The Hyde Park Neighborhood Association (HPNA) held its monthly meeting at the District E-18 Police Station (1249 Hyde Park Ave.) last Thursday, Sept. 5.

About 40 people were in attendance for the meeting, which ran an hour and a quarter and featured one community presentation regarding a proposed residential development.

In this presentation, builder David Higgins – president and owner of Harbour Point Construction in Dorchester – described and diagrammed a potential building plan for the property, which he confirmed is owned by the Menino family.

This development would be located at 1449-1453 Hyde Park Ave. and would replace the two-family house at 1449 (according to Higgins, the property at 1453 burned down years ago and was never rebuilt), while renovating the house at 8 Dacy St.

The new development for the 12,900 square foot lot is currently sketched out for 11 three story townhouse rental units, all of which would have 2 to 3 bedrooms and range from 1400 to 1500 square feet. The proposed plan also includes off-

Dale Street talks bridge assaults with MBTA

The Dale Street Crime Watch (DSCW) met on Tuesday, Sept. 10 and discussed several incidents in the neighborhood, most notably two assaults on the Metropolitan Avenue Foot Bridge.

The footbridge is under the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) Transit Police, and though both assaults were brought up to members of the Boston Police District E-18, the investigation of both incidents was taken over by the MBTA.

The first incident occurred when a female resident was assaulted in July by two men in a vehicle, one of whom, according to Transit Sergeant Benjamin Carrasco, has been identified.

“The detectives have identified one of the individuals,” he said. “There was the individual who committed the assault and ran to the car, but it is believed there was a driver. Detectives have identified the driver, and are working on identifying the assailant.”

Carrasco said they cannot release any more information at the time of the meeting.

“Super Doers” focuses on family social engagement

A new event at the Switch Co-Op art gallery in Hyde Park focused on family social engagement and brought plenty of big smiles all around last Saturday. The event is called “Super Doers”. Children came with their parents dressed in their favorite superhero or princess costumes and ready to paint.

This costume painting party offered families (a.k.a the “Super Doers”) with art supplies and pre-drawn outlined canvases of their favorite superhero and princess related characters. Other activities included a superhero backdrop for families to take pictures.

The vision behind “Supers Doers” was brought to the Switch Co-Op through the efforts of kindergarten teacher, artist, and local Hyde Park resident Diderot Jean Philippe.

“My intentions for this event were to help families and friends create a memorable experience together through art and for them to take their artwork home as a lasting tribute to always remember that special shared moment” Diderot said. Children and parents taking part in the event on Saturday decorated the canvases while bonding and enjoying each other’s company.

Dollar Tree’s value to community lowers in ERNA’s eyes

Mary Ellen Gambon

The Dollar Tree discount store at The Shops at Riverwood at 912 River St. in Hyde Park may offer its items for one dollar or less to shoppers. But that did little to raise its value in the eyes of the 20 members of the East River Neighborhood Association (ERNA), who complained about trash, safety hazards and rude treatment by employees at their monthly meeting Monday, Sept. 9 at the Perfect Dental building, also at 912 River St.

After residents raised their ongoing concerns over the past several months, ERNA co-chair Patricia Odom sent a certified letter dated Apr. 18. to the Dollar Tree headquarters, located in Chesapeake, Virginia.

“Initially, before the store was erected in my neighborhood, my community discussed how this store would be beneficial in the community, and how the company manager would make sure the store would be clean and pleasant and not an eyesore,” Odom said as she read the letter.

The Parkway Travel Basketball League is starting tryouts in the next few weeks.

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The Parkway Travel Basketball League (PTBL) is hosting tryouts starting next week for residents of the West Roxbury, Roslindale, Hyde Park and Jamaica Plain neighborhoods.

The league, according to President Jerry McDermott, has been around for the past 30 years serving elementary and middle schoolers. McDermott said the league started small but was a catalyst for a much bigger league down the road.

"We started with just a couple of teams out of West Roxbury and Roslindale, and one of the founders of Parkway Basketball, Charlie Hughes, was also one of the founders of Metrowest Basketball," McDermott said. "Metrowest is the premier travel basketball league in Massachusetts with more than 70 towns, providing almost 1,000 teams. Parkway Basketball teams all play in the Metrowest League."

McDermott said the program has now grown to include Hyde Park and Jamaica Plain, and has seen steady increases in participation from all over the Parkway area.

"The program has seen terrific growth in the last several years," he said. "When I took over in 2012, Parkway had eight teams, with 82 total players in the program. We have seen steady growth every year since then. Fast forward to the 2018 season, Parkway Travel Basketball fielded 16 teams with a total of 173 players in the program."

McDermott added that the increased membership has allowed the League to offer more age ranges than before.

"We now have at least two boys teams for every grade level," he said. "We are also happy to say that last year, we fielded our first ever 4th Grade Girls Team."

McDermott said he has been a coach for Parkway for 14 years and president for eight.

"This program will always hold a special place in my heart," he said. "This program was my daughter's first travel program and it made such a difference in her life. I saw her make great friends while watching her confidence grow every year, but not just in basketball, but life in general. Her love for basketball grew and it prepared her for her high school team."

McDermott said the league gave him and his family so much, he felt it was right that he give something back.

"So this is my opportunity to give back to the community for what my daughter got out of it," he said. "I want every child in the Parkway community to have this opportunity. The other thing that is special is the people that run the program. The majority of people on the Board of Directors do not have children in the program. They do it because it feels right and they love the game and what it gives to the community. It makes it special."

McDermott said that Parkway teams have also had some success on the courts, with eight division championships in the last five years. He said, however, it's more about teaching the kids than it is about winning championships.

"It's all about the players, and my personal favorite part of the game is watching players progress through the program," he said. "A coach in the Parkway will take over a team at the youngest grade and then stay with that team until they graduate from the program after their 8th grade season. When you step back and compare the players from when they started and when they finished, it can be amazing. You see how they grew as players and people. You see their love for the game grow with each year. As a coach, you hope that you were able to contribute to that. It's fun and rewarding at the same time."

Councilor McCarthy holds council hearing to increase tree canopy

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The Boston City Council met recently and held a hearing called by District 5 City Councilor Tim McCarthy to strategize on how the city can preserve and increase its tree canopy.

The city had set a goal in the past to get to 35 percent tree canopy coverage by 2030, and the city is now sitting at a respectable 27 percent, but Speak for the Trees Co Founder David Meshoulam said Bostonians shouldn't be sitting on their laurels.

"We've been stable around that number for the past decade or so, around 27 percent," he said.

One of the main contributors to tree canopy loss, according to Meshoulam and Boston University Professor Lucy Hutrya, is that while the city does require new trees to be planted when they are removed due to development, those replacements are not keeping up.

"Hutrya's research suggests that if we continue to lose trees at the rate we're losing them and don't increase our new tree plantings, new tree plantings will not be able to get to that 35 percent tree canopy coverage and her research strongly suggests that the best way to increase our canopy coverage is by decreasing our healthy tree mortality by 20 percent," he said. "Only then can we start to grow the size and health benefits of our urban forest."

McCarthy said he wants to look into restructuring how tree removals from public easements because of private development, like sidewalks, are repaid by said developers. He said he's tasked his team with researching how towns like Newton and Brookline do it. He said, currently, any tree removal requires a set amount of money be put into a tree fund, but he said that amount of money does not reflect the age and size of a tree that is removed.

"In other cities and towns, let's say a developer needs a variance and they have to remove a 100-year-old oak," he said. "They pay by the inch. How many inches the tree is, that's how much you pay and it goes into the fund. I want to see if there is some kind of formula we can work out and by dissecting other towns' ordinances, I think we can come up with something that's unique for Boston and that works for Boston."

Chief of Environment, Energy and Open Space Chris Cook said the Parks and Recreation department instituted a program in the past that would allow the city to plant trees on private property in people's yards if sidewalk requirements (mostly from the Americans with Disabilities Act compliance regulations) could not allow a street tree.

"Over time, that practice was discontinued, but that is an available practice we could either rekindle or reevaluate," he said.

Currently, one of the big issues with street trees is watering. McCarthy brought up an example on West Street on the Hyde Park/Roslindale line where the city planted six or seven trees. He said the issue he sees with reinsituting the residential tree planting program would be making sure residents have the inclination to water and maintain the trees.

"They were across the street from residents, the (George Wright) Golf Course doesn't have the ability to water those trees and most of those trees have now perished," he said. "We see people who could possibly of have a tree in their front yard but, perhaps, don't have the means."

McCarthy said the combination of a tree fund and residential planting would help alleviate the crunch on street trees, which he said are already at a disadvantage because they get heavily salted every winter by salt trucks. He brought up another example of the building set at the corner of Weld and Centre Street on the Roslindale/Jamaica Plain line. The building was to be built from lot line to lot line.

"And I think they probably removed 15 to 20 trees; I don't know how much money that would have been ultimately at the end, but with a new ordinance, there might be money for that tree fund and maybe somebody from Jamaica Plain or West Roxbury has the space sufficient enough to take a tree," he said.

Boston Planning and Development Deputy Director of Development Review Michael Christopher said within the Article 80 Project Review Process there is not currently a specific requirement for tree replenishment.

"But it is something we're always looking at as we start the development process," he said.

Cook said the city has recently invested $100,000 in a LIDAR flyover to survey and count the current tree canopy coverage and tree numbers, which is scheduled to take place over the next few weeks. He said it is the start to the formation of what he is calling the city's Urban Forestry Master Plan, which his office will be working on with the Department of Public Works, the Boston Transportation Department and the Boston Sewer Department.

Cook said one change to the care and maintenance of street trees his office has implemented is changing the location of the watering bags on new plantings. He said originally, the bags that fed water at a slow rate to trees would be placed adjacent to the trunk of the tree near the base. Now, he said they are placed on the supporting ropes for the tree.

"The reason for that is to not encourage rot at the base of the tree," he said. "Typically the water bags used to be right around the trunk of the tree at the bottom. What we found is mildew and other things that could be harmful to the tree, including trash, could be collected in those bags. So moving them to those poles, the water is still getting to the root system but the bad stuff is not surrounding the trunk."

One other big problem facing tree growth in the city is gas leaks that kill trees. Cook said that while leaks are the purview of the Department of Public Works, there is no real data on how many trees are lost each year, as impacts that kill trees are often cumulative and not at one specific source. Also, it's not easy to tell if a gas leak killed a tree or put it over the edge. But he said he hopes new legislation will go through to hold gas companies accountable for the thousands of leaks in the city.

"Recently the Administration had legislation in order to set up a fining structure for gas leaks, specifically to address the smaller to midsize leaks that we think are contributing to the loss of tree canopy in the City of Boston," he said.

Not everyone in Boston feels resilient. We're working to change that

There is no question that Boston is a strong city that's used to banding together. We celebrate championship-winning sports teams, remember our importance in the roots of American history, and cheer on runners along Boylston Street every April. We also stand together during the hard times.

The city's response following the Boston Marathon Bombing shed light on our community's innate commitment to supporting our families, friends, and neighbors who have been impacted by violence of all forms. When faced with devastation, we remained united, and we endured.

We recently finished installing the Marathon Markers at Boylston Street which represent the victims of the attack at the two bombing locations. These two monuments will light up the area and serve as a constant reminder of both what was lost on that fateful day and the determination and resilience of the survivor community at large.

There are countless survivors still reeling from the trauma they endured on April 15, 2013 and the days following. There are people living with physical scars, and people living with invisible injuries. There are also people throughout Boston who have lived with this kind of trauma for years, due to other acts of violence, including gun violence, gang violence, and other tragic acts that impact entire neighborhoods. Not all Bostonians feel resilient, and I'm working to change that.

That's why the Mayor's Office of Arts and Culture is carrying out the One Boston Resilience Project, an inclusive process to envision the City's collective strength after violence, as illuminated by the Boston Marathon Bombing. This project is intended to help us build connectivity and resilience across the city, through the development of a citywide memorial.

We're leading a citywide community engagement process that allows us to come together as a city and reflect on what it means for all Bostonians to be resilient in the face of tragedy and trauma. This project will result in a piece of public art that aims to be reflective of all Bostonians, and will help us build connectivity and resilience together as one city.

The goal of this community engagement process is to receive as much feedback from residents as possible. We want your input. What does resilience look like? What features should the memorial have to emphasize the strength of the City and everyone living here?

Public input will be gathered over four months. We want to reach as many people as possible, so we will use a variety of platforms to receive feedback. We will distribute a citywide survey, conduct listening sessions, use digital outreach, and have creative and participatory activities in multiple languages with an emphasis on multicultural inclusion to maximize access to participa-

As summer ends

I want to thank you for giving me
The most wonderful summer of my life
It was so heavenly

"Wonderful Summer" sung by Robin Ward

Many songs extol the beauties of summer—from Frank Sinatra's selections to those by Jan and Dean to those by The Beach Boys. But only one song comes quickly to mind that praises the actual end of summer, that being Robin Ward's haunting offering, "Wonderful Summer." [Before you mention The Lettermen's "See You in September," remember that that song really pines for the summer to pass oh-so-quickly.]

Under the name Robin Ward, she was a one-hit wonder with her musical paean to June, July, and August climbing to #14 on the Billboard charts in 1963, but she recorded under different names with additional successes.

Speaking of teenage infatuation, if not love actually, the song suggests Cape Cod-style romances, in which both parties have to return to their hometowns or schools in September, and thereby end seeing each other. But the song should resonate for many of us—regardless of whether we can recall having had such teenage romances—who have much to be thankful for as regards the summer of 2019. Perhaps it was landing a job, finding an apartment or a house, the addition of a new child, the acquisition of a car, a memorable vacation, a wedding, a special birthday or anniversary, a bank loan that finally is granted, trips to beaches, recovery from an illness, a reasonable school assignment from Boston Public, getting out of prison, hot dogs at Castle Island, a bad neighbor moving away, ice cream cones from Ron's, outdoor concerts, the absence of depression, the cessation of bullying, the elimination of angst, the winning of a law suit, and/or the return of good health. Any of these could have inspired us on sunny or not-so-sunny mornings during the past several months to enthusiastically proclaim the memorable line from

Psalms 118: 24, "This is the day the Lord has made; let us be glad in it and rejoice." [Or as we prayed in Latin, "Haec est dies quam Deus fecit..."]

So perhaps this summer went by all too quickly. But remember those long heat spells here in Boston when the slow passage of time and the unforgiving, near triple-digit temperatures rivaled those of the Mississippi Delta.

Back to Robin Ward's song, as it ends plaintively but upbeat:

I want to thank you for giving me
The most wonderful summer of my life
And though it broke my heart
That day we had to part
I'll always thank you for giving me
The most wonderful summer of my life

Letters to the Editor

TAKE THE LONG VIEW OF CENTRE STREET CORRIDOR

To the Editor:

Before the city approves expansion at Brigham & Women's Faulkner Hospital complex, it should step back and engage residents to consider the future of the Centre Street corridor from a wider perspective – starting from Weld Street in West Roxbury/Roslindale stretching to the Arborway in Jamaica Plain.

With institutional expansion creeping here and there, pretty soon Centre Street will become the next Longwood Medical Area, without adequate transportation to support it. Look at the congested Seaport District to see how quickly that can happen when the city greenlights too many buildings without an adequate transportation plan to serve them.

Or just look at Centre Street at the multi-story

Sophia Snow complex, which the city permitted a few years ago without any requirement to correct the hazardous, free-for-all intersection out front, where Walter Street meets Centre Street. Frequent (and preventable) accidents at this poorly configured roadway drive up insurance rates for every policyholder in the 02131 zip code, even when the drivers at fault live far away. I've seen vehicles leave Sophia Snow's parking lot going the wrong way up Centre Street to cross the intersection illegally. The intersection fails state safety standards. City officials should wait for state agencies to rebuild the intersection before inviting any additional traffic to another large parking garage at the Faulkner.

The Bulletin's headline of August 22 claimed the last time the Faulkner complex expanded was in 1976. Not true. In the time that I have lived nearby, the complex has expanded at least twice: a multi-story addition in front, facing Centre Street, in 1996, and another parking garage added eight years later, in 2004. The institution is expanding about every 15 years on average. The Faulkner also owns real estate down Centre Street, in West Roxbury, across from the Hebrew Rehab Center. The inexorable creep of institutional expansion will reach that parcel eventually. "Density follows density" is a maxim of urban planning.

City planners have performed comprehensive master plans for neighborhoods (including a really good one for Roslindale, adopted in 2007), but this stretch of Centre Street straddles West Roxbury, Roslindale and Jamaica Plain. When impacts of proposed development straddle jurisdictional boundaries, growth tends to get permitted in a piecemeal fashion, without a comprehensive long-term vision of the whole.

Several years ago, when Harvard's Arnold Arboretum sought to install a new institutional complex at Centre and Weld Streets (on land that was not zoned for institutional uses), Harvard and the city pledged to extend the park

About 30 residents came out to discuss ongoing issues around the Dale Street and Sherrin Woods areas in Roslindale and Hyde Park.

“It is an active investigation,” he said.

Carrasco said he was unaware of the second incident, where a young man was beaten and robbed, also around the same time.

“We had a brief report and then the T took it over,” said BPD District 18 Sgt. Daniel Keane.

Residents in the past have called for the bridge to be removed and requested better cleaning of the bridge of graffiti, the thought being that graffiti make crimes easier to get away with, in their opinion. Carrasco said he would look into the second assault, but pointed out that any maintenance or improvements to lighting would have to come from the Commuter Rail Operator, Keolis.

“It’s not MBTA, we respond to the stations,” he said. “I can speak to our contacts in Keolis, and I can speak with their maintenance.”

Residents said there are lights there, but either they don’t work or are not bright enough.

“It’s not just the lighting issues, the bridge has deteriorated so badly,” said DSCW Co-Chair Beth Columbo.

“Obviously, that is a public safety issue, but the maintenance is not a police matter and Keolis is in charge,” he said.

Carrasco said he would be distributing a number to DSCW members in the future to reach out to Keolis on these issues.

“That’s what it takes, I mean in Dorchester, we have the Ashmont Station, we have the Four Corners Station, and that’s because of the community voicing complaints,” he said. “I was just at the ribbon cutting for the Wollaston Station, and that was many years in the process to finally get done. There was no disability access to that station whatsoever; they completely tore that station down and rebuilt it from the ground up and that happened because of community involvement. I can call and say this light is broken or whatever, sometimes things will happen and sometimes it won’t.”

DSCW Co-Chair Kim O’Connell asked what needs to be done to get more patrols out in the Dale Street area from the MBTA Transit Police, but Carrasco said there is only one car from Hyde Park down to Attleboro. He said residents need to keep calling in to get more patrols and enforcement in the area.

“We’re just too short staffed to send people randomly to different stations,” he said.

“You had an assault on that bridge, and we ain’t never seen an MBTA car for that, so that’s not a priority?” asked O’Connell.

“We have incidents everywhere, and I understand what you’re saying,” Carrasco said. “School just started as well, and that obviously draws a lot of our resources. We have eight in the academy getting ready to come out, I think, in November. We have a high turnover rate; we’re always hiring but we’re always losing people to other departments as well, so it’s hard to keep up with demand.”

Residents voiced concerns over calling the police specifically for MBTA jurisdiction crimes, but Carrasco pointed out the MBTA now has an application for Android or iPhones to discretely report someone acting criminally or suspiciously on the MBTA. For more information on those apps, go to mbta.com/transit-police/see-something-say-something.

District E-18 Community Service Officer Paul Broderick also read out the recent crime reports for the neighborhood. He said there was an arrest for an assault on Aug. 17 at 371 Metropolitan Ave. and at Aug. 21 for what turned out to be a domestic dispute. He said robberies and larcenies were not reported from the end of July to now, however O’Connell reported that several local neighbors have intimated to her that people are rummaging through unlocked vehicles in the neighborhood and taking valuables.

“Lock your cars,” Keane said.

For vandalism reports, Broderick said on Aug. 30 at 371 Metropolitan Ave. the Windshield of a parked vehicle was broken. For drugs, on Aug. 6, on Dale and West Street, the drug unit made observations of a drug transaction within a motor vehicle. They stopped the car and made an arrest and seized 14 bags of marijuana and $900 in cash.

He added that the drug unit also made a large bust on Aug. 5 at 844 Canterbury St., and seized 200 grams of fentanyl and $3,000 in cash.

26TH ANNUAL JAMAICA PLAIN ARTISTS OPEN STUDIOS!

The premiere annual arts event in one of Boston's most eclectic neighborhoods, Jamaica Plain Open Studios (JPOS), is returning in 2019 for its 26th year! Open Studios is an opportunity to take a rare public peek at some private spaces. The free event showcases the artwork of up to 200 artists at 40 sites including artists' studios, the historic Eliot School and more. It runs from 11 a.m. – 6 p.m. over the weekend of September 28 - 29, 2019.

JPOS is celebrating its 26th year as the premiere annual arts event in Jamaica Plain. JPOS showcases 200 artists in approximately 40 sites. The event is open to the public and will take place September 28 and 29 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. For more information and to preview artists' work, visit www.jpopenstudios.com.

HYDE PARK

MENINO ARTS CENTER HOSTS "ART ASSOCIATIONS INVITATIONAL" EXHIBITION

The Menino Arts Center proudly announces its Art Associations Invitational, an exhibition of 29 artists from six different local arts associations in Dorchester, Jamaica Plain, West Roxbury, Roslindale, Hyde Park, and Dedham. The exhibition will run from September 5 – October 30, 2019, with a reception on Friday, September 20, from 6 – 8 p.m. The exhibition and reception are free and open to the public at the Menino Arts Center, 26 Central Avenue, 2nd floor, Hyde Park, MA 02136. Normal gallery hours are Wednesdays from 10 a.m. – 2 p.m.; Thursdays from 10 a.m. – 2 p.m.; Fridays from 10 a.m. – 4 p.m.; during scheduled workshops and events; and by appointment.

The Menino Arts Center is home of the Hyde Park Art Association. The mission of the Hyde Park Art Association is to support local artists, make cultural opportunities accessible to families, students, and seniors who may not otherwise have the means to participate; enrich community life, serve as a unifying force in the neighborhood; and help create a more vibrant commercial district. The Menino Arts Center serves the neighborhood of Hyde Park, greater Boston and its suburban counterparts. With over 4,000 square feet of space, the MAC is home to the Paul Nolan Studio, seven affordable artist work studios, three galleries, a library and resource center, an auditorium and our organization's home offices. The center hosts workshops, concerts, readings, exhibitions, and other events in the service of promoting the arts in the Hyde Park community.

The all new Ford Ranger

The Ford Ranger has been gone for many years but is now reborn as a larger, great truck. It features a 2.3 liter, EcoBoost, 4-cylinder engine and a 10-speed automatic transmission, with a 7,500 lb. tow rating, posi-trac rear differential, plus a lot more. To me, the new Ranger is the size of the older Ford pickups. With the new F150 being a larger full size than a few years ago, the Ranger fits a welcome size below. The one engine has the power of a large V/6 – the engine is always in its power band. The Ranger does not look small with four full doors and seats four with comfort.

The EcoBoost twin turbo turns out an amazing 270 horsepower; axle gear ratio is 3:73. Combined with the nicely geared 10-speed automatic transmission, it makes for a very powerful combination. The Ranger has a smooth ride and again, power at any speed in all conditions. The engine is very quiet even under full throttle. The interior has all the features and options of a high-end truck; all controls are in reach and the audio system is now easy to use. The Base Ranger XL 2WD super cab starts at $24,300 (destination fee: $1,095). The top-of-the-line Lariat crew cab 4WD is $ 38,385. Options can bring the MSRP up, depending on whatever you want to load it up with. Our test Ranger had the optional FX4 Off-Road Package. Even without this package, the truck has a smooth ride, however the Ranger did sit a bit higher than the non FX4 package model. There is no question that Ford has built a truck that will be a hit that fits when a full-size truck is too big. If interested in a mid-size truck, take the Ranger out for a long test drive. EPA: 21 city, 24–26 highway MPG.

A CENTURY OF SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

trash strewn around the store, and employees yelling at customers.

“Clearly this is contradicting the agreement,” Odom said. “Ultimately the store inside and outside is filthy and in total disarray. The enclosed trash bin is constantly open.

“Inside the store, trash greets you on the floor,” she continued. “The workers are playing around and show no interest in resolving this mess or helping the customers.”

Odom said she asked to speak to the manager on one occasion.

“I was told by an employee that he was out of the store,” she said. “Personally, I expect some higher standards. If this was in any other neighborhood, this would not be happening.”

With regard to her letter to the headquarters “as of today they have not responded at all,” Odom said.

Residents asked Area E-18 police Sgt. Daniel Keane and Officer Paul Broderick what actions could be taken about the property.

“I would suggest putting that letter on their Facebook page,” Keane said. “That always seems to get a response from businesses.”

The police officers said that 911 should be called for cars parked in handicapped accessible spaces, another problem that was reported by Odom.

“You can call the police for anything on private property,” Keane said. “That’s the one ticket we can write.”

As for the overflowing dumpster issue, Keane said that residents should call the City’s Inspectional Services Department (ISD) or dial 311.

ERNA co-chair Barbara Hamilton emailed a contact at Finard Properties, the property manager, during the meeting to see if the company had any control over the issue.

“I think if we all stick together, we can do something about this,” Odom said.

Virine Morris said she heard one employee cursing at a customer.

“When the manager came over to resolve the situation, the Boston Police Department District E-18 Community Service Officer Paul Broderick discussed crime issues in the neighborhood.

cashier started yelling,” Morris said.

In contrast, the attendees complimented the Goodwill Store, a recent addition to the plaza.

“It’s very clean and busy with mostly clothing right now,” Hamilton said. “Donations should pick up soon, so it may be a good time for fall cleaning.”

Hamilton added that construction on the Burger King for the plaza is underway after some concerns from the group about the traffic, noise and the afterschool crowds it would attract.

“There are pros and cons about the Burger King,” Hamilton said. “If you happen to go there once it’s built, just encourage them to have a healthier menu, like the plant burgers they have at some places. We’ll just proceed from that way.”

Members thanked the police for the downturn in crime since the last police report. There were no robberies, auto thefts, drug arrests or breaking and enterings.

A domestic assault and battery occurred at 16 Blake St. on Aug. 24 at about 6:30 a.m. when a boyfriend and girlfriend fought. On Aug. 30, there was an assault at 39 Wachusett St., when a victim stated that a neighbor’s daughter attacked her and punched her in the face.

On Sept. 6, there was a domestic assault and battery at 31 George St. between a mother and a 15-year-old at around 8 p.m. At 61 Blake St., there was an assault and battery on a mother by a 21-year-old at around 9 p.m. on Sept. 8.

For larcenies, there were four tires stolen from a Mercedes at 797 River St. overnight on Aug. 13. Also, on Aug. 20 there was a package stolen containing a table delivered by FedEx at 1037 River St.

A vandalism occurred at 124 Belnel Rd. on Aug. 16 when someone flattened a car tire overnight. Also, on Aug. 24 at 55 Lexington Ave. at 3 a.m., a victim said that her ex-boyfriend slashed her motor vehicle tires and was banging on her car door with a hammer. Police had to set up a perimeter to capture the suspect, and he was arrested hiding in one of the backyards.

On Sept. 8 at 25 Radcliffe Rd. at around 9:30 p.m., a victim and a suspect had words over a road dispute. The suspect banged on the driver’s door, causing damage to it.

There was one fire on Aug. 18 at River and Thorn St. when a vehicle caught on fire at around 3 a.m..

Keane said that the Coffee with a Cop event will be held at Coffee Break at 680 Truman Parkway on Wed., Sept. 25 at 9 a.m. Police Commissioner William Gross is confirmed to attend.

Also, a flashlight walk will be held on Tues. Sept. 17 beginning at the Boston Police Academy at 85 Williams Ave., but Keane said that residents can participate in their own neighborhoods beginning at sundown.

The group is also hopeful about getting some of the District Five City Council candidates to attend their next meeting on Oct. 21 at 7 p.m. Attendance was lower than usual this month because of the District Five City Council candidates forum scheduled at the same time. The one candidate in this race who has not visited the group yet is Ricardo Arroyo. Residents and officers mentioned that he has not been at other meetings.

ERNA will not meet in November, but resume its schedule on Dec. 9 at 7 p.m. Talks began at the meeting for a holiday potluck.

Holiday Season at Beth Shalom of The Blue Hills

As the autumn Jewish holiday season approaches, Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills invites interested individuals and families in the surrounding area to join us in observing and celebrating the various holidays. High Holy Day services begin with Erev Rosh Hashanah on Sept. 29th, and continue with full services the next two days under the direction of spiritual leader Rabbi Alfred Benjamin and Cantor Dvorah Buhr. There will be a separate Family Service on Sept. 30th for parents with children up to 3rd grade, and childcare and children's activities each day.

Tashlich, the symbolic casting away of sins on Rosh Hashanah, will also be on the 30th at 5:30 p.m. at Turner's Pond on Central Ave., Milton (bring your own bread), followed by a dairy pot-luck dinner at the nearby home of a congregant family. All are invited to participate.

After Yom Kippur on Oct. 8th, other holidays including Sukkot will follow, with special family-oriented holiday events, such as eating in the Sukkah and parading with the Torah scrolls on Simchat Torah.

All services and activities at Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills are open to the entire Jewish community, and will be held in the synagogue sanctuary at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street), Milton. During the High Holy Days there is limited parking at the synagogue, with preference for elderly and handicapped. Overflow parking is available on nearby Pleasant Street, with no parking allowed on Lodge or Maitland Streets. For security reasons, non-members interested in attending High Holiday services or other events are required to call the Congregation office at 617-698-3394.

The synagogue's Rabbi Jerome Weistrop Religious School, which provides small, twice-weekly classes, pre-school Story Hour, holiday family events, field trips and more, is accepting applications during the month of September. Jewish children of all grade levels are encouraged to enroll and participate in a quality Jewish education.

Families interested in the religious school or the synagogue are invited to attend our Open House on Sunday, Sept 15th from 10:15-noon, meet Rabbi Benjamin and Education Director Nancy Mollitor, and learn about the synagogue's programs and activities. First-time visitors who call ahead to attend the Open House may receive complimentary seats for one High Holiday service.

Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills is an egalitarian synagogue and welcomes interfaith and LGBT members and families.

For further information about religious school, services, events or membership, please call the Congregation office at 617-698-3394, email: office@BethShalomBlueHills.org or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

street parking for 11 cars.

Higgins' presentation was part of the development's community feedback process. There has already been an abutters' meeting, but the project is in its early stage and has not yet been submitted to the BPDA (Boston Planning and Development Agency) for approval.

In keeping with the collaborative spirit of his appearance, when asked about possibly reducing the size of the project, Higgins expressed a realistic openness to the idea:

"We'd be willing to take a few less," he said of the rental units. "But, from where I come from, we have to make the numbers work for when we go to get this thing financed."

He also responded to a question about the number of variances that the project would require, informing the Association that it would, by his count, require 12 of them split almost evenly between the Hyde Park Avenue address and the Dacy Street address.

When pressed on that number, Higgins explained that 8 Dacy St. "creates five of those variances just because it's a home that was built back before the zoning variances were updated." That having been said, he did acknowledge that "it is a number of variances."

Finishing his 25 minute appearance, Higgins continued to encourage feedback while tentatively scheduling a second visit to the HPNA in October to update it on the project.

In other development news, HPNA President Jim Kirker informed the group that he had heard nothing further from either ISD (Inspectional Services Department) or the BPDA regarding the proposed 11 Dana Ave. development that would be located on a 13,800 square foot lot between Hyde Park Avenue and the Hyde Park commuter rail parking lot.

The proposed building would have 24 residential units as well as a ground floor commercial space. The existing 11 Dana Ave. building is currently coded for 4-6 units.

At issue is the developer's contention that the project is "as of right" (requiring no variances) because it is in the Cleary/Logan Square neighborhood shopping district zone.

The HPNA's contention is that 11 Dana Ave. actually falls outside that zoning district and - although in another neighborhood shopping district zone - would still require two parking spots per unit, thus making the project subject to variances.

At a special June 24 meeting between HPNA members and two BPDA officials - Deputy Director of Regulatory Planning and Zoning Bryan Glascock and Deputy Director of Development Review Michael Christopher - a map was presented showing these zones.

However, Glascock informed the HPNA that the neighborhood shopping district that it was arguing 11 Dana Ave. fell within had not actually been put into Hyde Park's zoning code (Article 69). He also referred the HPNA to the ISD in order for it to get the best explanation regarding the proposed development's approved "as of right" status.

Subsequent attempts to bring representatives from the ISD to speak with the HPNA about the project have been met with limited results and - as Kirker noted - no further news.

In response to this, Hyde Park Liaison Bryan Flynn of the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services informed the group that he had met internally with BPDA officials - including Glascock - but that nobody from ISD had been present.

"We do want the ISD," Kirker replied, "because they're the ones that make the decisions." Flynn went on to say that he would keep pressing at City Hall for updates.

In Boston Police Officer Paul Broderick's monthly report, there were three armed robberies from Aug. 3 to Sept. 4, two of which took place in neighborhood shops. All three are currently still under investigation and drew some questions from the group.

Responding to these, Broderick explained that the store robberies are related to recent armed robberies that have also occurred in Milton and Quincy.

Adding to Broderick's comments, Sergeant Daniel Keane stated that these armed robberies were probably the work of one person and that - in the case of unsolved crimes following a similar pattern - "usually you put together a task force between the towns, put some more assets to it, and eventually get something. They'll slip up at some point."

The next HPNA meeting will be on Thursday, Oct. 3 at 7 p.m. at the police station.

like effect of the Arborway down Centre Street by planting oak trees along Centre Street sidewalks from Arborway to Weld Street. Harvard got the zoning waivers it wanted, but neighbors have yet to see the trees. Who at City Hall is responsible for making sure Harvard and the city's Parks Department keep the bargain? Probably the same office that looked the other way when the Hebrew Rehab Center installed offices for countless Harvard employees at its facility on Centre Street, in violation of a deed restriction that limits the premises to a home for senior citizens only. (Little known fact: that restriction was put in place when the city's development agency effectively stole public green space at Centre Street's Joyce Kilmer Park for the complex, transforming Joyce Kilmer Park into Joyce Kilmer Parking Lot.)

Neighbors have reasons to be mistrustful of official neglect of this corridor. And city agencies have a terrible track record of monitoring developer compliance with public commitments after development is built. City councilors should hold a hearing on why City Hall doesn't have one office (independent of the development agency) to monitor developer compliance with public commitments.

This is a critical time for everyone to take the long view of the Centre Street corridor. It will be up to the surrounding neighborhoods and City Councilors Matt O'Malley, of Jamaica Plain, and Michelle Wu, of Roslindale, to hold the city's feet to the fire to make sure the corridor turns out for the best in the long run.

LEADERSHIP NEEDS TO FUND FUTURE

To the Editor:

Schools resume this week, as does the Legislature. We're in the 2019-20 academic year, yet schools are running on a state funding formula established in 1993 – a 26-year-old funding formula!

A few sessions ago, the legislature established a Commission to determine how to fix the formula; in 2015, the Commission published its findings, including that the 1993 cost assumptions, especially for healthcare, special education, and education for English language learners and children who live in poverty, are outdated. That's one (not at all surprising) problem. Another problem is that the state promised to fully fund charter school reimbursements, which they have failed to do – in 2019, for example, the legislature only funded $90 million of the $180 million expenses (MA Assoc. of School Superintendents). The first problem affects all public school districts with higher proportions of ELL students and kids living in poverty; the latter problem additionally impacts districts with charter schools in their midst. In Boston, we're dealing with both.

In 1999, the state funded 31% of the BPS budget; in 2019, the state funds only 4.4% of the BPS budget. State funds for schools in Boston are required to pay for charter schools first, with those reimbursements no longer fully covered, resulting in 2019 in $171 million dollars of state aid funding 24 charter schools serving about 10,000 students, while $49 million dollars of state aid funds 125 BPS schools serving about 55,000 students. Some municipalities could raise taxes to fix the gap, but raising taxes in Boston would make our housing problem even worse than it is.

Local legislator Senator Sonia Chang-Diaz (with Representatives Keefe and Vega), filed the PROMISE Act, a bill that incorporates the Commission's findings to fix the formula, based on decades of school finance research. All West Roxbury and Roslindale legislators support it – Representatives Coppinger, Elugardo, Homes, Malia, and Scaccia, and Senators Rush and Collins. But supporting isn't enough right now; they need to champion the bill to push it through committees and past Governor Baker's much smaller counter-measure bill. Additionally, as residents and voters, we need to pressure Governor Baker and ask friends and relatives in other parts of Massachusetts to press their legislators to champion the PROMISE Act.

Public education is a cornerstone of our democracy, of our civic life, of our economy. When all students across the Commonwealth have access to what they need to be successful and thrive, every community and the Commonwealth as a whole can thrive. Until then, we're undermining equity and prosperity in many cities and towns.

We know the problem, a similar solution was proposed in 2017, yet wasn't passed in the 2017-18 legislature. We have to make sure our legislators show more courage and commitment this fall as the 2019-20 cycle enters its final seasons. We have to fund our future.

LAST WEEK'S INACCURATE LETTER REQUIRES RESPONSE

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the a factually inaccurate Letter to the Editor published in last week's Bulletin, titled, Profits Derived at Expense of Kids.

I am a resident of Roslindale and a 16-year teacher and leader of Roxbury Prep. Ms. Donlan has every right to share her opinion. We want the Bulletin to publish all voices and ensure that its reporting continues to accurately represent statements to its readers in West Roxbury and Roslindale.

Contrary to Ms. Donlan's claims, there is zero profit making in the new high school at 361 Belgrade Avenue. Roxbury Prep High School is a public school, and the organization that helps it run, Uncommon Schools, is a non-profit organization cited positively for its proven mission of ensuring low income students not only get to college but graduate from college.

The school's funding from taxpayers, via per-pupil state and local funding and federal funding, doesn't change based on its facility or location. There is nothing new here—this is how charter schools have been funded in Massachusetts for over 20 years. This new building does not represent an increase in the number of charter school seats in Massachusetts; it is simply a new building for an existing, high-achieving school.

Further, I am so proud of how Roxbury Prep has engaged with the community, offering countless opportunities for feedback, questions and information sharing. That engagement resulted in Roxbury Prep decreasing the size of the facility to 562 students. It's no wonder that hundreds of community members in Roslindale and West Roxbury have signed letters, emailed their elected officials, added their names to a petition and come to meetings to voice their support of this project.

Anyone following the developments in this process would know that our students will come primarily by public transportation, not overly impacting traffic. Project planners and City transportation staff have had multiple conversations with the MBTA service planning staff, and all agree capacity is not expected to be an issue.

With a first graduating class where 98% of scholars are headed to a 4-year college, many just this week, Roxbury Prep seeks to serve scholars and close a historical achievement gap that should warrant a welcome in Roslindale and West Roxbury.

Our students' intellect, resilience, and incredible hearts are the foundation of a city that welcomes all and reminds us that our history is written by our actions today. We would be wise to preserve and commit our legacy to students who I would be honored and proud to call my neighbors.

FOUNDER, ROXBURY PREP HIGH SCHOOL

To the Editor:

This direct abutter supports Roxbury Prep

I am a direct abutter to the proposed Belgrade Avenue site of The Roxbury Prep Charter School and I continue to support this valiant and necessary effort, as do my fellow direct abutters.

The rumor that the abutters have abandoned their support is just that, a rumor.

We ask for more support, especially from our city officials.

The fear and vitriol of the past few years must change and we need our city officials to help with the healing.

These children are our future. Denying them a future is denying one for ourselves.

KEEP IT 100 FOR REAL AFFORDABLE HOUSING AND RACIAL JUSTICE

Dear Editor:

Your September 5 article about the 3368 Washington Street meeting stated that "the silence from housing advocates raises questions." In fact, we support the project's strong affordability.

Pine Street Inn and The Community Builders' project is 100% income restricted, with 3/4 of units truly affordable at neighborhood incomes (for an individual making $0-47,600 or a family of 4 making $0-68,000 a year), and 2/3 affordable at the lowest incomes. It addresses a high demand for affordable housing. Most households in the JP/Roxbury/Egleston area make less than about $40,000; many make less than $25,000.

Affordable housing is essential to ending and preventing homelessness, and to ending Boston's economic and racial inequality. We need to provide people with safety and stability, not kick them when they're down.

We want our neighborhood to remain welcoming for low- and moderate-income residents, people of color, and renters. Locally, 700+ privately developed units have sprung up in the past 6 years. About 85% are completely unaffordable. Visit 3200 Washington Street's website: 2BR apartments cost $3,430 to $4,400 a month.

People who cannot afford housing are our friends and loved ones – not nameless, dangerous stereotypes. 100% affordability is not negative; it is a great win and a breath of fresh air. Our outcry for affordability, diversity, and ending displacement is being heard. This project's affordability mix is a model for all of Boston and cities facing affordable housing crises.

At the meeting, two members from Keep It 100 for Real Affordable Housing and Racial Justice distributed handouts; one spoke in support of the project's affordability. We advocated for providing full funding and recognized Mayor Walsh and Chief Sheila Dillon's leadership. We, and the Boston Tenant Coalition, had also just delivered 1000 postcards to City Hall calling for a stronger IDP. City Life/Vida Urbana has submitted a letter of support. Boston Tenant Coalition has encouraged people to attend meetings and submit comments. Our groups are more than whether a specific person attends a meeting.

We also know that the JPNC Housing Committee voices opinions about projects through its votes, not through non-JPNC meetings. It previously voted to commend the project's strong affordability.

We appreciate the Bulletin's intention of reporting our groups' positions. It would have been fair to raise specific questions if we did not support the project's affordability. But groups do support it. Future articles can more accurately report what groups share at meetings and ask for comments before describing groups as absent and silent.

Two more clarifications: Keep It 100, which is not an offshoot of City Life/Vida Urbana, organized residents to attend many Plan JP/Rox meetings. Two, we would appreciate less charged language than "mobbed" to describe the community's successes at mobilizing. We are proud that so many people have raised our collective voice to advocate for affordability and diversity in Plan JP/Rox and developments like 3368 Washington Street. We invite residents to join us as we continue calling on developers and the government to prioritize truly affordable housing and ending displacement in Boston.

Kathy Brown, for Boston Tenant Coalition

You are further notified that if the allegations in said petition are true, and/or if you fail to appear at the hearing, the Juvenile Court may terminate your parent-child relationship; and if the Court terminates your parent-child relationship you will lose all parental rights, powers, privileges, immunities, duties and obligations including any rights to custody, control, visitation, or support in said child; and if the Court terminates your parent-child relationship, it will be permanently terminated, and thereafter you may not contest an adoption or other placement of said child.
You are entitled to representation by an attorney, provided by the State if applicable, throughout these proceedings to terminate the parent-child relationship.
YOU MUST RESPOND by appearing in person or by an attorney within thirty (30) days after the last publication of this notice, and in the event you fail to do so, adjudication on said petition and termination of your parental rights may be entered against you, in your absence, without further notice.
Ordered, Myla Eldridge
Clerk of said Court, this 8/19/19

Mayor's Column

tion for all.

We have a few dates already planned. Please join us for the first round of listening sessions:

* Jamaica Plain: Thursday, September 12 from 5:30-7:30 p.m. at BCYF Hennigan Cafeteria, 200 Heath Street

* East Boston: Thursday, September 26 from 5:30-7:30 p.m. at Veronica Robles Cultural Center, 175 McClellan Highway

* Dorchester: Saturday, September 28 from 2-4 p.m. at Codman Square Branch of the Boston Public Library, 690 Washington Street

This is a project important to all Bostonians, and that's why I want as much help as possible. I hope you'll participate in the One Boston Resilience Project to create a much deserved memorial to highlight Boston's journey to healing and commitment to supporting each other. Through it all, we stick together.

Prayer to the Blessed Virgin

(Never known to fail!)
Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you.
With Gratitude for Prayers Answered.
—B.T.L.

Miracle Prayer

Dear Heart of Jesus, in the past I have asked You for many favours. This time, I ask you this very special one (mention favour). Take it, dear Heart of Jesus, and place it within Your own broken heart where Your Father sees it. Then, in His merciful eyes, it will become Your favour, not mine. Amen.
Say for three days, promise publication and favour will be granted.

Thank you, J.R.G.

Mil-Par Seniors

We meet every 3rd Thursday of the month at St. Pius X Hall, elevator available, lunch and bingo. Located in Hyde Park off Truman Highway. New members always welcome.

FIND OUT HOW WE BECAME # 1

THERE ARE MANY FACTORS THAT MAKE WORKING WITH INSIGHT REALTY GROUP THE BEST CHOICE, AND OUR AGENTS ARE WHERE IT ALL BEGINS. HERE IS JUST A SAMPLE OF WHAT OUR CLIENTS HAD TO SAY:

"The team at Insight was AMAZING and I can't say enough great things about them. We had three offers and sold our house after just two open houses over one weekend which was incredible. They made selling our house as stress free as possible. From giving us tremendously valuable insights and suggestions, to staging the house, taking beautiful pictures and creating a great video tour, all while generating and tracking online interest. They professionally handled all the tours and follow-ups. Insight handled and guided us through all the other intricacies of selling a home. I HIGHLY recommend the team at Insight Realty Group"

"This is my 3rd transaction with Insight Realty and yet again, it couldn't have gone any smoother. I wanted to move quickly and they had my home listed, staged, and photographed in record time. The quality of the photography and 360-degree walk through were incredible. They are great at marketing your home and directing web traffic to potential buyers, which always shows via clicks on your listing, as well as traffic at open houses. Because of this, my home was off the market after the first weekend. They are extremely knowledgeable of the local market; there has never been a time when they didn't have an answer to my questions right away and in most cases they anticipates the questions so you don't even have to ask! Selling and buying a home are stressful activities. Insight takes all of that out of the process and handles the process from A to Z. I cannot imagine better customer service."
