The Boston City Council met last week and discussed safety measures taken by gas company National Grid after two incidents in the state.

The first incident, which did not take place under National Grid's watch, was an over-pressurization of pipes in the Merrimack Valley that led to several homes exploding and at least one death. The second incident did occur on National Grid's watch, in which a worker over-pressurized a line in Woburn, but no explosions or injuries took place. After that, the state's Department of Public Utilities has put a moratorium on all non-emergency and non-compliance work in National Grid's terri-

All of Boston remembering service on Veterans Day

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The City of Boston will be in full celebration of its U.S. Armed Service members for the weekend of Nov. 11, with a slew of events all over the city.

The City of Boston will be hosting its annual Veterans Day Parade, followed immediately by the Veterans for Peace Parade. Both kick off at the corner of Boylston and Tremont Streets starting at 1 p.m. There will be an assortment of local military units, ROTC groups, honorary militias, marching bands, veterans organizations and the 54th Regiment of Massachusetts, out of Hyde Park.

In West Roxbury, the Gardens at Gethsemane are hosting several local Boy Scouts of America Troops for a Flag Retirement Ceremony from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., also on Nov. 11.

Thousands of American flags will be burned in accordance with the regulations governing proper disposal of the Old Glory. For more information, please contact Eunice Davis, Family Services Director of The Gardens at Gethsemane at 617-325-0186 or email info@thegardenscemetery.org.

Also in West Roxbury, the Deutches Altenheim German Centre will be hosting its annual Veterans Day remembrance ceremony and unveil the latest installation of its Wall of Honor on Saturday, November 11 at 10:00 a.m. at 2222 Centre St. West Roxbury Guest speakers will include Lt. General L. Scott Rice, the Director for the Air National Guard will speak at the event, along with several others who will pay trib-

1225 Centre may be sold to Sophia Snow

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

The hotly-debated project at 1225 Centre St. in Roslindale may be sold to the adjacent Sophia Snow Place Senior Living Facility.

Last week, representative of the proponent, Attorney John Pulgini, asked for and was given a deferral by the Boston Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) for the second time in as many months. He said during a hearing in September that they were working with Sophia Snow about a possible transaction and, now he said, they're working to sell the property.

"This has been continued once before what we're doing is we're working with an institutional abutter to effectuate a sale of this parcel to them, so we're just trying to sell this to them," he said during the hearing.

The original project was split into two buildings, with a six-unit townhouse dwelling on 1225-1229 Centre and a two-unit dwelling on 1231A-1231B Centre. Violations for the project include excessive floor area ratio, excessive building height, too many units, insufficient lot size for residential use, and insufficient setback on the side, front and rear of the property.

Residents expressed concerns at multiple abutters meetings, and public and West

Roxbury Neighborhood Council (WRNC) meetings over the last few months regarding the issue of possible wetland contamination during and after construction. Friends of the Allendale Woods members came out to say that the drainage on the site would have spilled into the adjacent vernal pool, which is one of two in the City of Boston. There were also concerns of prior contamination coming from the former gas station at the site. The development team said the site had been cleaned according to state environmental standards.

The WRNC actually voted not to recommend the project as it was presented to them based completely on zoning issues. The project would have also required approval from the Boston Conservation Commission, as it would have built almost completely in the 100-foot conservation buffer zone.

Friends Member Frank O'Brien said he felt this was a step in the right direction.

"Well, we're not directly impacted here, as there's no residential abutters, but at the same time this site is a very sensitive area, as it has the vernal pool and the wetlands," he said. "We're hopeful that the Sophia Snow Place as the abutter is talking potential alternate uses or development of the site... We totally support the Sophia Snow residents and their management and we think this second deferral is a positive sign."

Sophia Snow CEO Candace Cramer said she is working with the development team and Pulgini to buy the property.

"I can't tell you a lot more than that at this time," she said. "I will say we are cautiously optimistic that we're going to be able to find a sale price that's reasonable for all parties. For us, it would be wonderful to have that happen, in that they would be satisfied receiving what they feel their time and effort is worth."

O'Brien said he's very hopeful, and doesn't feel this is a delay tactic, as has been seen in other developments. He said his work with Pulgini in the past has always been above board.

"I think Sophia Snow has a very responsive management team and board, and John Pulgini is a very experienced development attorney. I think he's giving good guidance to the development team."

Regardless, Cramer said negotiations will be continuing.

The Roslindale Business Group (RBG) met Monday, November 5 at the Roslindale Village Main Street office on Washington Street. John Malley, president of the RBG, lead the meeting with 14 people in attendance.

Alia Hamada Forrest, Executive Director of the Roslindale Village Main Street, began with an update on Small Business Saturday, an annual event which encourages holiday shoppers to buy in their community from neighborhood stores. This year's event will take place on Saturday, November 24 along with Roslindale's 34th Annual Tree Lighting in Adams Park from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Live music, free hot chocolate, a visit from Santa and Boston Mayor Martin J. Walsh will complete the festivities.

"This year, Channel 5 is sponsoring Small Business Saturday," said Forrest, with American Express providing local business owners with assorted items like shopping bags and door mats. On Thursday, Dec. 6 from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m., a holiday market will also take place on Birch Street.

Forrest announced an effort to raise $25,000 to improve Poplar Street in Roslindale Square. Holding an architectural depiction of the "new" Poplar Street, she described some of the fundraising efforts to date.

"The RBG has contributed $650, which was amazing." A matching fund of $25,000 is also

Editorial

IMPORTANT, BUT NO SURPRISES

To be perfectly honest, Massachusetts is a state that, especially in this year's mid-term elections, ignores that old adage about every vote counting. Aside from ballot initiatives, watching ice cubes melt offers up more suspense than watching Tuesday's vote totals roll in.

As expected, Gov. Charlie Baker was resoundingly re-elected. Other state posts went as expected to Democrats and incumbents.

Elizabeth Warren trounced underpowered challengers to retain her Senate seat. Beyond that race, the state's various federal posts had a shocking dearth of challengers daring to challenge incumbents. The most surprising upset, in fact, was not on election night at all. It was Ayanna Pressley beating popular incumbent Michael Capuano in the Democratic primary for his seat in the House of Representatives.

Don't get us wrong. We are blessed to live in a state that can resoundingly elect Baker, a moderate Republican, and Warren, an increasingly left-leaning progressive. Their common denominator isn't rhetoric, although Warren resorts to invective ever more often as she mulls a presidential run. Both officials excel when they do their jobs outside of the public eye.

Baker, one of the nation's most popular governors, exudes a quiet confidence. His job is to get "the job" done. He is hardly a perfect governor with an unimpeachable record. Case in point: the horror show that is the MBTA. In most instances, however, his instincts are sound, his work ethic is admirable and the results are measurable.

Let's also praise Baker's political instincts. He managed the tough trick of rejecting President Trump, while still being (in most instances) an in-state party stalwart.

What appeals most to voters may be his approach to the job. Even his distaste for Trump was never over-the-top. Baker walked the walk with his pledge of seeking bipartisan solutions, as well as talking the talk (as evidence by his genteel, sincere praise of challenger Jay Gonzalez).

"Here's the good news, [a] collaborative, purposeful and humble approach to governing is exactly what you're going to get from us and from our team for the next four years," Baker said, addressing a crowd at the Hynes Convention Center during his post-victory speech. He later spoke of fiscal discipline "a reform-minded approach to governing, and a commitment to bipartisanship to state government."

Those messages are why Baker won and why voters should be thankful that he did.

As for Warren, set aside her often divisive rhetoric and instead look at the work she has undertaken in the Senate. Many of those efforts are less politically charged than critics are willing to admit. She has forged bipartisan consensus and fought for veterans, quality healthcare and the financial security of middle class Americans.

A consistent theme: battling big banks and corporations that abusively grow their profits on the backs of common folk. Yes, her message can sometimes be Sanders-like in its liberal extremes, but they do have a necessary place in our national dialogue.

If this Tuesday's election revealed one weakness in our state's political system, it is that we still seem to have a hard time getting quality candidates to run. The surprising number of unchallenged Democrats means that, no matter how popular Baker may be, the local Republican Party still has plenty of work ahead if it seeks to be a ballast to an otherwise solidly "Blue" state. In the interest of democracy, we hope they can someday get their act together.

The new promised land

Back in the 1950's when Ted Lepcio was playing for the Red Sox, most baseball players had to work in the offseason to augment their meager salaries. They worked as insurance salesmen and car salesman. (Ted Williams, earning an unheard of more than $100,000 annually, could enjoy fly-fishing in his offseason.)

Now professional players, regardless of their sport, draw such high salaries that they are not forced to work in the offseason. Their multi-million-dollar contracts are way beyond the average Bostonian's ability to comprehend.

Furthermore, a huge number of Bostonians are in awe of those making more than $100,000 annually—well below the pay scale for profession baseball, basketball, football, and hockey players. While the average cop, firefighter, and public school teacher make this as an average, the tens of thousands of urban residents earning below some sort of Mendoza line cannot aspire to ever reap this type of paycheck.

The ongoing lockout by National Grid, now extending

My Kind of Town/

beyond five months, could have a happy ending right away. It would be interesting to hear United Steelworkers Locals 12003 and 12012-04's side of the salary dispute.

National Grid currently has made an offer via a 5-year agreement of compounding increases totaling almost 15% that will elevate the current average employee salary to $120,000-$137,000 annually by 2022 (the salaries include an amount of overtime not specified). With no lay-offs coming to employees with five or more years of service, the offer also includes an 80% company contribution to premiums and an increase of pension benefits for current employees by 10% immediately.

There is also a newly defined 401(k) plan for new hires with a company contribution ranging from 3% to 9%. Furthermore, there will be increases in shift differentials for evening/weekend shifts, meal and clothing allowances, and off-hour coverage pay.

Working in the trenches, literally, for National Grid is not without frequent and imminent danger. It would be nice to hear if the injury/fatality packages for workers killed during work rival the generous ones accorded police and firefighters.

In the meantime, as the lockout continues, questions remain for those of us who are National Grid customers. May both sides come to an agreement soon—an agreement that also serves the needs of us paying National Grid's high fees.

Thanking Veterans Today, and Every Day

Every year on November 11th, we remember the armistice, signed on November 11th, 1918, that ended the First World War. One hundred years later, it can be easy to forget why we celebrate this day of all days, as the living memory of that war fades. The fact is, thousands of young men from Boston's neighborhoods, and from all across our country, put their lives on the line to defend our allies in the Great War. Today, the legacy of that courage and sacrifice is alive all around us — in the men and women in our neighborhoods who continue to serve our country; the families who continue to sacrifice; and veterans who continue to make Boston the great city that it is. It is essential, this year and every year, that we acknowledge and thank these honored members of our community.

More than 22,000 veterans call Boston home. They embody a commitment to service that doesn't disappear when they hang up their uniforms. When they come home, veterans continue to serve their community as leaders, parents, teachers, mentors, first responders, and more. Their valuable contributions make Boston a better place, and we should be thanking them each and every day for that.

It's also important for us to remember that veterans and their families often face unique challenges. Many deal with deep wounds, both visible and invisible. Since I was elected Mayor, I have worked hard to make Boston a city where veterans truly thrive, personally and professionally, throughout their lives. I believe that we need to show our veterans that we are grateful every single day. And one of the most important ways we do this is by showing vets that they can ask for help, and that they will receive it. It's what we owe them in return for all they have given us.

Mayor's Column

Martin J. Walsh

These are the values behind some of our most ambitious work in the City of Boston: from ending chronic veterans homelessness to improving access to supportive housing, healthcare, recovery services, employment programs for vets with and without PTSD, and much more. A question I hear all the time from residents is, "How can I help?" One of the simplest, and most powerful ways that every member of the Boston community can help support our veterans is simply saying "thank you." And that's exactly what we do through Operation Thank a Vet. Over the last few months, our goal has tory, pending results of the department's review of National Grid's safety practices.

The hearing began with a statement given to the City Council by National Grid, but the company did not send a representative to the meeting.

"We remain committed to keeping an ever-vigilant eye on safety, continuous improvement and best practices," hearing co-sponsor and District 6 City Councilor Matt O'Malley read from National Grid's Director Joseph Carroll.

It should be noted that that phrase has been used in several other statements released by National Grid in those exact words, but from National Grid Spokesperson Christine Milligan.

"It's disappointing, but it's also unsurprising that National Grid has declined to join us today," O'Malley said. "They offered to meet with city councilors to discuss gas safety, but apparently not in this forum."

However, National Grid's locked out workers did come to the hearing. After negotiations between the United Steelworkers Union and National Grid failed to come up with a new contract before the old expired, National Grid locked out about 1,100 workers on June 25.

Joe Kirylo, President of USW Union Local 12003, said he feels that the biggest obstacle to gas safety is the state's DPU. He said he and other members of his union have sent hundreds of what they believed to be violations and the response was slow to nothing from the agency.

"I don't state this lightly, but the DPU is a joke," he said. "They have a lot of problems and we went to the DPU week after week demanding a meeting so we could tell them about the safety problems throughout Boston and other communities, and it wasn't after three hours and 18 minutes after the Merrimack explosions that we got an email saying, 'we'll meet with you.'"

Kirylo said they had sent numerous violations to the DPU as far back as 2011.

"We are not here over a contract," he said. "We are here over public safety... We did not start our campaign for public safety on June 25, and this is important, I don't want people to think in any way shape or form that we just brought up safety because we got locked out. This has been going on since 2011, and I have sent 101 pages of safety incidents or things that needed to be discussed across the board to the Governor and the DPU and, more importantly, from 2011 to 2015 to two CEOs and two presidents of operation, so there's a long history of National Grid not working safely."

Kirylo discussed the city's gas safety problems, mainly having to do with what he believed were out-of-date computer systems on many National Grid trucks. He said the systems allow workers to locate and mark gas mains and distribution lines for construction workers or gas utility repair teams (so they can fix a leak).

"If you get out in front of someone's house at three o'clock in the morning to mark a gas main, house gas service or multiple gas mains and the computers are down, like they have been for one hour, two hours, two days, three days or more, you are literally in the dark," he said. "Because you don't know where the gas main is, you don't know where the service is, and you do not know where to mark. And if you're responding to a gas leak, and you show up with a crew that has to bar out the main and excavate, you are also without information. It is almost impossible to find and fix a leak when those computers are not working."

Kirylo also pointed out that there is a level one gas leak (being the highest in severity out of three levels) found near the Haynes Early Education Center that he and his team logged on

Aug. 23. He said National Grid went out and tried to fix it, but he said after they went back to the site to check, that as of Oct. 23, the leak was not fixed and showed 3 percent gas reading on their flammable gas detecting machines.

He said they have brought up numerous complaints of level 1 leaks with the DPU, and the response from the DPU was to ask where they got their readers.

On Jan. 1 of 2017, the City Council approved an ordinance brought forth by O'Malley to require that any time the city's streets were to be dug up, either for water main repairs, electrical work, construction, etc., the respective gas company in the area would have to fix any leak if it was detected there. National Grid sued the city and the courts repealed the ordinance based on a previous law that dictates only the state can create or enforce laws regarding gas infrastructure. Chris Osgood, the city's Chief of Streets, said the city actually has a very limited authority when it comes to gas infrastructure.

"Our focus is really limited to the worksite itself, the work they are doing to the street and that's sort of our span of control," he said. "There are things outlined in Massachusetts General Law that are out of our control."

He said there are four roles the Public Works Department (DPW) plays in gas infrastructure development and repair, the first of which is grant of location so as to make sure that any installation of gas infrastructure does not conflict with other public utilities or private property. The second is permitting, which allows for excavation and construction within the city. The third is inspections, which is overseen by Katie Choe and Mark Cardarelli, and they inspect the excavation work on city streets. The fourth area of work is capital coordination.

"It's to make sure we are investing the city's and taxpayer's dollars in resurfacing roads in a way that also is in coordination with all the utility work that happens," he said.

Osgood pointed out that O'Malley's ordinance was actually helpful for the city, in that it required gas companies to share their work plans and information with the city, which allows the DPW to schedule excavation work in coordination with the gas companies for repair and leak fixes.

Choe said the information based on specifically gas leaks has been very helpful. She said they have the locations of all grade 2 leaks in the city as well as any grade 3 leaks in school zones in the city.

"Grade 1 leaks, we know them through emergency notifications," she said. "We do have the location of all the grade 2 leaks, all of the emergencies that have been worked and any grade 3 leaks in school zones. We are getting the grade 2 and 3 leaks in real time as they are reported to us, and also any grade 3 leaks that are scheduled for repair."

Coppinger hosts fundraiser for Rose's Bounty

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

State Rep. Edward Coppinger held a fundraiser on Saturday, Nov. 3 at the Knights of Columbus on Washington Street to the delight of about 60 residents and volunteers.

Coppinger, dressed as Ricky Ricardo/Desi Arnaz, said he felt the relatively new food pantry could use the funds more than he did, and so instead of setting up a fundraiser for his reelection campaign, he felt he could use his pull to get more people to donate to a good cause.

"I was looking around and I don't have an opponent for the final election, but some of the people I consult with said I need to be fundraising," he said. "My point was I don't need to do fundraising for my campaign, I'd rather use the goodwill and people I have to fundraise for a worthy neighborhood organization."

Coppinger said he thought of Rose's Bounty, a food pantry run out of the Stratford Street Church in West Roxbury.

"Coming up on Thanksgiving and Christmas, we have a food pantry right in our backyard that a lot of people in the neighborhood don't know that we have," he said.

Coppinger said the largest need in any food pantry is funds. He said while traditionally donations have been made of a preserved nature, more fresh food is always in need for those who are food insecure.

"A lot of people need canned goods, but what they really need is money so they can buy fresh produce and meat," he said. "It's fresh and healthy food for the holidays. It was kind of last minute, we had about four meetings with

Roxbury Latin student donates art to Deutsches Altenheim

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

Stained glass is a tough medium for a growing artist, but that didn't stop a local student from diving in.

Roxbury Latin freshman Conor Downey recently created and donated a stained glass project to the Deutsches Altenheim Senior Living Center in West Roxbury. He said he first started working with the medium, which is time-consuming and very difficult, two years ago at the Diablo Glass School in Roxbury.

"And my interest in stained glass was sparked at seeing some of the completed pieces at the same studio," he said. "From there I was inspired."

Downey then went started to work on his framed glass window, depicting Mary and the Christ Child earlier this year for his Western Civilization class project. He worked with Roxbury Latin Art history Teacher Dr. Sue McCroy as well as the Diablo. The piece is a recreation from the Cathedral at Chartres in France and, through it, he earned the school's "Best in Show" award.

"The western civ project is an assignment given to all freshman boys, the parameters being to replicate something of significance from western civilization, he said.

"During the idea process I saw an application for what I had learned during the previous summer. For my project I went to the studio every weekend for two to four hours a day. I spent about 50 hours total—researching, creating my template, cutting, grinding, soldering, and putting on the final touches."

Downey said he considered donating the piece because he thought others might enjoy it, and he could think of no better place than Deutsches Altenheim.

"It would be a shame for it to sit in a cardboard box available from Mass Development and the Boston Main Streets Foundation will also contribute $5,000. In just one week, the project has already raised $8,000.

District E-5 Boston Police Officer Edward Roach then reviewed the police blotter from the month of October and early November. Crime is down 17 percent in District E-5 (Roslindale and West Roxbury) year-to-date from last year.

When asked about break-ins that involved businesses, he noted, "Not much, but this is the season," referring to the upcoming holidays as a time when break-ins can increase. He distributed a flyer about how to keep packaged deliveries safe from thieves throughout the year.

John Sullivan announced his volunteer efforts to raise money for the Roslindale Food Pantry, located at the Roslindale Congregational Church. Cans for money collection will be provided to local businesses and Sullivan and other volunteers will be responsible for collections. Sullivan asked for volunteers to solicit contributions outside the Village Market, Thursday-Saturdays during the holiday season.

"The money goes directly to the food pantry. There is no middleman," he added.

Other local business representatives provided updates. Camille Brenner, employment coordinator for Webster House, gave an overview of the community day center for adults recovering from psychiatric conditions. Webster House seeks to match clients' skills with employers in the community.

Courtney Pong of CSZ Boston, located at 5 Basile Street, described the improvisation comedy and classes offered by CSZ. A special class for educators who work with those on the autism spectrum will take place on Saturday November 17 from 2:00-4:00 pm "Innovative Educators: Using Improv to Teach Social and Communication Skills." Offered by Dr. Jim Ansaldo of Indiana University's Camp Yes, the workshop is designed for K-12 general and special educators, speech-language pathologists, school psychologists, counselors, social workers, and community-based arts educators.

The owners of Las Palmas Restaurant, located at 4337 Washington St, discussed their take-out, in-house restaurant dining, and busy catering business that focuses on Dominican food. The meeting ended with members posing with a large check rendering of the $650 RBG contribution to the Poplar Street project.

my volunteers and their volunteers, but it's come out amazing."

Coppinger said he was very happy with the response from the community.

"We have so many prizes, and we've been getting a great response from people and we're going to see a lot of funny costumes," he said. "My wife's a redhead and we decided to do a couples thing, and we came up with Lucille Ball and Ricky Ricardo."

Resident and Rose's Bounty member Judy Jose-Roddy said it was amazing to have the community and Rep. Coppinger come to support them.

"We thought it was fabulous, and we're very grateful to Ed," she said. "Everyone is having a fun time with their costumes. It's for a really wonderful cause."

Jose-Roddy said the pantry is doing well in the short time it's been around, and is still expanding.

"It's going incredibly well; we serve about 500 people a month," she said. "On the two days we're open, we also distribute boxes of food to veterans and backpacks to kids at the Chittick School and now we're delivering meals to home-bound seniors as well."

Residents and Rose's Bounty Volunteers Chris and Andrea Donahue said, "We think it's great to have people still dressing up for Halloween, having fun and making money for the pantry," she said. "I mean, I've still got my costume from Wednesday so it's an easy thing to do."

The couple said they first got started with Rose's Bounty going to a fundraiser for Rosie's Place and met a volunteer there.

"We started going and volunteering every second Saturday," he said. "It was great, really, really nice to help people and we had a great time."

Andrea said she was surprised by the need.

"There were 80 families every week who need food, and at first I was like 'oh, they get a couple of bags of food, that's not too bad,' but that's for a whole family for a month," she said. "That might last them a week, so the need is there."

Volunteer and co founder Linda Dennekamp said they started Rose's Bounty when we were going through a rough time at the church with dwindling membership, and so we had some serious discussions with how to move forward and we decided to become a mission-based church," she said. "It's more than just the traditional coming in and listening to the preachers. We still do all that but we decided to have a mission."

Dennekamp said they had talked about what they were good at first before deciding on a direction to focus on.

"One of the things we're good at is food," she said. "We had a past member, Rose Arntz, who had passed away and she had donated money to the church, so we started the food pantry."

Dennekamp said this fundraiser was an amazing time.

"It makes it all much more fun," she said. "Ed has been very gracious in sponsoring all this."

Jose-Roddy added that the next food pantry distribution days are this coming week and there is always a need for volunteers.

"This coming weekend we will be open Saturday, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., and Tuesday, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.," she said.

LAPD pays up on bet with BPD

Heading into the 2018 World Series between the Red Sox and Dodgers, Chief Michael Moore of the Los Angeles Police Department reached out to Commissioner Gross to see if he'd be willing to make a food-related wager as to the outcome of the Fall Classic. If the Red Sox won, the LAPD would send world famous pastrami from Langer's. If the Dodgers won, BPD would send seven 2-pound lobsters out to the west coast. Well, as you can see by the photo, in light of the Red Sox victory, the lobster never made the trip out west as boxes from Langer's showed up earlier today at Boston Police Headquarters.

lots of art in the hallways, and it just seemed the right home for my window."

And Downey said this isn't just a one-off for him. He wants to continue to work with stained glass and work on projects from his own imagination.

"Definitely, I plan to do more stained glass projects and potentially help out at Diablo in the future," he said. "However, I am not sure what exactly I plan to do, but I don't think I will be doing another recreation soon, instead maybe making my own templates and more modern designs. I can see blown and stained glass continue to be a part of my life. I connect with both these art forms deeply and enjoy doing them on my own time, rather than just to finish a project."

Jennifer Clark, Director of Development at Deutsches Altenheim, said the gift is greatly appreciated by both the staff and the residents. "As people age they tend to rely even more strongly on their faith, so this space on our campus becomes an important part of their lives," Clark said in a press release. "We were grateful that Conor thought of us and reached out. Hyundai Kona Ultimate AWD

Hyundai rediscovered itself a few years back and is now building some of its best cars, either here in the U.S. or like the Kona, overseas. The base Kona SE starts out as a FWD, with a 2.0 liter, 4-cylinder, 147 horsepower engine and an Atkinson dual cycle CVVT transmission. Yes, CVVT is correct. Unlike the conventional CVT, the CVVT is much different in its design and its function.

Now to the feel of this Kona Ultimate powered by a 1.6 liter, turbo-charged 175 horsepower, 4-cylinder engine, via a 7-speed dual clutch automatic that feels just like a manual transmission when starting from a stop. The engine RPM rises up before the car moves, just like driving a manual transmission. The shifts are very smooth and seamless under normal acceleration. That all changes when the accelerator is to the floor – the shifting is firm and precise, the engine revs to the red line and sounds great.

The Kona is a four-door, small crossover wagon. Fold down the rear seats for additional cargo space. Before this car was dropped off to me this week, I had not heard about it. It is a multifunction vehicle that is available in FWD or AWD with a center differential lock button. The top-of-the-line Kona Ultimate is a fully equipped fun, practical, and affordable car with NO excuses. The Ultimate has a long list of standard equipment that is usually optional on other vehicles. Power driver's seat, heated front seats, large sunroof, 18-inch tires, steering hub controls, 8-inch color multifunction touchscreen, auto dimming high beams, heads-up display, leather interior and steering wheel, blind spot monitoring, forward collision alert, rear cross traffic alert, lane keeping assist, plus more is available.

EPA: 26 city, 29 highway, 27 average combined MPG. The Kona FWD starts at $19,500 (destination fee: $980). Our Ultimate Kona, as tested, was $28,700.

Midterm election appears to be a good day for incumbents

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

This year's midterm election for 2018 saw some of the highest turnout in the country for such an election, with 114 million votes cast as of the date of publication. That's compared to 83 million in 2014.

For Massachusetts, more than 2.4 million people came out to vote and the ballots are still coming in as of publication. For the actual big elections, not much has changed on the political landscape. Elizabeth Warren is more than likely to keep her U.S. Senate Seat against Republican Geoff Diehl with 1.3 million votes against Diehl's 812,052 (60.8 percent to 35.8 percent) with 85 percent of precincts reporting with independent Shiva Ayyadurai coming in at 75,834 votes (3.3 percent).

In a showing of bipartisanship, more than 1.4 million voted (66.5 percent) for Massachusetts Gov. Charlie Baker with 85 percent of precincts reporting against Democratic Challenging Jay Gonzalez, who tallied 749,548 votes (33.5 percent).

West Roxbury's State Rep. Edward Coppinger and State Sen. Michael Rush both ran unopposed. Hyde Park's State Rep. Angelo Scaccia and the State Sen. Sonia Chang-Diaz, who represents Dorchester, Jamaica Plain, Hyde Park, Mattapan, Mission Hill, Roslindale, Roxbury, and the South End also ran unopposed. State Rep. Nika Elugardo beat out Rep. Jeffrey Sanchez in the primary and ran unopposed to now represent Jamaica Plain. For the Massachusetts State Senate, 29 democrats won their elections while Republicans won three, with each currently leading four other races currently too close to call.

Boston City Councilor Ayanna Pressley will be taking her seat as the first African American woman to represent Massachusetts in the U.S. House of Representatives. The only really close race for House race in Massachusetts was between Bill Keating, currently coming in with 60 percent of the vote and Peter Tedeschi, currently polling with 40.4 percent of the vote, with 86 precincts reporting.

Seth Moulton beat out Republican challenger Joseph Schneider easily with 65.3 percent of the vote versus Schneider's 31.4 percent with 77 percent of precincts reporting. Democrat Katherine Clarke beat out Republican John Hugo with 171,935 votes (75.3 percent) and Hugo's 56,471 votes (24.7 percent).

Democrat Lori Trahan won against both her Republican challenger Rick Green (33.9 percent of the vote) and her independent challenger Michael Mullen (4.6 percent of the vote) with 61.6 percent of the vote with 79 percent of precincts reporting. Richard Neal, Joe Kennedy, Ayanna Pressley and Stephen Lynch all ran uncontested.

Attorney General Maura Healey beat out her challenger

James McMahon 70.3 percent to 29.7 percent with 86 percent of precincts reporting and 1.6 million votes. The voters also rejected the limit on nurse-to-patient ratios put forth by Ballot Question 1 in a surprising landslide with 1.5 million votes for no and 675,018 for yes. Question 2, the question to create a commission to look over Citizens

United passed with 1.59 million votes against 632,996 votes and Question 3 for transgender equality won out in a yes vote with 1.54 million votes to 722,289 votes.

Secretary of State Bill Galvin, State Auditor Suzanne Bump and State Treasurer Deborah Goldberg all kept their seats in the election.

2018 "We Are Boston" gala honorees announced

Mayor Martin J. Walsh and the Mayor's Office for Immigrant Advancement (MOIA) recently announced that 2018 World Series champion Red Sox Manager Alex Cora, tax and advisory firm KPMG, and the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston (MFA), will be honorees at 2018's "We Are Boston" Gala taking place on Tuesday, November 27 at the Park Plaza Hotel. "We Are Boston" is the largest event of its kind, raising funds for the MOIA Mini-Grant Program, which supports local nonprofit organizations that help Boston area immigrants.

"Boston's strength is derived from its cultural diversity and wonderful traditions represented within each of Boston's diverse communities," said Mayor Walsh, the son of Irish immigrants. "Every year we hold the We Are Boston Gala to recognize the important contributions of our communities and signal to our city that Boston is and always will be a welcoming city to everyone regardless of circumstance or status."

Last year's "We Are Boston" Gala funded ten immigrant-led nonprofit organizations that deliver a combination of services to immigrants including welcoming and supporting evacuees from recent natural disasters; organizing and hosting immigration legal screening clinics; and hosting and facilitating family-preparedness education workshops. Twenty-eight percent of Boston's population comprises immigrant communities.

At the Gala, Mayor Walsh will present four awards that honor outstanding accomplishments of organizations and individuals who embrace diversity and cultural heritage as part of their work or charitable activities. The 2018 We Are Boston awards and recipients are:

The Pride of Boston Award, awarded this year to World Series Champion Red Sox Manager Alex Cora for

AVERSA

Anne Teresa of South Strafford, Vermont, formerly of West Roxbury, MA. Passed away on Friday, October 26, 2018 at 75 years old. Anne joins parents Salvatore Aversa and Frances Franco along with her beloved sister, Fran. Anne spent the greater part of her life in central Vermont teaching art at the Barrytown School where she was instrumental in organizing a teachers' union. She motivated and encouraged students through organization of annual art shows. As a gifted artist, Anne created work in diverse mediums exhibiting art at local shows. Throughout her life, Anne participated in sports, and truly loved golf. She was an avid gardener, birdwatcher, and lover of animals, leaving behind her beloved dog, Lily. She volunteered over several decades for the Vermont Institute of Natural Science and the Vermont Center for Ecostudies. Despite being less than five feet tall, she excelled at landscaping, building stone walls at her home and for her friends. She leaves behind brothers Chuck, Tom, and Steve along with niece, Alexis, nephew, Christopher, and their three children. In lieu of flowers, Anne requested that donations be made to the Vermont Center for Ecostudies (VCE) at P.O.

Box 420, Norwich, VT 05055 or at <https://vtcostudies.org/give/>. Private services.

VISIT THE WWI MOBILE MUSEUM AT SPRINGHOUSE ON NOVEMBER 29 & 30!

"Lest We Forget," a traveling exhibit commemorating the centennial anniversary of World War I is coming to Springhouse! Based in Texas, the World War I Mobile Museum is a traveling exhibition of original artifacts composed of twelve sections depicting different themes, including trench warfare, photographic and cinematic treatment of the war and Christmastime on the battlefield. More than 200 artifacts and photographs are presented, including numerous personal items used by soldiers, one of the first battlefield movie cameras and an authentic trenching tool like those used to dig more than 25,000 miles of trenches during the war.

"When I was visiting the National World War I Museum in Kansas City, I realized that senior adults are the last direct descendants of World War I veterans and decided to create a mobile museum to bring these artifacts to them wherever they live," said Keith supporting and advocating for underrepresented and underserved communities, regardless of place of origin. Through his approaches and actions, Cora has contributed to building a united Boston by supporting Bostonians and their communities of origin. In his first year as manager and alongside Mayor Walsh, he delivered an airplane full of aid supplies to Hurricane Maria survivors to his native Puerto Rico, and brought the city its fourth World Series championship. Photos from that trip are available here.

"The 'We Are Boston' Gala is a special evening to celebrate our diverse cultures, and highlight the contributions immigrants and children of immigrants make to this city. It is also an opportunity to remind ourselves that the immigrant experience is not easy and that integration requires resilience," said Alejandra St. Guillen, director of the Mayor's Office for Immigrant Advancement. "At MOIA, we are more committed than ever to make sure that our immigrant neighbors, friends, families, colleagues in the city know that they belong, that they are part of the fabric of our city." About the Mayor's Office for Immigrant Advancement

The Mayor's Office for Immigrant Advancement (MOIA) works to ensure the full participation of immigrants within the civic, economic, social and cultural life of Boston. Every year, MOIA assists over 2,000 residents by connecting them to English language classes, helping them obtain citizenship application assistance, facilitating access to city services, and providing accurate information about immigration laws — all of which helps immigrants contribute socially and economically to the city.

been to personally reach out to all 22,000 veterans in our city. We wanted to make sure each of them knows about all the resources that our city has made available to them. We've connected with thousands of vets so far, but we have thousands more to go. That's where you come in. On Saturday, November 10th, we will go door to door delivering thank you packages and information about opportunities available to veterans. By joining us as a volunteer, you can help us reach our goal. And most importantly, you will make a meaningful difference in people's lives—connecting those who have served their country with a community who is ready to serve them and their families.

A century ago, the events of November 11th gave people hope for a more peaceful and prosperous future. This week, we'll recognize those among us who have continued that mission and put their lives on the line in the name of those same values. In Boston, we never forget the sacrifices people made for the good of our community. We know that our strength comes from our willingness to lift our neighbors up in good times and hard times. And we will always be grateful to our veterans, not just on November 11th, but every day.

If you are a veteran who would like to be connected to services in Boston, please reach out to Boston's Veterans Services, <https://www.boston.gov/departments/veterans-services>, email veterans@boston.gov, or call 617-241-VETS (8387).
