On Thursday, Feb. 22, the Haitian Artists Assembly of Massachusetts (HAAM), in collaboration with Artists-at-Large and Z Gallery held a reception at the Hyde Park Branch of the Boston Public Library.

The cause for this event was twofold. The first reason was to fete Hyde Park resident (and HAAM member) Falid Milord, whose seven works of art had been displayed in the computer room on the Library’s main floor through February.

The second reason for the reception was in order to hold a signing and sale of the HAAM’s new book Migrating Colors: Haitian Art in New England.

Milord, living in Hyde Park since 2016, took time at the beginning of the reception to talk a little about his background

Budding proposal for Hyde Park Ave. medical marijuana dispensary

The Hyde Park Neighborhood Association (HPNA) gathered on Thursday evening, March 1 in the community room of the District E-18 Police Station, drawing a crowd of about 30 local residents and presenters for the monthly meeting.

The main item on the evening’s agenda had to do with a proposed medical marijuana dispensary that would be located at 883 Hyde Park Ave., about a block from American Legion Highway.

Representatives of newly founded Evergreen Farms went before the Association to give some background on the project, present the basic business plan for the dispensary, and to answer questions.

Roslindale native Kris Krane, President of 4Front Ventures – a firm that works with businesses to open high end retail medical cannabis facilities – and advisor to the project, did most of the talking, though each member of Evergreen Farms leadership also spoke of their background with medical marijuana.

Evergreen Farms is currently in the process of applying to the City for a letter of non-opposition, which is a mandatory component of the approval process overseen by the Department of Public Health.

laid out its zoning rules, there will be a dispensary in basically every neighborhood in the city,” Krane said.

According to Evergreen Farms CEO Ben Smith, there could be up to 41 dispensaries allowed throughout the city.

Focusing on the inevitability of a medical marijuana dispensary coming to the community in one way or another, Krane presented the local make up of the Evergreen Farms ownership –most of whom are either residents of Roslindale or the greater Boston area – as a favorable selling point of the project.

“We would certainly be more accessible than any other company that could possibly come here,” he said.

The industry, which is heavily regulated, requires all dispensary employees to go through a background check with the Board of Health before being hired. As Krane explained, Evergreen Farms will also have its own separate comprehensive training program for all new employees.

Krane also went into detail regarding how the process would work for a patient visiting the dispensary.

Only patients with a valid medical marijuana identification card can access dispensaries, which are open from 10 a.m. - 7 p.m. seven days a week.

At the dispensary entrance area, security personnel will check for the card and then send the visitor in to the reception area, where staff will run the card to make sure there are no problems with it or with the patient’s

Transit Matters proposing electrified Fairmount

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

Transit Matters, a transit advocacy group, recently released a large report stating that the MBTA needs to start focusing on regional rapid rail transit rather than traditional commuter rail.

The report, filed on the group’s web site at transitmatters.org/regional-rail, stated that specifically there is a long-term and a short-term solution for helping to ease Boston’s transit woes in terms of wait times and access. Both of these items are focused on increasing train frequency at stops in a big way.

The first is a long-term solution that proposes the MBTA at least look at making the Needham Line rapid transit rather than commuter rail. Transit Matters co-founder Marc Ebuna said though he realizes this would take a lot of work, it is something the MBTA should be looking into and something the Paris Reseau Express Regional already uses.

Ebuna said the MBTA could extend the Orange Line through the Commuter Rail Stations and extend the Green Line to Needham Heights. For the Green Line, Newton, Needham and the MBTA are already looking into a rail right of way on that route for Green Line Service.

Ebuna said it would be expensive for sure, but it definitely would help increase service for riders commuting and it would take a lot more vehicles off of city streets. There are two problems facing the transfer of the Commuter Rail to rapid transit, the first of which being platform heights. Areas where there are no high

Senior artists showcase their talent at library exhibit Saturday

Artists whose work appears in the Menino Arts Center (MAC)/Blake Estates/Paul Nolan Group exhibit appear in a group photo at the Hyde Park Branch of the Boston Public Library.

Menino Arts Center (MAC) community liaison Rosemarie Clinton was told not to pursue her love of art when she was a child.

But as an adult, she was encouraged by a longtime Hyde Park artist, the late Paul Nolan, to pursue her passion 18 years ago. She soon won a prestigious Graumbaker Award and had her art displayed at City Hall.

Now she inspires senior citizens to discover their hidden talents. Twenty of them displayed and discussed their works at a reception for their exhibit, coordinated by Clinton and hosted by fellow Hyde Park resident Larry Johnson at the library on Saturday.

Entitled "Inclusive," the display of more than 50 pieces features works from the MAC's Nolan Group and the Mobile Arts Program, as well as local professional artists. The art, including painting, drawings, ceramics and sculpture, will be featured until April 20.

The two programs, each regularly attended by core groups of about 10 people, are truly inclusive, explained Clinton. Tomas Davin serves as a translator, regularly speaking in Spanish and French.

And Joseph Rivera, a senior artist with at least 10 paintings and ceramic pieces on display, if deaf and mute. A member of the group at Blake Estates, he communicates through sign language, written words, vivid hand gestures and an ever-present wide smile.

"Joseph is just amazing," said Davin, a native of Puerto Rico. "He is one of the best I have ever seen. He does all of his work from memory."

Rivera, who reads lips to answer questions, held his hands to his heart in pure joy as he motioned them outward, watching as people admired his work. He then held his hands to his forehead, gently letting them flow outward to express his memories.

His color choices are many times as vivid as his expressions. One was a cheery painting of sunflowers. A favorite of viewers was an autumn painting of a bare tree emblazoned with an orange-red sky.

"He copied that one from a work I did," said fellow senior artist Geneva Kingswood. "He's so good with trees. Look at the detail on the branches. I had done one that he liked, so I told him to do it."

The two became fast friends, she said, through their mutual love of art and respect for one another. She began painting in the Mobile Arts Program in 2014 at age 82.

Kingswood's favorite piece in the exhibit was her sculpture of a man's slanted head. His gaze looks anguished.

"I like that he has a lot of problems," she said of her piece. "In the process of sculpting him, he kind of went slanted. I went with it."

Luke Bruffee, a Jamaica Plain resident, instructs Blake Estates residents in sculpture and ceramics. He has been teaching with the program for five years.

"It's a labor of love," he said. He uses clay and stoneware and allows students to pick designs from the Internet.

He said it can be challenging because people speak different languages. Also, Hyde Park does not have a kiln, so he has to transport the works to fire them.

"I go to Stonybrook Fine Arts in JP to fire them," he said. "Some works get broken in transit."

Nancy Mejies showed off her painting of a fisherman. She said she hasn't been doing it long – "pero apriendo," she said, which translates to "but I am learning."

She does it "pasar el tiempo con amor y para hacer la mente funcianando," or "to pass the time with love and to keep the mind functioning."

Johnson instructs both programs and first met Clinton in 2009. He also teaches a drawing workshop on Saturday mornings and is a long-time cartoon artist.

"We discuss how we are going to do a piece," he said. "The people here are very enthusiastic."

Paul Nolan Group member Beatrice Baga is a life-long Hyde Park resident. She participates in the program with her daughter-in-law, Susan.

"Just Onions" is one of her favorite paintings. It shows the fine details of onion skin and rich colors in the background to allow them to stand out.

"Rosemarie makes you feel like you can do anything," she said. "She says nothing you do is wrong."

Hundreds celebrate HP Youth Basketball at All Star Night

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The Hyde Park Youth Basketball Association (HPYB) celebrated its 35th year at Tuesday's All-Star Night to the delight of hundreds of players, parents and coaches.

Run by resident James Michel, the league has persisted as a community resource and a good way to get children some exercise. Michel said the night was for celebrating the association.

"This is our big night you know?" he said. "It's a time to celebrate the gem that this program is to the community."

And like most good executives, he's not just the director but a former client.

"So I started coaching when my son was six years old and now he's 31, so it's been 25 years for me," he said. "I've always loved sports, for me growing up it was always a source of confidence for me."

Michel said for the program itself, they want to emphasize the game more than trying to win.

"What I really like is teamwork and the feeling of being a part of a team and I think every human being wants to be a part of the team, and that's what we emphasize: teamwork, sportsmanship, having fun, trying your best, working hard and learning how to deal with a little bit of frustration too," he said.

The program itself is sponsored by about 20 community businesses and Michel said that allows them to only have to charge about $50 to $60 for the whole 14-week program.

"It allows us the uniforms, the trophies, the gym time, the refs – they're basically volunteers, we pay them pin money – and it's a great deal," he said.

Resident Marti Melecio came with her daughter to watch her two grandsons play during the night. She said her own son started in the program too, and it's always been a family adventure.

"Remember, I'm the grandparent!" she said laughing. "We're talking a lot of years, Antonio, he's 32, so we've been doing the Hyde Park basketball for almost 30 years, but my grandson... this is his third year in the program."

Her grandson, Malik Freeman, said he really enjoyed the program both because of the atmosphere of the games and the direction of the coaches.

"A lot of people I know I know just through here," he said. "It's really fun, I feel like the coaches, they do a lot about actually how to play the game instead of them just trying to win. A lot of other programs, they just focus on being competitive. I feel like here they focus more on learning how to shoot, how to not travel and I feel like it's really actually helpful."

Resident Daniel Evans said he came out to see his son at the All Star game.

"My son plays every year and he's been playing for the last four to five years now and I wanted to come by and see him play," he said. "I love the program, it gives kids the chance to learn the game of basketball and enjoy themselves."

Michel, State Rep. Angelo Scaccia and representatives from the Boston City Council and the office of Boston Mayor Marty Walsh all honored three coaches for their service to the community through the HPYB. They all gave out plaques and accolades to coaches Matt O'Neill, Danny Kalayjia and Enrique Rodriguez for the annual Fred Burke Community Service Award.

"These young men played in the league and now they're back here coaching and that's how this organization is not only going to survive but it's going to get better, and better and better every year," said Scaccia.

Player Nick Hines was also given an award and accolades for winning the yearly essay contest about sportsmanship. Twelve teams made the All Star Game this year, with Timothy Trotman, Barron Langston, Hijjah Allen-Paisley, Nathaniel Bodden, Ezayi Mauresthene, Amani Andujar, Josiah Banks and Stuart Chaban-Griffith for the Craig Curran Division South. Jaylen Harrell, Sean Lendaro, Giomni Centeio, Gersmani Rivera, Keyona Rainess, Matthew Eveillard, Casey Idemudia, Pearce Edouard, Destyne Everett and Chandler Frederick represented the Craig Curran Division North.

Jahid Allen-Paisley, Nosa Egoban, Malik Freeman, Benjamin Pierre, Nathaniel McCarthy, Danny McDonough, Andrew Hiliano, Korey Sam, Robert Gant and Antonio Torres represented the Ray Foley Division East. In the Foley West, Wayne Meadows, Devon Marshall, Kymani Fleurme, Jeremy Gonzales, Alex Silice, Nathaniel Cozier, Pierre Fortune, Jose Zayas, Christopher Martinez and Akil Grubbs on their respective teams.

THE WHEELS ON THE BUS

At-Large City Councilor Anissa Essaibi-George is demanding to know why the cost savings promised by the Boston Public Schools Transportation Department have not yet been realized. Instead, for Fiscal Year 2018, there is a transportation cost overrun.

The short answer: anytime the government promises to save money, it doesn't. Taxpayer dollars will always be tucked into a corner where it is "needed."

Last fall, the BPS promised a cost savings of around $10 million from new efficiency programs, including a controversial route-mapping change engineered with MIT.

In fairness to the school department, overhauls of this sort do take time. And, those new bus routes and times were despised despite the savings.

Here, however is the real problem. At a recent meeting, Chief of BPS Operations John Hamlin said that one of the biggest issues facing the BPS is half of students served by BPS Transportation are not BPS school students.

For the BPS, the department transports 33,545 BPS students to 133 sites every day, 166 students to 63 sites for private special education, 1,853 students to 43 sites for private or parochial schools and 7,406 students to 29 charter sites.

This is the travesty that needs to be fixed. We have high praise for a parochial education and support charter schools, but the extra rides need to stop even if it takes legislation to do so.

Yes, we understand you are all taxpayers and should have equal access to the services public schools have. But why should City schools subsidize competitors to such a lopsided degree? Nearly 10,000 kids ride to school on Boston's dime while students get up at dawn to work their way across the city by MBTA. Let the charter kids do some of that same creative travelling to get to school each morning.

At the very least invest in some cheaper form of transportation for these kids.

Then, indulge us; there is still the idea of returning to neighborhood schools. That, however, is an argument for another day.

TIP OF THE WATERLOGGED CAP

Our propensity for late winter storms has certainly continued this year, with two terrible, flood-inducing beasts back-to-back. As we should do more often, let's take a minute to praise all the firefighters, EMS crews, and police who have done an exemplary job of keeping us safe. It takes a special breed to rush into a storm, not seek shelter from it. We, as a city, are very lucky to have dedicated servants of this quality.

Oh, and the repair and construction crews out there. We haven't forgotten your hard, cold, and sometimes thankless work. Restoring power to so many people must be an absolute nightmare, yet it is amazing (despite the inevitable critics) how fast the job is getting done. Your work is appreciated!

Woman beats train in 100-yard effort

Most boys growing up in Boston dream about running 100 yards on a football field untouched by any opponent. The venue for such a fantasy might be White Stadium, East Boston Memorial Stadium or the fields abutting West Roxbury High, English High, Catholic Memorial or BC High.

More than half a century ago I did such, but I was not on a football team. I was a summer groundskeeper at White Stadium, and had the whole field to myself on several occasions when I would gallop from one end zone to the other.

No sprinter's or football player's dash could match in importance as that done by 19-year-old Ashley Aldridge on Sept. 15, 2015. A recent National Geographic reference, too brief as a matter of fact, outlines this truly amazing woman's sprint; subsequent on-line investigation into her deed revealed much more to extol her act.

Working in the kitchen of her mobile home in a small central Illinois town, she had an obstructed view of the railroad grade crossing about a football field's length away. Having just finished feeding lunch to her 1 and 2-year-old children, she noticed through the kitchen window that a wheelchair in the middle of the grade crossing was stuck. The wheelchair occupant was yelling for help, but at least three vehicles blew by him

of Town/

without stopping.

Aldridge asked a neighbor to watch her two kids so that she could go help. Suddenly she heard a train horn blast and the clanging of the crossing gate's bell. Barefoot, she realized that now she needed to run at full speed and on the railroad's rocky stone bed to the 75-year-old man.

When she reached the wheelchair, which was motorized, the train was less than half a mile away down the straight track. Approaching at almost 80 miles per hour, the locomotive's horn was already blaring.

She could not dislodge the heavy wheelchair, nor could she lift the heavy septuagenarian out of the wheelchair. As the train barreled toward them, with the blaring of the horn almost deafening both of them, she gave one final heave - was it an adrenaline rush or the kindness of our God or a combination of both? - to yank him free in a literal nick of time. Both fell backwards as the roaring locomotive smashed the wheelchair, pushing parts of it a half mile down the track.

The saved man was neither her grandfather nor uncle, nor did she even know him.

Auburn, Ill., is a small town of 4,700 citizens; the man was an utter and complete stranger, who would later claim that Ashley was his "guardian angel."

Her reward was meager by today's standards of giveaways on television quiz programs. AMTRAK gave her a couple of free tickets, and the Chatham Country Market in the nearby town of Chatham, Ill. (population 12,000) gave her three minutes to pile anything she wanted into a grocery cart. No fool she, Aldridge went straight for the higher priced items that she would not normally buy.

"I'm pretty excited because we haven't been able to buy a whole bunch of food for the kids. I'm glad I can finally make them real food and not macaroni and cheese all the time," she said.

The $187 windfall certainly came at the right time. Before the rescue, someone broke into their trailer home and stole money meant for food and other bills.

Our God certainly works in strange ways.

A LOT OF SQUAWKING ABOUT THE HEN HOUSE

To the Editor:

I could not let another day go by without commenting on your article about the two hens and chicken coup on Corey Street.

In West Roxbury, where there are three and four-story condos going up anywhere there is a vacant gas station, parking lot, abandoned house, or just green space, the fuss over two hens seems laughable.

The contractors and developers just ask for a variance from the zoning board if their buildings do not meet local codes and are granted the variance.

I cannot imagine said zoning board refusing to grant a variance for a chicken coup when they grant them all the time for very large condos on very small lots. All this regardless of what the adjoining neighbors want.

I wonder if the people who are complaining are as worried about traffic, lack of adequate parking height of buildings and density of people from all these condos as they are about the two hens.

WHEN THERE IS A WILL, WE CAN FIND A WAY

To the Editor:

While I am skeptical that anything will happen on a federal level in terms of gun control, I still commend the students of the school in Parkland, Fla. for going to the state capitol and demanding something be done on a state level.

As expected, people who do not share their views have tried to belittle them on social media. They say why listen to them when they come from the same generation that swallows TIDE detergent pods. One Florida state representative aide called some of them paid crisis actors.

Nobody can deny they have made a difference. Florida, for the first time, is considering gun control measures. Walmart and Dick's Sporting Goods are increas-and work, with some help from his older brother, Jean Rolf, who serves as his younger brother’s interpreter when necessary.

Falid, speaking for himself, described working with whatever materials he could find to create art as a little boy growing up in Haiti.

“Since I was a kid, I used to transform things: a piece of wood and make something great, or a piece of paper and plastic... I would mix them together and try to create something very nice,” Falid said.

This background immediately became evident looking at the seven pieces of art hanging around one corner of the room: Oils; a wood carving; a relief made from soaked newspaper; acrylic paint; and wood, solidified with modeling paste; another made from Bondo auto body filler and paint.

We looked up at the oil painting, Free Not – although Milord said that this wasn’t his title – that advertised the event: a dove bursting through a hole in the white background but tethered by one of its ankles, with indistinct masses of people visible behind the edge of the white.

“It kind of explains how people are trying to escape from the problems of society,” Jean Rolf interpreted. “Even though you’re trying to but, because of connections, that same society you’re trying to get away from is pulling you back.”

The white background represents the veil of life and, originally, Falid had not intended for it to be in the painting, but he didn’t want viewers to see only the problem, so he chose to cover the background of the canvas with the veil, leaving only a little bit of society visible behind it.

The painting was done quickly – the main portion done over the period of a few hours – though Jean Rolf explained that the plan often changes.

“He might start something that he might do in three hours and, at the same time, he might start something thinking that it’s going to be done in three hours and it takes a month,” Jean Rolf said.

Milord also follows his inspiration. Another oil painting hanging cornered toward Free Not is a continuation of the same theme with the birds in Don’t Fly perched on an outstretched arm representing society keeping a hold of them. According to Milord, it was painted right after the first.

The small crowd at the reception was comprised mainly of Haitian artists – all of whom appear as contributors in Migrating Colors.

One of them, Myrlène “Mimi” Désir, explained the rationale behind the book and the dual reception.

“We leave the country but we are still in the country when we are around each other. That’s why we combined to do that beautiful book and to be here today for Falid,” she said.

The book itself is a compilation of 30 Haitian artists from New England, each of whom have a few sample works shown on their pages along with a photo and brief biography of the artist. It was two years in the making. Its Project Director was Charlot Lucien, one of the founders of HAAM.

Another, Joseph Chéry,

“Charlot and I spearheaded the Haitian Artists Assembly back in 1989-90. So we’ve been running this ad hoc, informal organization since then,” he said.

According to Chéry, the organization was originally comprised of visual, performance, and literary artists, “but the (visual) artists have been pretty much the most active part of the Assembly.”

“This is a good 20 years of work,” he said.

As explained by President and Founder of Artists-at-Large Thomas Seggers, the plan for the reception was to draw people in to see Milord’s work and then lead them to the book.

“This will spiral out into a series of exhibits over the coming year,” Seggers said.

In the old reading room of the Library, some refreshments are served as the group gathers around in easy chairs to ask questions and to hear Milord’s comments. His brother and children sit around him.

After Falid told of his older brothers inspiring him to become interested in making art, Jean Rolf gave an example of how his younger brother continues to take it further, using as an example a photo of burning wood that he thought was beautiful, photographed, and sent to Falid, who made art from it.

“Sometimes I have an idea that I cannot express, so I give it to Falid,” he said.

2018 Infiniti QX80 AWD

The 2018 Infiniti QX80 features more technology and safety equipment, an all new hydraulic suspension, plus third row seating and more. Power is from a carryover 5.6 liter, V/8 engine with 400 horsepower via a 7-speed automatic transmission. The AWD transfer case has both high and low range. The transmission also has a tow mode for towing or carrying heavy loads.

When one thinks of a large SUV, most think of GM or Ford. Move over - the Infiniti QX80 is a game changer. From the heated and ventilated front seating to the heated steering wheel, 13-speaker Bose audio system, 8-inch touchscreen display with voice recognition, front and rear sonar system cruise control, tri-zone temperature control, plus more, this is a luxury SUV that is truly a multipurpose vehicle.

The QX80 rides and handles more carlike than SUV. The seating is firm and the leather is very soft and plush. Steering hub controls are a big plus. Heating, audio even the NAV system are easy to control from simple knobs. But don't worry, there is also the touchscreen if you choose.

This is a quality, seriously large seven passenger vehicle made here in the USA. Our test QX80 base price was $67,850 (plus $995 destination). Option packages are as follows: Deluxe Technology Package at $5,700 including smart rear-view mirror, upgraded 15-speaker Bose audio, semi-aniline leather seating with quilting, climate controlled front seating, hydraulic body motion control, adaptive front lighting, and chrome mirror caps. Theater Package is $2,450, with dual 8-inch rear seat monitors, two wireless headphones, wireless remotes, 120-volt rear outlet, heated second row seats, and remote tip-up rear seats.

Twenty-two-inch tire upgrade with alloy wheels: $2,800; split bench seat package: $250; driver assist package: $2,900, with backup collision intervention, blind spot warning, blind spot intervention, lane departure warning, lane departure prevention, intelligent cruise control, forward emergency braking, and forward collision warning. Roof rails, cross bars, radiant illuminated kick panels, and Infiniti WIFI finish the options for a MSRP of $84,910. EPA: 13 city, 19 highway, 15 MPG combined. The bottom line is the QX80 is a step above the competition.

Boston's own Junior Damato, "The Auto Doctor" has agreed to field auto repair questions from Bulletin and Record readers. Please forward your questions to news@bulletinnewspapers.com and we will do our best to get your questions answered.

platforms would be the most expensive; around $4 to $5 million for each station to install high-level platforms.

“Each Commuter Rail station has situational differences and there are additional costs to accommodate that,” Ebuna said.

The second problem is that in some areas there are not two rails in place. At Peter’s Hill in the Arnold Arboretum, the line combines into one rail from two and does not split back until Baker Street.

“Our estimates are that there are some small and some not-so-small bottlenecks where you would need double track service to ensure that trains aren’t waiting for other trains to get through their sections,” Ebuna said. “It is possible for us to do both double tracking and Orange Line extension for more frequent service throughout.”

The idea for extending the Orange Line at least to Roslindale Station has been floated as well for the Go Boston 2030 Transportation Plan, but estimates there put that small extension at $35 million, though Ebuna said that in the long term for this plan the MBTA could realize a huge savings through maintenance. The MBTA maintains a Commuter Rail fleet of 125 locomotives with about 85 in active service, and Ebuna said those machines are big, clunky and expensive to maintain and break down frequently.

“They have a lot of moving parts and they fail far more frequently than even than the worst-performing electric multiple units like those in use today in New York City, for example,” he said.

Ebuna said the more short-term issue in their plan revolves around the Fairmount Line. Ebuna said the first thing would be to electrify the whole line and they would also run into the station platform height problem. He said the cost for electrification isn’t all that expensive compared with any other capital investment the MBTA is currently going through.

“It’s about $4 million per route, mile for nine miles plus $20 million for the two remaining stations, putting it at $80 million for the whole thing,” he said. “For the Fairmount Line, we think $80 million is a relatively small appropriation to take to get real rapid transit on the Fairmount Line... This would ensure more frequent service for the communities of color and the transit justice communities in Dorchester and Mattapan”

The report goes a bit farther than that, calling for electrification of the entire Providence Stoughton Line and the procurement or use of electric multiple

The Grimké Sisters in Hyde Park and history

Author and historian Louise Knight presents her lecture on the Grimké sisters to a full room at the Menino Arts Center.

Staff Reporter

On Saturday afternoon, March 3, HP150 presented a lecture at the Menino Arts Center (26 Central Ave.) entitled “The Grimké Sisters in Their Hyde Park Years: Educators, Aunts, and Voters.”

Presented by author and historian Louise W. Knight, the free event was attended by more than 50 people who filled the main room of the second floor gallery to hear about these often overlooked siblings who left their own mark on American history and the history of Hyde Park.

In her 45-minute lecture,

Knight – who is currently working on a book about the pair – briefly chronicled the lives of Sarah (1792-1873) and Angelina (1805-1879), who were born into antebellum Charleston aristocracy and slave-driven wealth and grew up to become two of the first female advocates of abolition and women’s rights.

Knight brought attention to the sisters’ 1836-1838 travels across the Northeast as the nation’s first anti-slavery organizers, offering her opinion of their experience in broader terms.

“This is sort of the beginning, in my view, of women’s activism in this country, around a particular issued.”

During this period the Grimké encouraged women to organize anti-slavery societies, circulated petitions to Congress, and gave many speeches at meeting halls, churches, and – when they weren’t allowed access – in fields where they would sometimes draw thousands.

Speaking of the Abolitionist Movement of the 1830’s, Knight tried to shed some light on its motivations in relation to the Grimkés.

“These abolitionists were kind to black people in the way

Registry of Motor Vehicles closing March 23, 24 & 25 for Computer Upgrade

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation (MassDOT) Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV) has announced that all RMV services, with the exception of law enforcement, will be unavailable from 7 p.m. on March 22 until 8 a.m. on March 26 due to the RMV changing over a new computer system that will allow the RMV to comply with federal and state mandates. In addition, inspection station locations will be unable to conduct motor vehicle inspections on March 23, 24 or 25, RMV on-line services will be unavailable, and RMV service locations will be closed.

The Registry’s new computer system will enable the Commonwealth to issue federally mandated REAL ID credentials to members of the public who will need a REAL ID credential. REAL ID is a Federal Security Standard for IDs that was created in 2005 as a result of the increased federal security measures after the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks.

The new computer system will also have enhanced customer-centric features and more efficient process elements for access by law enforcement, the insurance industry, government entities and professionals who need to engage the Registry. The current RMV system is more than 30 years old.

Between March 22 and March 26, the following services will be unavailable:

Beginning at 7 p.m., Thursday, March 22, motor vehicle inspections will be unavailable at station locations in Massachusetts until the start of business on March 26, at 8 a.m. Beginning at 7 p.m., March 22, and until 8 a.m., March 26, registry on-line services will be unavailable. Registry service locations will be closed on Friday, March 23, and will reopen on Monday, March 26. AAA branch locations which offer Registry services to AAA members will be unable to do so beginning at 7 p.m., March 22, and until 8 a.m., March 26. Law enforcement officers will continue to have access to RMV data at all times from March 22 to March 26 through the use of a back-up data file.

Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. Grateful thanks. —K.C.

TO BUY AND SELL HOMES
since 2002.

The regular season came to a conclusion for all three divisions of the Hyde Park Youth Basketball Association. At the Ohrenberger School the Instructional Division passed out trophies and celebrated with a pizza party, while the Craig Curran Division for 9 to 11-year-olds and the Ray Foley Division for 12 to 14-year-olds are preparing for the playoffs. By the time this report is published the All-Star Games will have been played, and March Madness, Muni Style, will have begun.

Curran Division Results

The Royals and Raptors have secured the first round byes, while the Sonics will play the 3-Pointers and the Blue Devils will play the Cowboys next Saturday in the first round of the playoffs. Winners of these games will meet the top seeds Wednesday night at the Muni, with the Championship game taking place on Saturday, March 17.

Royals 36– Raptors 30

Championship preview? Only if the chalk holds. The Royals jumped the Raptors early, and held on for a solid victory in a competitive game between the regular season's top two teams. The Raptors double- and triple-teamed Ryan Harrell, "limiting" him to 20 points. Gionny Centeio (12) had a strong game, and Sean Lendaro hit a couple of key put-backs to ignite an early surge for the victors. Jonathan Hernandez, Oscar Torres, and Khile Ralph played hard at both ends to help secure the 'W.' Barron Langston (12) had a break out game with some nice low post moves and excellent work on the glass. Timmy Trotman (11) and Hijjah Allen-Paisley (7) were solid as usual for the Raptors, who got great effort from Jason Keidy, Feliciano Tavares, Tatianna Trotman, and Jaylen Ward.

3-Pointers 25 – Cowboys 15

In a display of team offense, seven different players scored to get the Treys the victory: Pierce Edouard (7), Destynee Everett (5), Chace Ross (4), Chandler Frederick, Kamari Parry, Michael Williams and Devaun Davis all contributed. The Cowboys also spread the scoring around, as Khalil Seales (6) led the way with help from Zach Kromah, Jaden Davis, Austin Cranmore, Stuart Chabben-Griffith and Josiah Banks. Armani Andujar did a nice job handling the ball while Gabriel Labrance hustled at both ends.

Sonics 27 – Blue Devils 23

Amir Molineau (8) and Anicia Cruz (7) paced the Sonics in a hard fought win over the Devils. Shamilah Bodden and Ezayi Maruesthene contributed 5 points each, and Troy Omorughomwan tossed in a big bucket as Nathaniel Bodden and Soujourner Madden-Fulco led the defense. The Dukies used a balanced attack to be competitive, as Gersmani Rivera (8), Keyona Raines (6), Casey Idemudia (4), Waldjeena Dangerville (3) and Matthew Eviellard all scored. The win secured the 3-seed for the Sonics, who had tied the Blue Devils earlier in the season.

Foley Division Results

The scores of the final season games will reflect the hard work of the players and coaches over the past 10 weeks since our Game 1 in mid-December.

Coaches and players will have selected each team's sportsmanship award winner to the player who has exemplified the spirit of Sportsmanship throughout the season and during games. With six teams in place in the Foley Division, the play-off brackets will be as follows:

The first place seed - Panthers – and second place seed – Riot Squad – will have a BYE in the first round. Round one will pit the third seed – 3 Pointers against the sixth place Heat on March 10. The second Round one game will pit the fourth place 76ers against the fifth place Cowboys.

The Foley semi-finals games will be played on Thursday night, March 15 at 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. at the New Mission High School as follows:

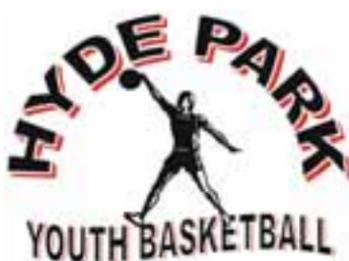

First seed Panthers will play winner of second Round one game 76ers/Cowboys 7 p.m. Second seed Riot Squad will play winner of first Round one game 3 Pointers/Heat 8 p.m.

Championship Saturday, March 17, will pit the winners of the round two games for the League championship at 11 am.

Foley Pre-events will be a senior's game for our players who will age out and not play with us next season from 10 to 10:20 a.m. 3 point shooting contests by age 10:20 to 10:40 a.m. with trophies after game. Championship game at 11 a.m.

Panthers 56 vs. Riot Squad 42

With all hands on deck the 10 x 10 Panthers had nine players score points in this very important contest. The starting five for this game played well and left little to be determined. Still using a running rotation of the other 5 players the outcome was set by halftime. Jahiid Allen-Paisley, Malik Freeman, and Nosa Egoban were outstanding. Key rebounds and baskets by Marvin Egoban, Tre Robinson, and Benji Pierre were hard hits as well. Buddies Jordan Crawford-Cranmore and Cam Evans had baskets, and Dreamer Danglad and Juan Gonzalez closed out Coach Rodney's plan.

We are certain Coach Gregg and his players were aware that this was an important game, but the team played flat and non-responsive in an uncharacteristic manner. While playing good defense the offense just did not come together this week as in weeks past. Using a full player rotation the Coach gave the team its chances to be who they have been and Justin and Jordan Elow joined Isaiah Figueroa and Jovanny Martinez in a valiant effort. Cory Cunniff and Jeremy Gonzalez played hard as well. Sure shots Wayne Meadows, Devon Marshall, and Jameer Wallace earned less than 30 points this game. Kymani Fleurme caught fire in the fourth but the end was set.

76ers 40 vs. Heat 28

Coach Corbin is still trying to get some players to work closer to the hoop. Holding to this version of the Magnificent 7 the 76ers are still a team to be reckoned with. Trailing by 4 points at halftime, a stern talking to seemed to do the job for the squad to assert itself. Key rebounds and long drives to the basket by both Andrew Hiliano and Nate McCarthy put the topping on the late charge to a win. Big contributions from Henry Melkonian, Makyle Hayes, and Abel Marrero-Lara at both ends. Danny McDonough gave up his shooting to play fierce defense and rebound this game, while smooth ball handler Jay Jackson pulled off some inside drives that left the defenders wondering.

These guys are just a few minutes away from being a true thorn in the side. Coach Wright will make better use of his time outs and the players will learn to pace themselves. The team has learned to spread out their fouls, and scoring inside on good passing is working. Missing the other ball handler will allow Robert Gant to play inside. The trio of terror, Jovan Arroyo, Kervens Charles, and Freddy Jackson will, and has done lots of hard work. Robert Tabb must play smarter to be in the game late. Sabastian McCuller is a shooter, and has to shot to be effective. Korey Sam is a steady scorer. If Antonio Torres runs ahead of the ball he will get many easy layups.

3-Pointers 32 vs. Cowboys 20

Coach Winston's 9 guys show every week usually, and play tough. Only committing a few fouls again in each half helped. Bruise brothers Nat Cozier, Nazaiah Evans, and Alder Lara all rebounded well again. Streakers Alex Sillice, Pierre Fortune, and Chris Sillice streaked to easy baskets. Anthony Consalvo hit the only 3 point shot for the team at a key time. But ball handling by Max Velez and Jaaziel Ramos hurt the other team late in the game. This team works really hard late in the game, and will be a tough match up for any team in the playoffs. Someone will have to outrebound them, or find a way to stop the streakers.

Coach Jose has a way to put more offensive sets in each week, and the players seem to have some concept of the new process. Quinn Martin has to show up to play. Big man inside Chris Martinez is a must to make a difference. Jose Zayas must play under control to be the scorer that he can be. Michail Pimentel and Kwest Deloney just needs to calm down to score. Malachi Bodden is a full speed guy and needs to slow down just a bit on scoring drives. Akil Grubbs inside defense is fierce and he's taking more shots. Lastly, Jaymar Guirado has shown he can dribble and score, and should do so.

that people who feel superior are kind to their supposed inferiors,” she explained before finishing the comparison. “The Grimké honestly faced and sought to correct their racial biases.”

She went a little further in describing their philosophy. “The sister’s conviction that all human beings were equal – regardless of the color of their skin – grew out of their belief in what they called ‘human rights.’”

Knight put forward the idea that the Grimké’s idea of human rights was far ahead of its time because of their belief that human beings had rights because they were moral beings and so, whatever moral rights the most privileged might have, all people would have.

“As Sarah wrote,” Knight read, ‘Human rights are not based upon sex, color, capacity, or condition. They are universal, inalienable, and eternal.’”

The Grimké’s time as traveling abolitionists did not last very long. In 1838, Angelina married Theodore Weld and Sarah went along with them to Fort Lee, New Jersey. Soon pregnant with the first of three children, both sisters and Weld went into teaching and opened a small home school.

Knight said, “In becoming educators, the Grimké-Welds did not see themselves as having abandoned reform, but as having redirected their energies into shaping reformers of the next generation.”

Having been offered teaching positions at Dr. Dio Lewis’ School for Young Ladies in Lexington in 1863, the Grimké-Welds somehow found Hyde Park (then called the village of Fairmount) and moved into a house (no longer standing) on the corner of Fairmount Avenue and Highland Street.

It was while they were in Hyde Park that the Grimké – seizing on language in the 14th Amendment – became two of the first women in the Commonwealth to demonstrate their right to vote when – on March 7, 1870 – they and a group of about 50 other women walked through the center of town in the middle of a snowstorm to Town Hall (located at the corner of River Street and Gordon Avenue) walked in to a large crowd of hisses, laughter, and eventually applause as they cast their symbolic votes.

Catching up with Knight af-

ter she had finished her lecture, she shared what she thought was the lasting significance of the mock votes that were cast that day.

“As long as you’ve never seen women vote, it’s even hard to imagine. And so it’s a little piece knocking down a very big wall. It’s a little chunk in the wall. More and more women did it and, if nothing else, it starts the conversation, right?”

ing the age of people who can buy guns and are going to stop selling assault style weapons, and marches will be taking place on March 24 around the issue of gun control.

Each mass shooting feels like that movie Groundhog Day where we say the same things over and over again. Thoughts and prayers everyone says, and while that is good we can’t stop there. The other phrase you hear time and time again is, “now is not the time.” There will never be a good time to discuss a mass shooting, but we need to discuss it. The NRA stays quiet for a few days and then their answer is to increase the number of people who have guns.

Arming teachers is not the answer, and increasing the availability of guns is not the answer. Teachers perform many roles, but arming them to prevent the next shooting should not be one of them. Mass shootings do not happen only at schools. They have happened at churches, workplaces, and movie theaters to name just a couple of places. Are we going to arm church ushers and ticket takers next?

President Trump says we have to harden schools but, how hard? I want schools to be safer, but not make schools feel like prisons.

Why am I pessimistic on a federal level? Let’s go back to the Las Vegas shooting where, I believe, 51 people lost their lives. One reason was the shooter was able to attach a bump stock to the semi-automatics which allowed him to fire many more rounds from his hotel room.

There was a big call afterwards to ban bump stocks. Now, guess what happened since then. Only one state has banned them, Massachusetts.

People will say this is not about guns, they blame the mentally ill.

We have to do better with the way we treat the mentally ill, but do not use them as the excuse for mass shootings.

One phrase that really upsets me after a mass shooting is that there is nothing we can do. That is not correct. It would be more correct to say there is not the will legislatively to do anything. Look around the world, we own the title of mass shootings champion. I know guns are intertwined with the history of this nation, but mass shootings only started to spike in the 1990s.

We need to find the will and, maybe, those students and parents from Parkland are showing us how to do it.

account. From there, the patient will be allowed into the limited access waiting area and, from there, will be buzzed into the dispensing area, where a patient care professional will assist.

Krane also informed the audience that there are State imposed limits on how much cannabis a patient is allowed to purchase over any given two week period, which is tracked on the State’s database system.

The marijuana that would be available at the Evergreen Farms dispensary would be grown by the company at a 65,000 square foot warehouse in Worcester. Here, all of the product in its different forms will be packaged, labeled, and sealed for delivery to the retail site at 883 Hyde Park Ave.

The marijuana that would be for sale at the dispensary would not be covered under insurance and would be competitive with the black market price.

“If we charge too little, then there’s an incentive for people to purchase it and then go and flip it on the black market,” Krane explained, although he did add that a discount program would be made available for low income patients as well as military veterans.

Responding to a question regarding security measures for the site, Krane described an elaborate obstacle course that any potential thief would have to get through, involving cameras, motion detectors, no less than five locked doors, a biometric vault door, and a combination safe within the vault.

“Anybody who’s looking at this as a potential target is going to have a lot better luck trying to rob the local package store or gas station than they are a facility like this,” he concluded.

Additionally, he explained that there would be cameras in the immediate neighborhood surrounding the building, as well as a security guard at the front door during high traffic hours.

Krane was asked another question about why Evergreen Farms had chosen to pursue the more rigorous medical marijuana dispensary rather than a recreational one and if it intended to switch over at some point in the future.

Krane prefaced his answer by explaining that recreational permitting was not yet in place within the city.

“It’s possible that down the road, we may have the opportunity to apply to convert that to a recreational dispensary, but we don’t know if we’ll have the opportunity and we haven’t made any decisions about whether or not we would do that,” Krane said. “If we had the opportunity, we don’t know what the zoning rules are going to look like for that yet, so it’s just not a decision that we’re contemplating at this point.”

As Evergreen Farms continues with its application process, its representatives will continue to check in with the HPNA to update it on its progress.
