. Do you know any other business that's been here for this many years?"

DeBenedictis, now 80, added he believes there are several reasons for his own longevity.

"Let me put it this way, it's a combination of many things," he said. "I've been eating good food from Tony's Market for 56 years. And they say you are what you eat and I've been eating good food. But you know the future will tell you what the right decision was or was not. It's just like history, it's the same in your life. It's like I've been a ballroom dancer my whole life and that's the best exercise you can do. Physically and mentally, it makes you happy, that's the thing, exercise. And the good food, meat and pasta, and I have two glasses of cognac every night before dinner too."

Megan Biscelgia and Junhan Choi performed during the night on behalf of the New England Opera Collaborative. Biscelgia said this was her first time performing at the market and felt it was a great space for it.

"It's just such a great opportunity to share our music with the community and what the Opera Collaborative does, performing music in unique spaces and this is just a great venue for us," she said. "We are doing the Marriage of Figaro Feb. 6 through 9 at the Longy School of Music in Cambridge."

Resident Swapnil Rajiwade said he came to see his wife, Biscelgia, perform, and said he doesn't usually miss a show.

"In this intimate types of spaces, I love them, I remember this cozy bookstore where she performed and honestly I just like to see the community come together to enjoy these performers," he said. "There's clearly an audience for it and it's just a great appreciation for the art. It's really warm and I really love it."

Resident Judith Merritt said this was her first time at the pop up but she definitely wants to come back next year.

"I saw it on Keep Roslindale Quirky (the Facebook group) and I live nearby so I just walked up here," she said. "I just love the idea of being able to walk to go see opera. I like most kinds of music, but I haven't seen it live before and I'm trying to get interested in opera. It's just wonderful, it's really really wonderful."

Resident Julian Braxton and Robert Bevilacqua said this was their first time too.

"Tony brought me out, I've known him a long time," Braxton said. "It's so unique and just look at this, opera on a Friday night and the place is full? It's amazing."

"He's been here for 56 years, and I come to buy all my meats and it's nice to support a local vendor and he has great quality," said Bevilacqua.

Hyde Park Youth Basketball Association Season Opens 37th Season

The Hyde Park Youth Basketball Association (HPYBA) officially opened its 37th season on Saturday as the Craig Curran and Ray Foley divisions began a full slate of games at the Municipal Building. Enthusiasm was high, even in the face of inexperienced team play. Meanwhile a cohort of kids ages 6-9 filled the gym at the Ohrenberger School as the Instructional Division ran for its second week. Division Coordinator Raymond Paradis was delighted by the enthusiasm of both players, supportive parents, and some very talented players.

HPYBA Director James Michel expressed thanks for the efforts of the many volunteers that make the program work by taking on administrative and coaching duties, along with the many team sponsors that provide essential financial support, including:

Blue Hills Bank Commonwealth Cooperative Bank, State Rep. Angelo Scaccia, Tierney Realty Group, Olympic Pizza, Burke Insurance, The Lloyd Family, Councilor Ricardo Arroyo, Councilor Michelle Wu, Congresswoman Ayanna Pressley, Cappy's Pizza, Central Paint & Supply, Dunkin Donuts, Kenney Cleaners, Minute Man Press of Hyde Park, River Grille Ron's Gourmet Ice Cream

Foley Division Results

Darkside 41 - Cowboys 31

A valiant effort by both teams in the first game of our season. The Cowboys were down by 15 points going into the fourth quarter but the efforts of Chris Martinez (14 points) and Isaiah Figueroa (6) had them inching back into the game. However, the defense of Marvin Egbon and Kamari Perry kept the Darkside ahead the entire game. On the offensive side it was the Darkside's Jay Jackson who led his team with 18 points alongside Justin Elow, who himself scored 8 points. These two would have combined for more if it were not for the defense of Amir Mollineau and Devaun Davis-Lodge, both newcomers to the Foley Division. The Cowboys look to get a win next week against the 3-Pointers while the Darkside will prepare to take on the Hoyas.

3-Pointers 71 - 20 Hoyas

Even though the score does not say it, this was a hard fought battle coached by two of our senior coaches. The 3-Pointers started the game off strong and never looked back. With points scored by each player, the majority of them came from Freddy

Johnson (20) and Andrew Igharo (27). It was truly the defense of Nathaniel Bodden and Nathan Bonaventure, who held the Hoyas best player to 2 points the whole game, that was the highlight of this matchup. The Hoyas kept taking the right shots, they just seemed to not fall. Led by Christopher Sillice (8) and Carlos Feliciano (6) the offense put up a great fight. Defensively it was Timothy Trotman and Corey Cunniff who held down the top of the key making the 3-Pointers have to fight their way to the basket. The Hoyas look to bounce back next week as they take on the Darkside and the 3-Pointers look to keep this momentum going against the Cowboys.

Curran Division Results

3-Pointers 29 - Sonics 27

If you ask anyone about this game, make sure they talk in depth about the last three periods. The Sonics were behind by 13 points going into the final 10 minutes of the game which did not seem like an issue for their leading scorer GionniCenteio (22 points) or Quinton Avevor who was able to give multiple assists to Gionni over this span of time. However, the defensive efforts of MJ Bruneau and Jayden Raymond prevented the Sonics from going ahead in this game. For the 3-Pointers it was Oscar Torres who led the offensive charge with 13 points. The defensive work of Jada Zayas as a guard and Gideon Egbon down low kept the Sonics in the game the whole time. The Sonics look to get a win under their belt next week against the Blue Devils as the 3-Pointers look to prepare their skills to take on the Raptors.

Blue Devils 22 - Raptors 12

This was another game that came down to the last 10 minutes to decide a winner. The Blue Devils and Raptors both had good looks but the ball did not seem to want to fall. Scoring was started by Raptors' Alexander Diaz who led the team with 5 points. Alex had help from Feliciano Tavares who ran plays from the top of the key, distributing the ball well and scoring 4 points himself. It was the defen-

Petition signed for a transfer fee on real estate sales

Following months of collaboration with the Boston City Council, Mayor Martin J. Walsh recently signed a home rule petition that would give Boston the ability to implement a transfer fee of up to two percent on the purchase price of any private real estate sale over $2 million in the City of Boston.

Following months of collaboration with the Boston City Council, Mayor Martin J. Walsh today signed a home rule petition that would give Boston the ability to implement a transfer fee of up to two percent on the purchase price of any private real estate sale over $2 million in the City of Boston, as a means to generate additional funding to create and preserve affordable housing in Boston.

“Housing is the biggest economic challenge facing the residents of Boston and people across our region. That’s why it’s critically important that we do everything we can to support the creation of homes that are affordable, while also preserving our existing housing stock,” said Mayor Walsh. “I am proud to sign this home rule petition that is a significant step forward in our work, by giving Boston the ability to impose a modest fee on the sale of private property, which will collectively do a world of good towards our efforts to make Boston a more affordable place to live.”

The Home Rule Petition would authorize the City of Boston to impose a fee of up to two percent of the purchase price upon the transfer of property valued at over $2 million, with one percent paid by the seller and one percent paid by the purchaser. The funding generated would be dedicated to the Neighborhood Housing Trust or appropriated through the annual budget process to support the creation and preservation of affordable housing in the City.

The proposal will now move to the Massachusetts Legislature for approval. If approved by the state, the City would have the ability to determine the final rate for the fee, collection method and any exemptions that would exist. The Home Rule Petition was passed by the Boston City Council on Wednesday, December 11.

“Housing is a public good and common responsibility, and those who generate wealth in our communities must be part of ensuring residents can remain in the neighborhoods they love,” said Councilor Edwards, Chair of the Council’s Committee on Housing and Community Development. “Today, Boston joins a growing coalition of municipalities asking the state for the power to ensure that the housing we build truly meets our residents’ needs.”

“It is absolutely imperative that we enact policies that will ensure our residents will have a safe and affordable home to live in for many generations,” said Councilor Kim Janey, Vice-Chair of the Committee on Housing and Community Development. “When passed by the state legislature, this home rule petition will help curb speculative real estate practices and stands to bring as much as $169 million in revenue annually that can be invested in affordable housing.”

According to an analysis conducted by PFM Group Consulting, real estate sales in Suffolk County have ranged from approximately $3 billion to over $12 billion in the last decade. The City of Boston accounts for the vast majority of the county’s population (86%) and real estate activity. From 2009 through year-to-date, total private real estate sales have averaged $8.4 billion. Based on average sales in Suffolk County, estimates show that a 1% fee on all private-market sales would have raised $84 million per year over the last decade, and a 2% fee would have generated over $168 million, a significant increase on the City’s existing robust affordable housing investments. This analysis assumes inclusion of all properties sold, and not just those with a value in excess of $2 million.

The transfer fee proposal is another example of how the City is working to raise dedicated revenue to support specific initiatives aimed at improving the quality of life for residents. Earlier this year, the City of Boston updated parking meter fees in an effort to reduce congestion, increase the availability of parking and reinvest funding into transportation infrastructure, which has resulted in more accessible sidewalks, improvements to Blue Hill Avenue, and new funding for protected bike lanes. Also earlier this year, the City committed to using funds generated through the Commonwealth’s new Room Occupancy Excise Law to support our housing goals, including the creation of 50 new units of permanent supportive housing, and pathways to housing for youth and young adults experiencing homelessness.

The Mayor’s support of the transfer fee proposal builds on his commitment to build and preserve housing that is affordable to residents. Since the release of the original Housing a Changing City: Boston 2030 plan in 2014 this administration has spent over $200 million to develop income restricted housing. This income-restricted housing stock, designed to increase affordable housing, has grown along with overall new production: nearly 20 percent of housing units are income restricted, and 25 percent of rental units are income restricted. In total, after creating an additional 15,820 units of income-restricted housing, Boston will have nearly 70,000 units of income-restricted housing by 2030.

Mayor Walsh’s 2019 housing security legislative package focuses on expanding upon the work that Boston has done to address the region’s affordable housing crisis and displacement risks for tenants by proposing new and strengthening current tools to leverage Boston’s prosperity and create sustainable wealth opportunities that make Boston a more inclusive and equitable city. The housing security bills proposed seek to help existing tenants, particularly the elderly, remain in their homes, and creates additional funding for affordable housing.

attended BPDA sponsored public meeting this past April, two Impact Advisory Group (IAG) meetings that were held in June and November, and two comment periods.

Opening the 20 minute appointment – which featured three speakers but was not a public hearing – BPDA Project Manager Lance Campbell recommended that the Board authorize a scoping determination waiving further project review, and that it issue and execute all documents and agreements deemed appropriate by Director Brian Golden.

Though not specifically mentioned by Campbell in his two minute overview of the project and subsequent recommendation, the agenda description also requested that the Board recommend approval to the Board of Appeal for the necessary zoning relief.

Following Campbell, the developer’s project designer – Michael Doherty of The Architectural Team, Inc. – gave a seven minute slide presentation updating the Board on the project and its changes, the most notable being the reduction from 305 units to 285.

It was, however, the third speaker – State Representative Angelo Scaccia (14th Suffolk District) – who, by both his own comments and by his reading into the record of two letters, may have had the greatest impact on the Board’s decision to table the request.

Scaccia – adamantly opposed to the project – spoke of its effect on the already heavy traffic that bottlenecks onto and off of the Father Hart Bridge daily.

“If you ever thought of any place you shouldn’t put this development, it’s here,” he said of the proposal. “It’s right at the heart of a bridge that – for seven to nine hours every day – has nothing but traffic half a mile, mile deep, and it just stays on the bridge.”

Scaccia also spoke of a similar proposal that had been put forward two years earlier and had

The current site of the proposed development, now approved by the Boston Planning and Development Agency.

been rejected. “The people spoke unanimously in opposition to this project, yet the same 285 units... that the people said no to, is before this Board today.”

Scaccia also read a letter from Readville Neighborhood Watch Chair Roberta Johnene, in which she concentrated on the undetermined traffic impact of new industrial projects as well as the recently BPDA approved 247 unit development at 36-40 Sprague St. that will be constructed less than half a mile away from the 1717-1725 Hyde Park Ave. site.

“Not only are the known existing traffic issues not solved, but the new ones from the Sprague Street project, the as-of-right developments on Industrial Drive, and the addition of National Grid to Readville Yard 5, have not been seen,” Johnene wrote. “Therefore, green lighting another project in a small area before verifying a positive impact on the proposed solution to known existing problems is anything but reasoned and planned.

Commenting also on the yet to be determined mitigating effect of the traffic lights being installed at the bridge bordering the site, Johnene made a request on behalf of the area:

“I am writing to ask that you abstain from a vote on this project until the neighborhood has had an opportunity to experience and evaluate the success of the proposed traffic reconfiguration and lights at Father Hart Bridge.”

In closing, Johnene used her request as a way to challenge the BPDA to justify that “the development in this area has been part of a planned process that considers the quality of existing residents’ lives from those already green lit future residents.”

Scaccia also read a note – which he chose to leave the names out of – in which an IAG member was asked to send in an email supporting the project in exchange for help from the developer in building a boardwalk on Fowl Meadow, should the project be approved.

Addressing the Board after reading it, he noted that Fowl Meadow is a DCR (Department of Conservation & Recreation) facility that the City has no control over and expressed his frustration at the offer that had been made in it. “This is what I call divide and conquer.”

At the conclusion of Scaccia’s comments, which ran about 10 minutes, Board member Carol Downs motioned to table the BPDA request for a scoping determination waiving further review. This was approved unanimously, leading a somewhat surprised Scaccia to make one last statement after pausing momentarily: “So Merry Christmas!”

ing havoc as they often do.

I think that stores, restaurants and small shops in the business district could very well be hurt if parking is shrunk. I support our local economy and believe any road plan must be more positive to West Roxbury and by extension Roslindale. In many communities across the country there have been mixed results with road diets. Providence, RI is curbing them as reportedly unproductive. Others communities have done likewise.

I do understand the elimination of removing some parking spots at the end of certain blocks to make the area more visible to all based on visibly concerns.

I do know that the city is moving ahead with another road diet in Boston's South End along Tremont Street between Herald St. and Massachusetts Avenue. The same concerns are being raised.

However, reducing lanes of traffic will not reduce the numbers of vehicles in traffic. We do not live in Amsterdam, we live in America and our vehicles are part of our culture. It represents personal freedom and control over getting to and from work or to and from dining or anything else. The MBTA would halt to a stop if we all turned to public transit.

This road diet will need more discussions between BPDA and the community. Both sides need to listen to one another and come up with a plan that can work for all. No one likes things ramped down their unwilling throats. Working together and listening together is the right road to take.

sive rebounding of Jaden Pinet that kept the Raptors from second chance points. On the offensive side for the Blue Devils, Chandler Frederick (10 points) and Yamil Araujo (6) led the charge. We cannot forget about Jeymi Guirado who had many wide open shots, finally getting one to fall in the beginning of the second half. The defense of Logan Anis and Marvin Emeran kept the Raptors alive in this game. Next week, the Blue Devils look to face off with the Sonics in what should be a very good match-up while the Raptors will prepare to take on the 3-Pointers in a battle of veteran coaches.
